RELIEF CRISIS TO GOVERNOR

Expects It to Pull Us Out of Slump.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—President Hoover signed the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation bill tonight. Whatever the results may be, his signature set in motion the most ambitious effort to pull a nation out of an economic depression by the extension of government credit that the world probably ever has seen.

Early in the day the two houses of congress had concurred in the recommendations of the conference committee which had reconciled the divergent features of the house and senate measures.

There remains now the approval of a $500,000,000 appropriation with which to provide the corporation with its immediate authorized capital.

A resolution making the half billion dollar appropriation was drafted today, will be introduced tomorrow, and undoubtedly will be passed Monday.

Dawes to Head Relief March.

Then with Gen. Charles G. Dawes at its head, with half a billion dollars of federal money at its back, and with the power to raise an additional billion and a half dollars in bonds guaranteed by the government and purchasable by the treasury, the corporation will begin efforts toward the relief of the banks, the railroads, agricultural associations, mortgage loan companies, building and loan associations, and other key institutions.

Gen. Dawes, the corporation's president; Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, who will be chairman; Secretary of the Treasury Mellon; Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills, and George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, met with the President tonight to discuss plans for getting the corporation in motion early next week.

If the remaining directors are appointed in time they will meet in Washington Monday, Gen. Dawes announced. Organization work will be started immediately, with headquarters in the old department of commerce building.

President Explains Aims.

The President made this statement following his signing of the bill: "It brings into being a powerful organization with adequate resources, able to strengthen weaknesses that may develop in our credit, banking, and railway structure, in order to permit business and industry to carry on normal activities free from the fear of unexpected shocks and retarding influences.

"Its purpose," the President continued, "is to stop deflation in agriculture and industry and thus to increase employment by the restoration of men to their normal jobs. It is not created for the aid of big industries or big banks. Such institutions are amply able to take care of themselves. It is created for the support of the smaller banks and financial institutions, and, through rendering their resources liquid, to give renewed support to business, industry, and agriculture. It should give opportunity to mobilize the gigantic strength of our country for recovery.

"In attaching my signature to this extremely important legislation. I wish to pay tribute to the patriotism of the men in both houses of congress who have given proof of their devotion to the welfare of their country irrespective of political affiliation."

Three Jobs to Be Filled.

Three members of the board of directors—all Democrats—still remain to be selected. The President conferred with Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, senate minority leader; Speaker John N. Garner, and Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] following the signing of the bill. The three discussed possible candidates, but no decision was announced.

In all, six hours were occupied in giving the reconstruction finance corporation the final official touches that made it an act. It was taken up in the house at 12 minutes past noon; the President's pen lifted from the paper at 6 minutes past 6.

Three of the six hours were occupied by the house and senate actions; six minutes passed from the time the bill entered the White House until the President, sitting in the small office off his study, affixed his signature.

Three Hours of Waiting.

The intervening three hours might have been the comedy relief required by good dramatic technique. First, an error in the bill's engrossing was discovered. Then it seemed to dis-

LABOR TO REBUT RAIL PLEA FOR PAY CUT TODAY

Senate Act Raises Hope of Accord.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

New developments regarded as of high significance yesterday caused some observers to predict that an amicable settlement will be reached in the negotiations pending at the Palmer house between the railway unions and a committee of railroad presidents.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio and chairman of the presidents' committee, won generous applause after he had delivered the roads' plea for a 10 per cent wage cut to a general meeting of 800 of the railway labor representatives.

Another development, the adoption by the United States senate of a resolution calling for a study of the six hour day for the rail workers, bade fair to remove a major obstacle which was believed to have been blocking a settlement.

Labor to Reply Today.

The conference will proceed today with the presentation by the labor spokesman, David B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, of labor's reply to the railroads' plea for the wage cut.

A committee of rail union leaders worked late into last night putting the finishing touches on the reply. It was stated definitely that the unions will not include in their reply a decision on whether or not they will accept the cut, but that they will cite statistics and arguments opposed to the statistics and arguments advanced by Mr. Willard in his plea.

The eventual decision on accepting or rejecting the cut is up to the general chairmen of the railway brotherhoods, and Mr. Robertson said last night that no definite discussion has been had on the subject, and no vote has been taken.

Want Concessions by Roads.

In viewing the latest developments concerning the conference, it was pointed out that from the beginning it has been the general understanding that the unions would accept a wage cut if the railroads would grant labor concessions aimed at improving working conditions and relieving unemployment.

In this connection great importance was attached to a resolution introduced in the United States senate yesterday by Senator Couzens of Michigan. The resolution, which was adopted unanimously, directs the interstate commerce commission to investigate and determine the feasibility of applying the principle of the six hour day to railway employés, and to report its findings to congress before Dec. 1, 1932. The resolution must be adopted by the house before it is effective.

A controversy has existed between the railroad presidents and union leaders in their wage conference here over the question of inaugurating an investigation of the six hour day, and this has admittedly been a major obstacle against reaching a general accord.

The presidents have maintained their refusal to approve the unions' plan, which would have the railroads join with the unions in asking congress to establish an investigative commission to study the six hour day.

Question Before Congress.

Now with the question placed directly before congress by Senator Couzens the necessity of forcing an agreement on that issue during the conference here appears to be removed from the class of vital issues. Senator Couzens announced in Washington that he had been requested to introduce the resolution by "a representative of the railway brotherhoods," and he added that he had been informed that if congress took an interest in the matter action in the Chicago negotiations might be facilitated.

Mr. Robertson and Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the railway labor association, last night would not affirm nor deny that they had inspired the resolution. Reports, combined with Senator Couzens' explanation, indicated that they had.

Will Continue Parleys.

As to the immediate course to be followed by the railway presidents and the labor leaders in their conference, the labor answer to the railroads on figures and arguments concerning the wage cut, to be given today, will be followed by further separate discussions in both camps. Mr. Robertson said he could not predict when the negotiations will be in shape for a decision to be made by the labor forces on the wage cut, but from what he did say it was indicated that

UNION AGENT IS SHOT TO DEATH BY GANG GUNMEN

Carmelo Lucchesi, 51 years old, business agent of the macaroni workers' local of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, was shot and killed by three unidentified assailants early last evening in front of 50 North Hoyne avenue.

The killers were on foot. They walked close to Lucchesi and fired five bullets into his body. They then fled through an alley and escaped, after dropping a pistol on the sidewalk.

Shortly before the shooting the business agent had left the local's headquarters at 2136 West Washington boulevard with Samuel P. Luzzo, who until recently was president of the macaroni workers. Luzzo is a former Illinois boxing commissioner and is president of the track layers' union.

The two men talked for several minutes on the sidewalk and Luzzo then drove away in his car. Lucchesi was on his way to his home at 2144 De Kalb street when the shooting occurred. Luzzo told Lieut. Frank Malone of the Warren avenue police station that he resigned as president of the macaroni union several weeks ago and that Lucchesi had been in full charge of its affairs.

NO SPEED LAW EXEMPTION FOR DRY LAW AGENT

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Attorney General George M. Napier of Georgia today ruled that a prohibition agent who drives faster than forty miles an hour violates the state speed law even though he is chasing a liquor runner.

The attorney general delivered his opinion to R. E. Tuttle of New Orleans, federal prohibition administrator of this district, who asked if agents would be allowed to use sirens on their cars in the interest of public safety while chasing liquor law violators.

Mr. Napier said the runner might escape if agents held within the speed limit, but they would not be violating the law by allowing him to escape.

"Even police officers would not be allowed to exceed this speed, with or without sirens," he said.

Mt. Carroll Mayor Will Not Accept His Salary

Mount Carroll, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Mayor Robert M. Browning will accept no salary for the remainder of his term, he announced in council meeting tonight, because of the town's financial condition. Then State's Attorney Ralph Eden, who also serves as city attorney, arose and said he will handle all routine legal matters for the city free of charge. But the aldermen voted to go right on taking their pay.

Union Drivers Surrender in Funeral War

Funeral car drivers called off their "strike" against the public yesterday. By agreement of union officials the rule that privately owned automobiles might not follow behind union livery cars in funeral processions was rescinded.

The agreement was effected in a conference between Edward Reilly, president of the livery car chauffeurs' union; W. J. Kerrigan, secretary of that union; L. G. Goudie, president of the joint council of teamsters and chauffeurs' unions, and Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Edward Markham. After the meeting the following statement was issued:

"It was agreed by the union officials to rescind their recent orders to their members and that in the future their union drivers will proceed with the funeral cortége whether there are private cars in the procession or not. This assurance given by the union officials satisfied the state's attorney that there will be no further trouble from this source."

New True Bills Reported.

The decision was announced after several disorders had occurred at funerals yesterday and after the grand jury was reported to have voted additional true bills accusing Reilly, Kerrigan and four union drivers of conspiracy. On Thursday true bills were reported to have been voted against the two officials and four other drivers in connection with their alleged efforts to bar private cars from processions in order to create more jobs for union drivers.

The union had fought a losing battle against an aroused public opinion that, according to reports to the prosecutors, grew more intense daily. The union suffered a new defeat yesterday when the body of Saul Weiner, 34 years old, of 1404 South Kolin avenue, a war veteran, was carried to the grave on an artillery caisson instead of in a hearse.

Members of the Yarmo-De Vere post of the American Legion, of which Weiner had been a member, were angered at threatened union interference with the funeral of their comrade, and arranged through army officials to give Weiner a military funeral. Inasmuch as all hearses are driven by union men, the union has been able to carry out its order by having the hearse driver refuse to proceed unless the privately owned cars were kept out of the procession. But because of the Legion post's arrangements the union was unable to control the Weiner funeral.

On the previous day the union had its first clash with the American Legion when a hearse driver and the union members driving the livery cars immediately behind the hearse in the funeral of Edward Riley, another war veteran, tried to bar a firing squad, supplied by the John J. McShane post, from the procession. The timely arrival of a squad of police prevented violence, as the Legionnaires openly defied the union drivers and said their car would stay right behind the hearse.

The cortége reached Calvary cemetery, after the police had ordered the union drivers to get back into their cars and drive, threatening them with arrest if they failed to comply. Commander C. C. Fletcher notified Assistant State's Attorney Mueller and as a result the grand jury voted new true bills, charging conspiracy. The drivers involved were Edward Freundt, Fred Skadell, John R. Hughes and Edward M. Parilla.

Officials of Union Named.

President Reilly and Secretary Kerrigan, also named in the bills, had been named by the grand jury on Tuesday with four other drivers as a result of the refusal of the unionists to continue with the funeral of Mrs. John Economakos.

After having settled the trouble amicably yesterday, Mr. Mueller gave the impression he was not disposed to prosecute.

Myrtle Sues E. R. Litsinger in Faro Row

An echo of the famous faro game swindle involving Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, and Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, was heard in Superior court yesterday when Mrs. Blacklidge filed suit asking $150,000 damages of Litsinger for alleged defamation of character.

MRS. MYRTLE BLACKLIDGE.

The præcipe of the suit, drawn up by Attorney David Stansbury, was filed just a year and a day after Mrs. Blacklidge, Mr. Litsinger, and the reviewer's nephew, Fred Litsinger, made a trip to the St. Nicholas hotel in Springfield, where three card sharps took $50,000 which Litsinger had loaned to Mrs. Blacklidge.

Arrest Asked by Litsinger.

Immediately upon discovering his loss, Litsinger summoned Springfield police and demanded Mrs. Blacklidge's arrest. He subsequently issued a 1,500 word statement upon which, it is understood, the present defamation suit is based.

"So as to make my position clear," Mr. Litsinger stated, "I firmly believe that Mrs. Blacklidge entered into the plan to make this holdup, and, knowing the utmost confidence I had in her, she felt that she could make me believe her story, which I did. Neither Fred nor I ever saw any of her confederates at any time.

"I believe that Mrs. Blacklidge harbored the thought that she could get away with this deal on the basis that I would be afraid to talk. I say now that I shall present the facts to the state's attorneys and courts of Sangamon or Cook county, wherever jurisdiction may lie.

"I will not only prosecute every one involved in this case, but I will and do hereby offer a reward of $2,000 for the arrest and conviction of any of her confederates."

Resigns as Collector.

There was no prosecution. Eight days after the swindle occurred, Mrs. Blacklidge resigned as collector. Mr. Litsinger held several conferences with State's Attorney Fullenwider of Springfield and State's Attorney Swanson here and finally announced that he was "too busy" to follow the case any further.

On April 26, 1931, three months after the swindle, one George L. Perry, mysteriously affluent resident of South Bend, Ind., was shot to death there. Police subsequently identified the body as that of "Big George" Parker, one of the three faro swindlers, an identification which Mrs. Blacklidge confirmed in a South Bend mortuary. His accomplices, Roy Burgess and Roscoe Reynolds, have never been found.

Regarding the damage suit Mr. Litsinger issued the following statement:

"When Mrs. Blacklidge asked for $50,000 she afterwards claimed that it was a 'faro' game. Now she asks for $150,000. She flatters me. I wonder if this is pinochle or contract bridge?"

KILLS TEACHER; JUMPS TO DEATH FROM A WINDOW

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Yvonne Bouche, 32, who taught French in the Finch school, was shot and killed tonight in her apartment in Claremont avenue by her sweetheart, Mauro Fallisi, who then ended his own life by jumping from a window.

Miss Bouche, who came to this country about five years ago, shared her apartment with the Misses Lena and Elsie Gilbert, sisters. They were awakened shortly before midnight by the sound of loud voices in Miss Bouche's bedroom, followed by a burst of shots.

The Misses Gilbert were unable to advance any explanation other than that obviously there had been a lovers' quarrel. Two notes, both written in Italian, were found in Fallisi's pocket, but the police declined to reveal their contents.

Mrs. Hoover Ill; Cancels All Social Engagements

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover has canceled all of her social engagements for the next few days, it was announced today at the White House, because of a cold which has confined her to her room. In announcing Mrs. Hoover's indisposition, her personal physician, Capt. Joel T. Boone, said her condition is not serious. She will not leave the White House, however, for several days.

Trotzky Settles Down for Long Stay in Exile

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, whom the soviet Russians call "Judas" Trotzky, has taken a two year lease on a villa on the Island of Prinkipo, a move which appears to discredit published reports that he intended going to Germany to live.

CHICAGO FUND NEAR END; FACE AN EMERGENCY

Want Legislature Recalled Tuesday.

Act on Tax Machinery

Besides consulting emergency relief fund leaders in Chicago today Gov. Emmerson will begin conferences with Mayor Cermak and others on the reorganization of Cook county's tax machinery under the Kelly bill. Details on page 2.

Receiving an urgent appeal from officials of the Cook County Joint Emergency Relief fund late last night, Gov. Emmerson announced in Springfield that he would leave at once and arrive in Chicago this morning to confer with the fund heads.

The governor was informed that the cash and the credit of the fund would both be exhausted on Feb. 1, and that unless some legislative action was taken before that date all relief stations would have to be closed, and 120,000 families—450,000 individuals—now dependent on them for a bare living would be left in utter destitution.

Besides the 450,000 being fed in their homes, relief fund leaders pointed out, there are 12,000 men lodged in shelters which he says must be closed.

Want Assembly Called.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Emergency Relief funds, and others of the officials said that they would request the governor to reconvene the session of the legislature which has just adjourned after passing the Kelly bill, for the purpose of passing immediate relief measures. An emergency gasoline tax of 2 cents a gallon has already been suggested as the most feasible method of attacking the problem.

The special session of the legislature will not reconvene until Feb. 2, too late for the emergency action required by Chicago. Therefore it is the belief of the relief fund leaders that the governor will send telegrams to the legislators calling them together next Tuesday to take action on Chicago's plight.

The sore plight of the fund and the inadequacy of the $10,500,000 it raised in the present unprecedented conditions was outlined last night at a meeting attended by the officials who raised the fund and by several members of the legislature. This meeting was held in the Blackstone hotel.

Huebsch Tells Difficulty.

State Senator Arthur Huebsch, who was at the conference, agreed with Mr. Ryerson and his associates that the situation was desperate and something would have to be done. But, he added, it was extremely difficult to figure out where to go for the necessary state raised money.

"People are not paying their taxes," he said. "It has been suggested that an emergency gasoline tax could be used. Money can be raised in this way readily because machinery for collecting it is ready, though there are strong arguments against the policy of such a method of raising funds."

$6,245,085 Cash Received.

It was shown by the auditors' figures that the total cash received from emergency fund pledges thus far was $6,245,085, and that the expenditures had been $6,466,867. The difference between the receipts and the expenditures was made up by borrowing.

As the pledges were made in such form that many were to be paid monthly, and as many of the contributors at the solicitation of officials paid their deferred payments in advance, it was figured last night that not more than $500,000 would be paid in between now and Feb. 15.

The estimate of the minimum amount needed to keep the relief organization from breaking down before the latter date is $3,000,000.

Payments at a Minimum.

Already the Joint Emergency Relief fund has cut down its payments for relief to the minimum. Early this month it announced it could not pay any rent. Most of the landlords having unemployed tenants consented to let them remain undisturbed until Feb. 1, but said they too would have to have money then.

Leaders in the administration of the relief fund emphasized that if the legislature does not meet until Feb. 2 it would be too late to meet the emergency. The suffering of the poor would begin the moment the relief stations now in existence are closed on Feb. 1.

Only a fund that will match that which was raised by popular subscription can serve effectively, it was pointed out.

"The governor and the members of the legislature have exclusively the power to meet the situation," the fund officials said in a statement. "It is through them alone that adequate relief can be obtained. Unless they act promtply this community is faced with suffering and disorder."

Need at Least $10,000,000.

Not less than $10,000,000 and perhaps $15,000,000 will have to be obtained to carry on the work, it was estimated.

Of the huge total dispensed already in Cook county more than 94 per cent has been paid to family relief agencies and expended in homes. For food went $2,971,852; for fuel, $481,546; for rent—in the earlier months—$979,115. Cash grants have reached a total of $644,468. Clothing and miscellaneous help took up the remainder, except for service expenses.

In this expense was included all salaries directly connected with the operation of the relief stations. Administrative cost of the actual dispensing agencies accounted for about 4 per cent. These charity agencies have furnished, however, about $200,000 raised by their own efforts.

The fund officials called attention to the fact that they had requested the legislature for substantial assistance last November and provided facts showing where it would be necessary before the end of the winter. They asserted that they were given assurance by legislative leaders then and later that cognizance would be taken of the situation.

No relief has been given the fund or the Cook county relief fund through legislative channels, it was asserted in the statement last night.

OLD TAX BOARDS START PACKING FOR MOVING DAY

Members of the boards of assessors and review prepared yesterday to move out of their offices following passage of the Kelly tax plan bill.

John E. Conroy, secretary of the board of assessors, said that neither he nor none of his fellows had any complaint to make. His board is preparing a report of work done up to the present for use by the new officials.

"The legislature has spoken," said Mr. Conroy. "We're ready to move out."

Edward R. Litsinger, veteran reviewer, had his aids going through desks and discarding papers. Chief Clerk Andrew W. Gatenby of the reviewing body said that he and his staff would continue to work so long as their services were found necessary.

LAWYER, WORRIED OVER HIS TAXES, JUMPS INTO RIVER

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Richard Horner Hargreaves, a 61 year old London solicitor whose body was found in the Thames, committed suicide because he was worried over taxation, especially a $450 income tax payment which was due, it was revealed at the inquest today.

"Very demented through insomnia. Taxation is far in excess of my property. The poor are suffering terribly. Such facts break my heart."

"Had the income tax officer been worrying him?" the coroner asked a witness.

GIRLS' ELEVATOR JOY RIDE BREAKS UP BUNCO PARTY

Mary Gear, 14 years old, of 8045 Princeton avenue, and Margaret Condon, 13, of 8641 Princeton avenue, had a good time for a while last night operating the automatic elevator in the McNally building, 7901 South Halsted street. Their mothers were at a bunco party in the building at the time.

The fun for the girls ended when the elevator stalled between the second and third floors. Their screams attracted help. Two hours later they were freed, but only after Lieut. James Fleming and a rescue squad from the fire department removed the top of the cage and lifted them out. Incidentally, the bunco party was broken up.

GIRL ENDS LIFE WITH POISON IN LOOP HOTEL ROOM

A young woman about 22 years old was found unconscious early this morning in a washroom of the Palmer house. She was taken to another room, where she died while Dr. Edward F. Addenbrooke, hotel physician, administered restoratives.

In her purse were found several pills, supposedly containing poison. Also in the purse were found three dance hall tickets, which led police to believe the girl had worked as a taxi dancer. The girl was dark haired and brown eyed, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed 135 pounds. She wore a black coat, black dress, and black hose and slippers. Around her waist was an Indian bead belt.

GOVERNOR READY FOR PARLEY TO PICK TAX CHIEF

Will Be in City Today to Study Choice.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Gov. Emmerson will be in Chicago today for important conferences concerning the reorganization of the Cook county taxing machinery under the provisions of the Kelly plan bill as well as for emergency relief legislation.

MR. WHEALAN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

While no definite arrangements had been made last night for a revival of the complete Kelly conference—known by that name because it was called by D. F. Kelly—it is expected that the governor's arrival this morning will signalize the opening of a series of meetings that will last throughout the day and probably will be continued over the week-end and into Monday.

Seeks Cermak-Whealan Parley.

It is understood that Gov. Emmerson desires particularly to confer with Mayor Cermak and President Whealan of the county board. The latter shares equally with the governor in the appointment of the three new tax officials who will replace the two present boards of eight members if the Kelly plan becomes a law.

The governor's visit is considered of the utmost importance in connection with the legislative program for the relief of Cook county and its municipalities. With the tax board reorganization bill awaiting his approval he completely dominates the situation. And it has been reported repeatedly without denial that he has said he will not sign the bill until he is satisfied that the selection of the new officials will be of a character to continue the restoration of public confidence believed to have been begun by the passage of the Kelly plan bill.

Emphasis on Assessor.

Under the Kelly plan Gov. Emmerson and President Whealan each appoint one of the two members of the board of tax appeals and jointly they select the assessor. By far the greater importance is attached to the assessorship and Gov. Emmerson is in a position to insist that his idea of selecting a "hard headed business man" be carried out.

While final word from the governor about his plans was being awaited the question of the assessorship and—in a secondary way—the two appeal memberships was being discussed in a number of small conferences, political and otherwise, that produced no visible result except a list of names that might be considered.

Col. A. A. Sprague	Richard J. Collins
Robt. Isham Randolph	John T. Pirie
Edward L. Ryerson Jr.	J. F. Cornelius
Samuel Insull Jr.	Ezra Warner Jr.
B. M. Winston	Robert F. Carr
Sewell L. Avery

It is expected that this list will be enlarged considerably when the big conferences get to going, and it is believed there are on the list a number of men who would not or could not accept an appointment.

Hurley Not Available.

For example, Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the citizens' committee for the national political conventions this summer, was mentioned by Mayor Cermak as the type of man who would restore not only local but national and even international confidence in the paper of the local governments.

"I appreciate greatly what Mayor Cermak said," said Mr. Hurley, "but I intend to devote every available minute to the conventions."

Commissioner of Public Works Sprague has been under physician's orders not to overwork, and the new assessor would be one of the busiest men in the country. The name of J. F. Cornelius has been proposed because he was a candidate for the board of review in 1928. Mr. Avery is chairman of the mayor's advisory committee, but also is identified with two large business institutions that occupy much of his time. President Collins of the civil service commission, it is said, would not consent to give up the time required by the assessorship.

Whealan Confers with Cermak.

President Whealan, who had been ill, was able to come to the loop during the day and conferred with Mayor Cermak. It was understood that they are in complete agreement upon the necessity of a nonpolitical board. The Democratic organization is said to be so friendly to Edward J. Hughes, elected to the board of review only last year, that its leaders would like to see him named as a member of the board of appeals. But it is reported that even if the Whealan appointment is offered to him, Hughes may decline it in order to meet the demands for a complete "change of hands."

The members of the board of appeals, under the Kelly plan, would not have nearly the power of the members of the present board of review. The assessor, as the legislators put it during the debates at Springfield, would be "nearly the whole works." The board of appeals can review only cases brought before them on complaints and the two members must agree before they can order a change in the figures of the single assessor.

Offer to Buy $20,000,000 in City Tax Warrants Renewed

The Associated Bond and Share corporation, 111 West Washington street, yesterday renewed its offer to the city to buy $20,000,000 worth of 1930 corporate fund tax warrants, paying for them half in cash and half in 1931 school board tax warrants.

B. E. CLEMENTS.

The company posted a $5,000 certified check with Mayor Cermak as evidence of its responsibility, and a meeting of the council finance committee was called for this morning. If the committee decides that the company means business, a special council meeting will be called Monday morning.

Refuses to Name Backers.

The company's offer was given to Controller Szymczak, City Treasurer Kearns, and other city officials yesterday by B. E. Clements. As on former occasions, Clements refused to name the financial backers of his concern.

"We're ready to deal this afternoon," he said, "and we can take more than $20,000,000 worth of the warrants."

The Associated Bond and Share corporation, Mr. Szymczak stated, proposes to buy at least $1,000,000 worth of 6 per cent 1930 corporate fund warrants daily, except Saturdays and Sundays, beginning Tuesday. This is contingent upon the city's accepting half cash and half 4 per cent school board warrants in payment. The city officials set Feb. 11 as the limit for the sales.

"I see nothing to worry about in this deal," said Mayor Cermak. "Of course the school warrants pay only 4 per cent, while ours pay 6 per cent, but the city treasury is frozen with warrants, and I see no difference whether it has 1930 or 1931 warrants in its vaults.

Must Put Up Cash.

"The proposal is here. I don't care if they have an office under their hats, so long as they put up the cash, and they must put up cash to get the warrants."

Other officials said privately that they had doubts that the sale would ever go through. But, they said, the city would not lose anything by authorizing the transaction, and they feared criticism by payless employés if they failed to give the concern an opportunity to make good on its promises.

Clements last appeared in the public eye in 1926. Then, as promoter of the Chicago Coliseum club, he announced that he had arranged a bout between Jack Dempsey, then the heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills, the Negro fighter. The bout was never fought, and Clements made an unsuccessful effort in the courts to restrain Dempsey from meeting Gene Tunney. Before that he had been a promoter of various amusement ventures all over the country.

The Associated Bond and Share corporation was incorporated July 15, 1930, and its stock was listed as a class D or speculative security by the Illinois Securities commission.

Warrants Available at Par.

If the company begins delivery of 1931 school board tax warrants to the city on Tuesday, as was proposed, it will have to buy them at par from the board, its officials said. Except for $400,000 worth held by an investment house, which is also demanding par, the only school tax warrants issued last year are already in the city treasury.

However, the school board is expected to take action Wednesday authorizing the payment of employés and contractors in 1931 warrants of small denomination. All of the surmises on the Associated Bond and Share company's plan of operation have been based on the supposition that the company will pick up these warrants at a discount, to be turned into the city at par.

Mayor Cermak announced yesterday that the pay cuts established by the annual continuation ordinance will save the city $1,120,554 during January.

The mayor is to be asked today to call a special meeting of the city council on Saturday, Jan. 30, to provide out of the city's aggregate of funds a pay day for public school teachers. This action is part of a plan adopted last night by the High School Teachers' association at a meeting at 6 North Michigan avenue.

YOUTHS HELD AS ROBBERS.

Joseph Ellman, 17 years old, 2412 West Ogden avenue, and Frank Manor, 17, of 1717 West Monroe street, caught while trying to rob the Marsicano pharmacy at 2004 Lake street, Melrose Park, a few days ago, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500 each by Police Magistrate Louis Senese of Melrose Park yesterday.

HOW LAWMAKERS HOPE TO CLEAR UP TANGLE OF TAXES

Bonds, Reassessments on Their Program.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Rep. Elmer J. Schnackenberg, one of the house leaders, summarized his views on the financial difficulties of the local governments yesterday as follows:

"The Kelly bill, revamping the local tax machinery, was a necessary step—but it was only one," he said. "Alone it will not restore credit, as I said repeatedly before the bill was passed.

"The troubles of the local governments cannot be eliminated until their credit is restored. Credit cannot be obtained until the people begin to pay their taxes again. The public will not pay as they should until they believe taxes are on the square.

Believe Levies Unfair.

"Thousands upon thousands of real estate owners will refuse to believe that taxes are fairly assessed until personal property pays a larger part of the burden. They believe the 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes unfairly levied and the surest way to convince them that taxes are to be equitable is to iron out the inequalities of the taxes for those three years."

To carry those ideas into effect a plan is being developed by which the legislature would order a reassessment in the county for 1928, 1929, and 1930. The collection of 1930 taxes would be deferred until Oct. 1 and 60 per cent of the 1931 taxes would be funded.

The Schnackenberg joint committee of Cook county legislators, composed of Representatives Swanson, Boyle, Roderick, and Igoe and Senators Barbour, Courtney, Ward, and Heubsch, discussed this plan in Springfield last Wednesday with County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell, M. S. Winning, assistant attorney general; Dewitt Billman of the legislative reference bureau, and N. W. MacChesney, attorney for the Chicago Real Estate board.

Hold Reassessment Is Needed.

The plan was discussed in Chicago again yesterday. It was the opinion of those present that the inequalities in the 1928 and 1929 taxes, which County Judge Jarecki has held make the assessments illegal and void, as well as those of the 1930 taxes, which Judge Williams has ordered reassessed, must be eliminated before public confidence in tax assessments is regained.

The new assessor and board of revision, to be appointed under the Kelly plan, will have no authority to reassess 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes. So, if the real estate owners are to be appeased, the general assembly must act, it is said.

But the reassessment is only a part of the legislative plan. This plan may be briefly summarized as follows:

The 1930 tax assessment is to stand for the present. The delinquency date for this issue was to have been on Jan. 1, but the tax bills have not been issued. These are to be issued as rapidly as possible and a discount of one-half of one per cent a month will be allowed to those who pay before Oct. 1. On that date one-half of the taxes will be due.

Another fourth of the 1930 taxes will be payable Jan. 1, 1933, and the last fourth on April 1, 1933. There will be no funding of the 1930 taxes.

Provisions of Bond Plan.

Any municipality in Cook county is to be given authority to issue bonds for outstanding obligations of 1930. Any taxes paid before bonds are issued may be used for any corporate purpose; but all taxes collected after bonds are issued must be placed in a trust fund.

An estimated 60 per cent of the 1931 tax assessment will be funded. Taxes due the state must be levied and paid; also sufficient taxes to meet funded maturities and interest.

In order that the smaller cities and villages of Cook county may have authority to issue bonds for their 1930 needs, their bonding power will be increased from 2½ to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation. The city has only $30,000,000 left of its bonding power. In order that Chicago may have enough cash it is proposed that 80 per cent of all city corporate taxes for 1931 shall be paid. It is therefore estimated that within Chicago the property owners will pay about 40 per cent of the 1931 taxes.

Installments for 1932 Taxes.

The 1932 taxes as well as the 1931 taxes will be payable in quarterly installments. The first installment for both 1931 and 1932 taxes will be payable on July 1, 1933, so that in the following year the property owners will pay 140 per cent of a normal tax bill for a year.

The 1933 taxes, according to the plan, will be due July 1, 1934.

While the 1930 and 1931 taxes are being collected, it is planned that the 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes shall be reassessed. Those who have overpaid on any of those years will be given credit for the excess on subsequent tax bills.

The proposed funding of the 1930 taxes was discarded because it is too late to attempt it. For the 1931 funding plan there will be less to pay than would be required under the scheme of the governor's tax conference. It proposed that 55 to 60 per cent of the taxes be paid.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL FOR INTEREST BEARING CHECKS FOR SCHOOLS

Gov. Emmerson yesterday signed house bill 39, which makes it possible for the Chicago school board to issue checks for salary due its employés, the checks to be stamped "insufficient funds" and to draw 6 per cent interest. The school board probably will consider this method of payment, possibly as a supplement to the issue of small tax warrants, at its meeting next week, according to Thomas V. Sullivan, attorney for the board.

COUNTY TO LEND FOOD AND FUEL TO ITS EMPLOYES

By order of the county board all county employes who have not received pay for two and one half months, and whose credit at neighborhood stores is exhausted, will be permitted to obtain food, coal, milk and shoes from the county bureau of public welfare. The supplies will be furnished on a loan basis, and are to be paid for when salaries are received.

Similar supplies are available also to mothers on the county pension list, and already nearly half of them have applied. There are 1,965 mothers now on the list. They have not received checks since before Christmas. Mrs. Mary McPartlin, head of the mothers' department of the Juvenile court, said that the store credit of about 50 per cent of them is exhausted. Their supplies also are on a loan basis.

The offer of food and other necessities to county employes was immediately accepted by nearly a dozen families, Joseph L. Moss, bureau head, said yesterday. Many of the employes have been unable to get credit at stores although they have salary credits of more than $300 each with the county treasurer, he said.

POLL CHICAGO BAR FOR STAND ON PROHIBITION

Ballots Are Mailed to 4,000 Lawyers.

Following the example of the American Bar association, which conducted a prohibition referendum seven months ago, the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association yesterday mailed letters to the association's 4,000 members, calling for an expression of opinion on the liquor question.

The referendum was undertaken on petition of 550 members, the managers explained. Following the registration of an overwhelming sentiment against Volsteadism at the American Bar's convention last September, the managers said, the 550 Chicago lawyers submitted a plan asking for a direct vote of the local bar on a resolution calling for outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

Original Plan Changed.

After weeks of consideration, the managers said, it was decided that the petitioners' plan was too circumscribed. A broader plan was therefore devised to enable the members to decide, first, whether a referendum was advisable; and, second, whether the sentiment among Chicago lawyers was wet, moist, or dry.

As finally submitted to the members yesterday, each letter contained two ballots, accompanied by full directions. The first calls only for a vote on whether the referendum shall be held. The count on ballot one will be made first and if a majority is found against the referendum there will be no count on ballot two.

Four Propositions Submitted.

The second ballot carries four propositions, only one of which may be voted for. In the event a member votes for more than one proposition, his ballot will be held invalid. The propositions are as follows:

1. The 18th amendment, the Volstead act, and all orders and regulations for enforcement thereof should be repealed, thereby remitting the subject of prohibition to the sole regulation of the states.

2. The 18th amendment and the Volstead act substantially in its present form should be retained and efforts at its enforcement should be continued.

3. The 18th amendment should be revised so as to give congress power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture, traffic in and transportation of intoxicating liquors within the United States and territories for beverage purposes.

4. The 18th amendment should be retained in its present form and congress should so amend the Volstead act as to permit of the legal manufacture, sale, and transportation of beverages which contain more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, by weight, but which are not intoxicating in fact.

Deadline on Voting Thursday.

Ballots will be accepted only up to 4 p. m. next Thursday and must be sent to the association headquarters, 160 North La Salle street, according to Charles P. Megan, president of the association.

In the American bar's referendum the question was restricted to repeal or retention of the 18th amendment. There were 20,119 ballots cast, of which 14,782 favored repeal.

To ascertain the trend of voting in the Chicago referendum, an inquiry was made last night among the judges of the various courts, as well as among the leaders and the rank and file in the bar association. Each was asked how he voted and why.

The answers indicated an overwhelming sentiment for holding the referendum. They indicated also that a substantial majority favor proposition 1, calling for repeal of the 18th amendment and remittance of liquor control to the states.

Expect Heavy Wet Vote.

Proposition 3, calling for federal control in accordance with the wishes of the individual states, and proposition 4, calling for light wines and beer, will also receive substantial support, the questionnaire indicated. Proposition 2, favoring a continuance of prohibition, will have extremely small support, the answers showed.

Indeed, it was difficult to find any lawyer who would admit casting a ballot for proposition 2. With the deliberate object of establishing a dry strength, a number of bar members of known dry sympathies were called. It was discovered that they were either too busy to vote or were not interested in the poll.

Among the nine appellate judges, for example, six were reached by telephone. Four voted for repeal, one had not made a decision and one was dry.

How Judges Voted.

The vote among the appellate judges was as follows:

JUDGE JOHN J. O'CONNOR—I voted for proposition 1. This prohibition era of crime and corruption has gone far enough. The only remedy is to wipe it off the books and restore the liquor question to the states, where it belongs.

JUDGE DAVID F. MATCHETT—I voted against holding the referendum. I can't see any sense in spending good money to conduct referendums, whose single purpose is to make propaganda for a lost cause. I voted also for proposition 2, to continue prohibition. I am a Hoover Republican. I am a personal and political dry.

JUDGE HUGO M. FRIEND—I voted for the referendum and for repeal. For the referendum because prohibition is a public question and the people have a right to know where the lawyers stand. For repeal because it's a matter of personal liberty. After a long and careful trial prohibition has proved a dismal and expensive failure. Almost any other experiment will be welcome.

JUDGE KICKHAM SCANLAN—I'm against prohibition in principle. Light wines and beer might be a reasonable way out, but I favor outright repeal and restoration of liquor control to the states. I've been in the legal profession forty years and I can say that prohibition is the most tragic legislative experiment ever attempted.

Gridley Studies Ballots.

JUDGE MARTIN M. GRIDLEY—I received the referendum letter, but I haven't examined the ballots yet. I won't know how I will vote until I study the propositions.

JUDGE OSCAR HEBEL—I voted for repeal. This is a government of the majority and prohibition is not a popular measure. That alone justifies repeal.

Probate Judge Henry Horner, a possible Democratic nominee for governor, voted for repeal, he said, on the single principle of state rights.

"The theory of our constitution allocates control of national affairs such as war, tariff, and international policy to the national congress," he said. "It reserves the right of regulating the individual's conduct to the states. By following this theory our country has grown great. By abandoning it, as in the prohibition law, we have threatened our national welfare."

"I voted for state control," said Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court. "Philosophically I am against prohibition. I do not think a man's personal habits are a matter for inhibition by force. Moral suasion should be substituted."

It is expected that the result of the referendum will be made public in about a week. Members of the board of managers who authorized the referendum are William P. Sidley, Harry N. Gottlieb, John R. Guilliams, Benjamin F. Langworthy, Charles O. Rundall, Frankling E. Vaughan, William Beye, Herbert J. Campbell, Henry A. Gardner, George A. Kelly, William C. Wermuth, and the officers of the association.

Al Smith Says It's Impossible to Repeal 18th Amendment

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—There isn't the slightest possibility that the eighteenth amendment will ever be repealed, whatever the prevailing opinion about it, in the opinion of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, 1928 standard bearer of the Democratic party.

In an address to the Hotel Association of New York City at its fifty-third annual dinner here, the former governor, while denouncing the results of prohibition as sharply as ever, disclosed that he had no hope whatever of seeing the amendment removed from the constitution.

Listen to No Arguments.

"I submit for any intelligent body of men that it is impossible to repeal the eighteenth amendment," the governor told the hotel men. "It can't be done. The best you can hope for is another amendment saying that a state, if it so chooses, can come out from under the amendment with its own plan for the control of liquor.

"Thirteen states can block repeal of the present amendment. The dry representatives in congress will listen to no arguments on repeal, but give them a chance so they can go home with some reasonable arguments on a referendum. This question should be submitted in state conventions, as provided in the constitution, letting each state have its own say on its own problems.

"When the eighteenth amendment was adopted the people thought that all you had to do was to forbid something and that no one would do it. We have been at it twelve years, and the President's own commission says prohibition is unenforceable because it lacks public support.

Wets Lack Organized Plan.

"There has been no organized plan to defeat the prohibition law. We have an opposition without a plan—we are just 'against' something.

"I am entirely out of patience with men who hold forth to the effect that prohibition is not a political issue. Why, they are electing county clerks on it! But we can take the whole question and put it in the hands of something other than political parties. Let both parties agree and say, 'All right,' we'll pass it along to the American people and let them decide for themselves."

The former governor said a decision one way or another on the question "would greatly benefit business in this country."

Mr. Smith, who is a director in the Knott Hotel corporation, asserted that the eighteenth amendment had worked great harm to the hotel business. He urged the members of the association to unite in opposing prohibition.

CHECKER STRIKE ENDS; VICTORY WON BY DRIVERS

1,122 Taxicabs Go Back on the Streets.

The strike of 1,700 Checker taxicab drivers ended last night with the drivers winning all of the major points in dispute. The drivers had been on strike for nine days, claiming that exorbitant charges had been made by the company for cab storage, insurance, and minor details. Last night practically all of the 1,122 cabs were back on the streets.

The agreement was reached late in the day following an all day conference participated in by Victor Hirsch, president of the Chicago Taxicab Drivers' Protective association, the drivers' grievance committee; Attorney Emmanuel Eller, representing the drivers; Michael Sokoll, president of the company, and company officials. The new agreement was accepted by a unanimous vote of the drivers.

Seven Points in Agreement.

Seven major points were written into the agreement as follows:

1. The company agrees to reduce the present car storage rates a flat $15 a month—from $70 to $55 for single shift cabs, and $90 to $75 a month for double shift cabs. The new storage scale was set for an indefinite period pending an audit of the company books by two auditors—one to be sent by the drivers' protective association [the drivers' organization formed since the strike began] and the other by the company. On the basis of the audit a new readjustment will be made.

2. Cars taken up by the company within the last 90 days for defalcation on notes will be returned to the owners and an adjustment made.

Drivers Get Recognition.

3. The company will recognize the newly formed protective association.

4. When the drivers return to work the money they owe the company shall not be due until they have worked one week and then only in a sum which shall not "impair the drivers' efficiency.

5. No charges, financial or otherwise, shall be preferred against drivers for failure to work during the strike period.

6. The company, as an economy measure, will have the right to close certain stands to be selected by the company and install telephone boxes in their place.

7. Fines imposed in the past for not paying a month's storage in advance shall be struck off. In place of these fines a fine of $1 shall be assessed if a driver gets a week in arrears.

All minor points of dispute, such as the price charged for cabs and accessories, and the rule forcing drivers to buy gasoline from company garages, will be ironed out following the audit.

Daughter Awarded $36,000 from the Estate of F. W. Peck

Ten years of litigation were ended in the court of Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor yesterday when a jury granted Mrs. Arline Peck Warwick, 2238 Lincoln Park West, a $36,164 verdict against the $1,000,000 estate of her father, the late Commodore Ferdinand Wythe Peck, capitalist and a pioneer Chicagoan.

MRS. ARLINE PECK WARWICK.

Mrs. Warwick had sought the money in various courts since 1921, when she began suit for $45,000 back alimony in a New York City court against her divorced husband, Robert T. Warwick, the actor, whose portrayals of romantic rôles during the first ten years of the century thrilled theatergoers. At that time she was studying abroad for grand opera, and her father, with the authority of a power of attorney, collected the money when it was awarded after a bitterly contested case. Mrs. Warwick alleged that her father did not turn the money over to her.

No Will Left by Father.

Although ill health interrupted her studies, Mrs. Warwick did not return to the United States until after her father's death in 1924. Mr. Peck, who was president of the Chicago Auditorium association, which brought the opera to this city; first vice president of the Columbian Exposition of 1893, and United States Commissioner General to the Paris Exposition in 1900, died without leaving a will.

It had been his wish that his estate be distributed according to statutes governing such cases, and he left a document appointing two of his sons, Ferdinand Jr. and Clarence K. Peck, executors. They then refused to turn over to their sister the alimony payment, which had shrunk to $36,164 because of the expenses of the New York trial, and Probate Judge Henry Horner upheld their action in a ruling given in January, 1931, after long hearings.

The verdict yesterday was given upon Mrs. Warwick's appeal from the probate judge's decision. The appeal was filed by Attorney Emil C. Wetten. The executors, who were represented by Attorney Charles S. Cutting, opposed the appeal.

Divorced From Actor in 1909.

During the hearing Attorney Wetten introduced evidence to show that Mr. and Mrs. Warwick were married in 1902 and were divorced in 1909, when Mrs. Warwick was given the custody of her daughter, Rosalind, now 23 years old, and alimony of $250 a month.

The executors said their sister's alimony had been kept by their father to offset a sum of $64,000 which was charged to her name in a set of elaborate books in which he had kept accounts of the expenditures made for every one of his six children. These accounts, Attorney Wetten argued, were kept by Mrs. Warwick's father merely to show the state of his personal finances and not in the expectation that the money would be repaid.

The estate had been kept intact by the executors pending the settlement of the suit. Under the law Mr. Peck's widow will receive one third of the property. The other legatees include Mrs. Warwick and the executors and Mrs. Charles Simms of Dayton, O., another daughter, and two other sons, Walter and Spaulding, also of Dayton. Each will receive one sixth of the property remaining after their mother's portion has been deducted.

Burglars Loot Evanston Home While Family Is Out

Burglars broke into the home of Charles T. Ozmun, 824 Sheridan road, Evanston, while members of the family were out last evening and carried away clothing, jewelry and silverware valued at a total of about $1,500. Among the stolen articles was a $500 bracelet belonging to Mrs. Ozmun.

Salesman Seized When He Fails to Cash Scrip

Roy G. Carver, 915 North Mayfield avenue, a salesman, was arrested yesterday on a charge that he failed to make any return on school scrip which he promised to cash for Robert C. COMPROMISE TARIFF PROPOSAL MADE BY SENATOR VANDENBERG

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A new tariff proposal under which the President would retain all of his present authority under the flexible provision of the tariff act of 1930 and under which congress would assume control of rate making in the free list, as provided in the Democratic tariff bill proposed in the house, was laid before the senate finance committee in executive session this morning by Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.].

Senator Vandenberg offered his measure as a compromise to avoid the certain presidential veto that awaits the house bill should it be passed. The house bill would strip the President of his authority to raise or lower existing tariff rates 50 per cent upon the advice of the tariff commission, a feature upon which President Hoover insisted when the Hawley-Smoot tariff act was passed.

Senator Vandenberg objected to the house bill on the ground that when congress is not in session no relief from tariff rates found to be unjust could be obtained. He also objected to the existing law, as under it the tariff commission and the President cannot act upon duty free articles, such as copper and oil, the Supreme court having held that congress cannot delegate its taxing authority to that extent.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The estate of Ella Wendel filed a petition in the Surrogate's court this afternoon for a supplementary citation in connection with the probating of the will which disposes of an estate estimated at $50,000,000.

Every person who ever advanced a claim to any portion of the late Miss Wendel's estate is named in the list.

The citation was obtained by George Flint Warren Jr. of 256 Broadway, counsel to the executors named in the will.

BUSINESS TELLS U. S. TO CUT COST OF GOVERNMENT

Then It Can Raise Taxes if Needed.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Organized business set out today to arouse the country to insistence upon a balancing of the federal budget, more by the reduction of expenditures than by increase in taxes.

FRED W. SARGENT.
[Matzene Photo.]

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States voted to submit to a referendum of its member organizations, comprising the leading business men of the country a program of drastic retrenchment of government expenses and moderate nonretroactive tax increases.

Furthermore, it was emphasized, there must be retrenchment before consideration of any tax increases.

Worm Has Turned.

There was every evidence at the session of the board that the worm has turned at last against the perpetuation of the vast system of paternalistic, subventionary, and regulative activities costing billions of dollars which has come to overshadow the functions of the central government as conceived by the founders.

The program to be submitted to American business was framed by a committee of which Fred W. Sargent of Chicago, president of the North Western railway, is the chairman.

"The wide gap between government revenues and expenditures must be closed," the committee's report declared. "But no sound fiscal program can be developed without first answering this fundamental question: To what extent can and should the gap be narrowed by drastic reduction of expenditures, consistent with the maintenance of really essential government activities?

"There is and can be no satisfactory tax program to support the government in a continuation of the high level of expense to which it became accustomed in the years of inflated prosperity and large treasury surpluses."

Offer Specific Conclusions.

The specific conclusions advanced by the committee are:

1—That primary emphasis should be placed on balancing the budget by reduction of governmental expenses, not by increased taxation.

2—That some moderate tax increases may be necessary, but that their nature and extent should be determined only after a realistic effort to reduce expenses has shown exactly how much additional revenues is indispensable.

3—That main dependence must be placed upon borrowing in the current fiscal year, that decreased dependence should be placed upon borrowing in the next fiscal year and that efforts to balance the budget should definitely assure that result by the 1934 fiscal year.

4—That no increases in taxation should be retroactive.

5—That any increased taxes should be limited to a definitely stated emergency period.

Discusses Increases.

6—That any tax increases found to be necessary should be confined to moderate increases in the normal and surtax rates of the income tax; reduction of personal credits under the income tax, so that a larger number of citizens will contribute to the expenses of the government, and excise taxes of moderate rate upon a number of articles of wide use but not of first necessity.

7—That any increase in the corporation income tax is highly undesirable, but, if unavoidable, it should be moderate.

8—That no increases should be made in estate taxes.

9—That the tax rate on capital gains should be reduced to a low flat rate, with corresponding reduction in the rate for deduction of capital losses, without distinction, based on the time of holding investments.

10—That no general sales or turnover tax should be adopted.

11—That immediately after the emergency situation has been provided for there should be developed a long range program of federal finance, embracing more strict control of future expenditures and greater stability of revenues.

Oppose Building Programs.

The committee condemned programs of expansion of public works construction to relieve unemployment, pronouncing them without "sound economic basis under present conditions."

"The money for such purposes procured by taxation," said the committee, "would be abstracted from numerous channels where it would otherwise be spent, employed, and invested in ways more normal, more widespread, and better calculated to stimulate business recovery."

The committee pointed out that the government has reduced the war debt four billion more than was scheduled, so that a large amount of the deficit can be financed by borrowing without any falling behind in debt retirement as originally provided for. It cautioned, however, against borrowing to such an extent as to lower the price of outstanding government bonds or unduly to raise interest rates on new issues or decrease capital available for business.

Retrenchment Needed Most.

"It is significant," said Mr. Sargent tonight, "that a business men's committee, after studying the financial condition of the government, says that sharp retrenchment of expenditures should be the first step. That is, until it has reduced its standard of living to a level consistent with the times, the government should not expect the country to support a program of even moderately increased taxes.

"These men know what the country and business are going through. They know the serious obstacles which increased taxes place in the path to business recovery. In their conviction that the government must be supported they are willing to support genuinely necessary increases in taxes, but only when they have been given convincing evidence by congress that not a single dollar now is being spent or appropriated for the future which could be left in the pocket of the taxpayer.

Fight Retroactive Tax.

"That is the committee's reasoned judgment. I hope the business life of the country will accept it, but, more important, that business men and the people generally will leave no doubts in the minds of congress that they demand and intend to have governmental economy of a severity with which we have had no acquaintance for a decade."

While approving in the main the treasury fiscal program the committee took strong exception to the retroactive application of tax increases to the incomes of individuals and corporations earned in 1931.

"Unforeseen taxes for which no advance provision can be planned are most burdensome and difficult to meet," said the committee report. "This is doubly true of the last year, which was one of declining incomes and increased financial calls upon taxpayers, both individual and corporate. No retroactive taxes of any kind should be imposed. Notwithstanding the nature of the emergency we believe other ways should and can be found to meet it."

While reduction of expenses is strongly urged by the administration and by leaders in both parties this may accomplish much or little, depending upon how seriously congress considers the necessity for reduction, the committee observed.

Former Attorney General Assails State Legislatures

LAWMAKERS' APATHY ASSAILED BY WICKERSHAM

Blamed for Laxity in Enforcement.

George W. Wickersham, former United States attorney general and chairman of President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement, attacked the apathy of state legislatures toward proposed improvements of criminal procedure last night, saying they "are dominated by lawyers, a large proportion of whose practice consists in the defense of persons charged with crime."

"They seldom display any interest in the enactment of legislation which would remove technical obstacles to trial or conviction, or would facilitate the prompt and efficient administration of criminal justice," he declared. Mr. Wickersham spoke before delegates to a meeting of the American Law institute, of which he is president, at a dinner given in their honor by the Chicago Bar association in its rooms at 160 North La Salle street.

Prepare Model Code.

Qualified scholars have been employed by the institute to prepare a model code of criminal procedure, he said, but the usefulness of the code depends upon convincing legislatures of different states of the need for the reforms embodied in the code.

"In opposition to every improvement in our penal laws and their effective administration, there is first an immense inertia to which lawyers contribute in large measure, and next there is a highly organized political and criminal network which can be overcome only by an equally well organized, determined, militant public demand," he said.

Bar Must Take Initiative.

"The progress of any great reform is slow. But the initial steps in reforming our laws and procedure must be taken by the bar. Lawyers must map out the course to be pursued. They alone possess the requisite technical knowledge. But the accomplishment of the end desired largely will depend upon the laity."

Mr. Wickersham added that he considered the Baumes law of New York state, which prescribes life imprisonment for fourth offenders, "is based upon a mistaken philosophy and which public opinion is rapidly coming to condemn," presumably, because of its severity.

Gordon J. Laing, dean of the graduate school of the University of Chicago, spoke on "The Training of a Lawyer."

NEW YORK'S SCHOOL TEACHERS CALLED ON TO FEED THEIR PUPILS

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—School teachers throughout the city will be asked to increase their contributions to the school relief fund, aiding needy school children, according to plans discussed today at a meeting of 100 representatives of teachers' organizations with Supt. William J. O'Shea and other officials of the board of education.

The fund is now receiving $110,000 a month from teachers who are giving an average of 1½ per cent of their monthly salaries. Some of the teachers are contributing as high as 3 per cent.

The fund has received $438,000 since the opening of the present term of school and had a $92,000 balance from last year's fund. With expenditures to date of $430,000, the balance on hand is $100,000.

LAUNCH INQUIRY INTO PURCHASES OF NURSES' HOME

Commissioner Charles H. Weber yesterday began an inquiry into alleged extravagant purchases with county funds by officials of the Cook County School of Nursing. Commissioner Weber on Thursday was appointed chairman of a committee to investigate the purchase of $50 love seats, $200 twin bed, and other articles of furniture by Miss Laura Logan, dean of nurses.

County Auditor Lee J. Howard was directed to study expenditure records of the nursing school at 509 South Honore street and to report next Tuesday. Dean Logan has also been asked to appear.

County Attorney Hayden Bell was asked to ascertain if the county may not henceforth have direct supervision over expenditures for the nursing school. Hitherto the county has given the school approximately $100,000 a month and the school heads have made their own purchases of supplies, food, and the like.

The committee also ordered an investigation of a large penthouse to be built at a cost of $25,000 on the new nursing school for the use of Dean Logan. The penthouse has 7 room, 3 baths, and a maid's room.

DIES AFTER LEAP INTO LAGOON.

Jacob Daniel, 82 years old, 3133 North 76th court, Elmwood Park, died of pneumonia in the Cook county hospital yesterday as a result of exposure he suffered on Tuesday when he plunged into the lagoon in Lincoln park in an attempt to drown himself.

SELL NO COPIES OF WICKERSHAM CRIME REPORT

Cost Taxpayers $71,000 to Print Board's Work.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Not a single complete set of the reports compiled by the Wickersham commission during its two years of existence has been sold, it was disclosed today in the annual report of the public printer for 1931.

While 1,923 copies of the 2,916 page document have been distributed as congressional documents, the superintendent of documents still has on hand all of the 300 sets specially printed and bound in five volumes to be sold at the cost price of $6.75 a set.

Sets for Commission.

The cost of printing and binding the five volumes, both for congressional distribution and for sale, was $23,289.67, the report said. In addition, a number of sets were printed for the commission itself, bringing the total cost of setting forth the commission's findings in print to nearly $71,500.

All but $4.66 of an appropriation of $2,500,000 was used for congressional printing during the year, the report stated, although members of congress paid $61,257.91 personally for presenting more than 14,000,000 copies of their speeches to be sent to constituents. Part of the cost of mailing the speeches was borne by the government, however, as the year's bill for printing franked envelopes amounted to $58,767.30.

36,000 Copies of Record.

There are only 636 paid subscribers to the Congressional Record, the report showed, although 36,000 copies are printed and distributed free every day. The total cost of printing the Record for the three sessions of the 71st congress was $1,582,816.

The report estimated that "one-third of the Record for the last session was devoted to matter other than the actual proceedings and debates in congress."

Nearly $15,000,000 worth of printing was done for the various governmental agencies and congress during the year, the report disclosed.

HOPES TO SELL SOME.

Mr. Wickersham, who was in Chicago last night for a law institute meeting, was asked about the failure to sell the Wickersham report. "Very few persons know the government has the report for sale," he replied. "Publish the fact that they are for sale and maybe we can sell some."

SMOKE AND LACK OF WIND COMBINE TO DARKEN CITY

Premature darkness enveloped parts of Chicago twice yesterday as the result of smoke, clouds, and virtually no wind.

Just before noon the downtown district took on the appearance of night. Office buildings, automobiles and street cars were fully illuminated. Heavy smoke and low clouds, which seemed to carry the threat of a storm, plus a one mile an hour wind, were responsible, C. A. Donnel, forecaster, said. Again at 4 o'clock the smoke and cloudy pall appeared, this time north from the river.

Weather conditions in Chicago were again moderate yesterday. Today carries the prospect of rain, Mr. Donnel said last night. Tomorrow will be fair and colder, he predicted.

Joker in the Gallery Cramps the House's Style

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A voice evidently belonging to someone with a box office eye spoiled the dignified effect of the house of representatives yesterday.

The session was in one of those utterly dull periods when only a handful of members remain on the floor. There was a moment of quiet. From the gallery floated down:

100 Million New York City Relief Notes Oversubscribed

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The 100 million dollar issue of 6 per cent city corporate stock notes, printed to pull New York City out of the hole for the time being, was considerably oversubscribed when the banking syndicate marketing them closed its books at noon today, and even before the books closed they were quoted at a premium on the bond market.

The bankers were delighted with the rush of investors to take advantage of the highest interest rate the city has ever offered, and one banker asserted the success of the offering would "break the investment jam."

This success, he said, would lend confidence to all other municipalities embarrassed for money, encourage them to put their finances in order, and revive interest in securities investments.

Quotations Increase.

This afternoon the securities were quoted as follows: 1937 maturities, 100¾ bid, 101⅛ asked; 1936, 100⅝ bid, 101 asked; 1935, 100½ bid, 100⅞ asked.

At just about the time the bankers were closing their books the board of estimate and the sinking fund commission met at city hall and ratified the terms of the agreement between the banking group and the city administration. This approval, necessary to make the issue legal, had been assured the bankers at a meeting last night in Mayor James J. Walker's office.

Revolving Credit Available.

The board of estimate also approved the establishment by the bankers of a revolving credit of 151 millions for the city. Controller Berry said this credit will place at the city's disposal 302 millions during the year, if it is needed.

Orders for the notes were received by the New York banks from every state in the country in lots ranging from a few bonds for individuals to $5,000,000 or more for institutions, such as savings banks and life insurance companies.

Banks Keep Half.

Under the agreement with the city, the banks which underwrote the issue were privileged to keep 50 per cent of their allotments, and most of them took advantage of this provision.

The sale, the first step in the plan drafted by the bankers and the city administration to relieve the city's financial embarrassment, started even before the board of estimate and the sinking fund commission had approved the interest rate and maturities of the notes.

Gets Divorce and Marries Brother-in-Law at Once

Canton, Ill., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Matilda Nichols of Farmington was granted a divorce in County court at Lewistown today and went immediately to the clerk's office, where she secured a license to marry James H. Nichols, brother of her former husband. Desertion was charged in the divorce action, but it was learned that her former mate is serving a term in the state prison at Joliet following conviction on a felony charge in Peoria.

BANDIT FIRES BY ACCIDENT.

Witt Guilty of Murder; Death Penalty Required

Lebanon, Ind., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Charles Vernon Witt was convicted of first degree murder tonight under a statute that makes the death penalty mandatory. The 27 year old Bainbridge, Ind., man was accused as an accomplice in the robbery of an Indianapolis grocery store during which Lafayette A. Jackson, chain store president, was killed last May 27.

Given Life Sentence.

Princeton, Ind., Jan. 22.—(AP)—William Wedding, 19, of Evansville, was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment tonight for slaying, last Nov. 13, Harve McGarrah, Princeton restaurant proprietor.

DEATH TRUNK OF RUTH JUDD GOES BEFORE JURORS

Defense Fails to Exclude Ghastly Exhibits.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The blood spotted trail of Winnie Ruth Judd's trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles and the revelation of their contents were described in her trial here today.

Step by step the journey of the trunks containing the bodies of Agnes Anne Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson as baggage in a railway car was described.

Then A. B. Anderson, Los Angeles railroad official, dramatically described how the larger of the trunks was opened to reveal among stained blankets, the head of a woman. Removal of the blanket, he said, disclosed her negligee clad body.

Admitted After Argument.

This trunk had just been placed in evidence after several hours of argument over the admissibility of it and its companion pieces of baggage as evidence.

The second, which carried part of the dismembered body of Hedvig Samuelson, was excluded, but will be reserved for use should Mrs. Judd be tried on the second murder charge.

Mrs. Judd was the least interested person when the trunk was carried into the courtroom. With a blood stain showing plainly on one corner the trunk was lifted directly over her head to reach a point of vantage near the witness stand.

She stared toward the spectators and gave no more heed than she did to testimony.

Argue Long Over Suitcase.

She was equally uninterested when attorneys consumed the entire morning arguing, with the jury absent, over admissibility of this suitcase in which the state contends Mrs. Judd personally carried Miss Samuelson's torso on the overnight trip to the coast.

Over strenuous objections of defense attorneys, who contended it had no part in the charge of murdering Mrs. Leroi, the suitcase was accepted in evidence together with a hat box in which was found a small caliber automatic pistol Mrs. Judd has admitted using to kill her two best friends.

John Washington, Negro head porter at Union station, testified he carried the suitcase and hat box to a chair car on the Golden State limited westbound on June 18 at Mrs. Judd's request.

Defense Fights Stubbornly.

H. J. Mapes, baggageman on the Golden State limited, told of an "offensive odor" he noticed about the trunks identified as Mrs. Judd's and of reporting their condition to his superiors in Los Angeles.

The speed made on the first day of testimony taking, when eleven state witnesses were heard, had slackened considerably today. Defense counsel were stubbornly contesting every point advanced by the state, whether in exhibits or testimony. Only two witnesses had been heard to mid-afternoon recess.

Immediately thereafter George Brookner, baggage delivery clerk in the Southern Pacific station, Los Angeles, testified that Mrs. Judd and her brother, B. J. McKinnell, had tried to claim the trunks containing the women's bodies on Monday, Oct. 19.

He said he, too, had noticed an "offensive odor" coming from the trunks and said they had "dripped a spot of blood the size of a dinner plate" within two hours of their arrival.

AURORA TAKES FIVE HOLIDAYS TO CALM DOWN

Expect Recovery After "Breathing Spell."

Aurora's business houses, banks, factories and stores—except drug stores and groceries—were closed for five days by proclamation of Mayor Conrad M. Bjorseth yesterday. The action was taken on the recommendation of fifty business and civic leaders who held an all night session preceding the proclamation.

Heavy runs on the five Aurora banks, according to Mayor Bjorseth, made the business holiday advisable. In his proclamation he termed the measure "a five-day emergency business moratorium." A similar holiday in Urbana this week lasted only forty-eight hours after city officials found the brief business lull produced the desired effect.

More than 400 business men held a mass meeting shortly before noon to perfect an organization that is to bring back confidence to Aurora. W. M. Willett Sr., vice president and general manager of the utilities company, was elected to head the group.

"Our banks are sound," said Mr. Willett, "and can pay out 100 cents on the dollar if necessary, but there has been a steadily growing uneasiness among depositors. This feeling has been the result of two bank failures in Joliet and one in Elgin recently. There is no doubt that if we have a breathing spell our city will stage a full recovery."

Stop Lighting of W. Park Building in Economy Move

William R. James, president of the west park board, said yesterday that he would request the board's chief engineer to discontinue the night illumination of the administration building in Garfield park as an economy move. It was pointed out to Mr. James that the floodlighting seemed inconsistent with the board's inability to pay the salaries of its employés, who have been given tax anticipation warrants for only one month's salary since last July 1. The electricity for the lighting was generated by the park board's plant.

Heavy Engineering Awards for Week Total $16,659,000

The Engineering News-Record estimates contracts for heavy engineering construction awarded in the United States for the last week at $16,659,000, a decrease of about $10,000,000 from the preceding week and nearly $30,000,000 below the volume for the same week last year.

HIT BY SLUMP, MANY RICH MEN QUIT THEIR CLUBS

Resignations Are Heavy in New York.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Leading New York clubs, whose rosters include some of the wealthiest and most prominent persons in the country, made known today that notwithstanding their resources they have felt the pinch of the depression.

Resignations have been heavier than normal at the Racquet and Tennis club; at the New York Athletic club; at the Harvard club, and at the Columbia University club and at others. The Harvard club has lost about 7 per cent of its members.

The general comment was the result of the announcement, made public today, that the Automobile Club of America, oldest organization of its kind in the United States will be dissolved because of numerous withdrawals of members.

Indicates Forced Economy.

None of the organizations for which comment was made today was expected to close, however. The attitude of club members and officers who expressed opinions was rather that growing resignations were merely an indication of temporarily enforced economy, even on the part of some millionaires.

At the Union League club, the New York Yacht club, the Century club, and the University club less definite statements of the effect of the slump were forthcoming. The tenor of the announcements were that these organizations had been "fortunate." In some instances this term was explained by a statement that resignations had occurred, but had been balanced by election of new members from the waiting list. No official comment on the current situation was made at the Yale or Princeton clubs.

Note of Optimism Sounded.

The one genuine note of optimism was sounded, not at any of the entrenched strongholds of wealth and position, but at the bridge clubs. They have lost members, but have gained new ones sufficient to compensate for the resignations. This includes the Knickerbocker Whist club and the Cavendish club.

"We attribute this to the fact that bridge club dues are relatively small," said George Reith, secretary of the Knickerbocker Whist club, "and in addition to the fact that bridge is a relaxation. People play it to forget their financial troubles. The growing popularity of contract has helped matters."

The Engineers' club, through a representative, said there had been some resignations, but not as many as might have been expected in view of the number of engineers who have been deprived of work by cessation of building operations.

The New York Athletic club, with about 7,000 members, has lost from ten to 15 per cent in membership since the depression began, an official said.

Outside New York in the golf and country clubs of Westchester county and Long island similar conditions were said to prevail.

FIND BOOTLEGGER AND HOLDUP MAN SLAIN IN GARY

The body of Louis Dominick, 42 years old, 3407 Watling street, Gary, bootlegger and stickup man, was found last night at Taney street and 21st avenue in Gary. He had been killed with a shotgun.

Several days ago Dominick made an appointment to meet Forest Clark, 1516 West 5th avenue, Gary, collector for an automobile finance company, and beat and shot him, declaring he was tired of being bothered about owing money. Clark is now in St. Catherine's hospital, East Chicago.

According to the Gary police, Dominick was at liberty in bonds of $15,000, awaiting trial on a charge of holding up an East Chicago drink parlor.

LAVAL REVEALS SECRET PROTEST ON REPARATIONS

Declares German Stand Is "Unacceptable."

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 22. — The revelation that France has made a diplomatic protest to Germany over the stand taken by Chancellor Bruening on the reparations question was made by Premier Laval in the chamber of deputies today during his exposition of the government's foreign policy.

His clear, forceful statement of the case won him a substantial vote of confidence—by a majority of 41—although he failed in an impassioned plea for a patriotic union of all parties to back up the government. Most of the radicals voted against him, but this was purely an academic gesture and it was evident that a de facto truce prevails between the government majority and the biggest opposition group.

Serves Warning on U. S.

In the course of his long exposition Laval again served notice on Washington that no payments by France on her war debt to America could be expected unless Germany continued her payments.

The United States was mentioned one other time during the day. After Laval had ended his address, Aristide Briand's old enemy, Franklin Bouillon, gave the deputies the "lowdown" on the United States. He explained that the America of Washington and Lafayette had vanished and now there is only an agglomeration of "Germans, Jews, and Irish," and the government is under the thumb of "German-American finance."

Laval Lets Out Secrets.

Laval, in his speech, revealed neither the terms of his protest to Germany nor the exact manner in which it was made. It is understood that the protest was made only a few days ago and was kept secret to avoid inflaming public opinion in both countries.

Circumstances leading up to the event were described by Laval. In doing so he had to let another diplomatic cat out of the bag—that Chancellor Bruening had notified Sir Horace Rumbold, British ambassador to Germany, that Germany would not be able to resume payments under the Young plan when the Hoover moratorium ends.

Statement Is Misrepresented.

But the next day, Jan. 9, the Reuter's correspondent in Berlin flashed the story that Bruening had told Sir Horace that Germany is "determined to make no more reparations payments."

This immediately provoked Finance Minister Flandin's statement that no Frenchman could tolerate such action. Alarmed by the Paris reaction, Bruening called in the reporter of the official German news agency, Wolff's on the evening of Jan. 9 and in a long interview explained that he had not meant that Germany refused to continue reparations payments, but simply that she is unable to.

Says Engagements Are Final.

Engagements undertaken by Germany are final, Laval warned, and "there can be no general new arrangement. Some relief is possible, but there can be no question of a moratorium.

"I have made it clear before that we would insist on payment of the unconditional annuity. Today I renew this insistence. It is certain that intransigeance and the invoking of unjustifiable eventualities will only strengthen among us a feeling of independence and national dignity. The government will not lack either the necessary patience or indispensable firmness. We are ready to collaborate for the restoration of Europe, on condition that the last moral vestige is not banished from international relations.

German Position Clear.

"There is no mistaking the German objective. There is no longer any question of applying the Young plan. The chancellor affirmed that he does not know whether his country will be able to resume reparations payments before many years. He does not juridicially denounce the plan. He declares he is unable to pay any more.

"France cannot abandon her treaty rights. They represent for her only partial reparations for damage inflicted. I have made through diplomatic channels a protest in the name of the government without waiting to learn the sentiment of the chamber. The German thesis is not acceptable to us and is certainly not acceptable to the other creditor nations.

Hints at Sanctions.

"I have no need to tell the chamber that if the German thesis takes the character indicated by texts we are discussing, the French government will not abandon any of the prerogatives of its predecessors."

Wild applause from the right and respectful silence from the left greeted this ambiguous reference to possible sanctions.

Near the end of his speech Laval referred to the invitation from Prime Minister MacDonald to hold conversations and he hinted he would soon give a favorable answer. It is understood that for certain reasons—MacDonald has not yet returned Laval's official visit to London—Laval will not go to London, but will meet his British colleague at some half-way point—Boulogne or Folkestone.

Burned in Gas Explosion

FOREIGN POWERS WARN JAPANESE TO "BE CAREFUL"

Say They Can't Permit Action in Shanghai.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 22.—Authorities of the international settlement, including representatives of the United States and Great Britain, today stepped into the quarrel between Chinese and Japanese residents of Shanghai. They warned the Japanese that any attempt by them to fulfill their threat to take "appropriate steps" to force an end to the anti-Japanese boycott would result in international complications.

The action of the foreign authorities followed an ultimatum which was delivered to the Chinese mayor of Shanghai by Kuramatsu Mural, Japanese consul general, and Rear Admiral Koichi Shiosawa, commander of the Japanese Yangtze naval squadron, demanding fulfillment of certain conditions.

Demand Chinese Apology.

These conditions included dissolution of the Anti-Japanese association, payment of medical expenses for Japanese victims of riots in the past several days, apology for their injuries and arrest of the guilty persons. To support these demands Japan dispatched two cruisers, an aircraft carrier, and a number of destroyers carrying a large landing party to Shanghai from Kure. These forces are due here tomorrow.

The foreign authorities, fearing serious trouble, since the Chinese resent the ultimatum, considering that the Japanese were responsible for the rioting, called on Admiral Shiosawa on his flagship and asked him for a statement of his intentions. They pointed out that the international settlement is governed under a treaty among the foreign powers, hence they could not permit Japan to take any independent action within this territory. Should Japan persist, they warned the admiral, sharp reactions from the American and European governments would be certain.

Says He Acts on Tokio Orders.

The admiral replied that he was acting under direct orders from the Japanese government to stop the anti-Japanese movement in Shanghai, but he finally agreed that, should he consider forceful measures necessary, he would first consult the foreign officials.

Meanwhile, Chiang Kai-shek, who was forced out of the presidency by the Cantonese faction five weeks ago, returned to Nanking today to take an active part in the government. He went into conference with representatives of the Nanking and Canton factions to consider steps to prevent a collapse of China's credit. Bankruptcy has been averted temporarily by the action of the Chinese bankers in advancing loans for two months, in return for which the government has pledged a drastic economy program.

BANDS ARE OFF BOSTON BUDGET; BANQUETS, TOO

Boston, Mass., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Band concerts, luncheons and dinners became nonessential municipal activities for 1932 today, when Mayor Curley announced that the appropriation budget will not contain the customary $30,000 provided for such purposes.

His decision means that the Sunday afternoon concerts on the common and other recreational centers will not be included in the park department program of entertainment. It has been customary to appropriate $10,000 for concerts.

A saving of $20,000 will be made by the elimination of the luncheons and dinners for distinguished visitors and by the abandonment of the policy of featuring banquets as distinctive features of holiday celebrations.

May Recover

Mrs. Matilda Henchert, 36 years old, 937 Oakdale avenue, who was seriously burned in an explosion in her building when she turned on gas jets in her flat in an effort to commit suicide early yesterday morning, was reported to have a chance for recovery last evening. She was moved to the county hospital from the Illinois Masonic hospital. Her daughter, Minnie, 13 years old, who was burned less seriously, told the Sheffield avenue police her mother tried to end her life by gas while despondent over a quarrel with a friend. The explosion is believed by Chief Alvin Brandt of the 13th battalion to have been caused when neighbors in the building, who detected the gas, rang the door bell of the Heichert apartment, the electrical contact setting off the fumes.

BRITISH WARNED YANKS DO NOT FORGIVE DEBTORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Millions of Americans still cling to the idea that money borrowed under solemn undertaking should be repaid and any European notion that they are shakeable from this simple doctrine is a mistake. This warning was issued today by Francis Powell, president of the American Chamber of Commerce, in London, in an address to the British business men at a luncheon.

FRANCIS POWELL.
[Acme Photo.]

Powell, talking on "America Turning the Corner," said that out of a multitude of disappointments arising from the depression "the biggest is the thought that any one should expect us to forgive our debtors."

Outlining the purposes of the Hoover credit corporation and citing the mounting American taxation, Powell rapped the anti-American press in Britain for its attacks.

"The attitude of certain sections of the British press toward the United States and the constant slurring of President Hoover are greatly resented by Americans in London and America," he said. "To the Americans who believe that debts should be paid the statement of Chancellor Bruening of Germany is startling. If the German scheme to pay no further reparations is carried out, the repercussions in the United States will be serious. Americans do not understand being called on to forgive their debtors."

BRITISH CABINET SPLITS ON TARIFF, BUT WILL STICK

Members Given Right to Vote Against It.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The British cabinet split wide open on the subject of tariffs today. Prime Minister MacDonald, in an effort to preserve at least a semblance of national unity, immediately took the revolutionary step of abandoning the historic British doctrine of cabinet responsibility and allowed the cabinet to agree to disagree.

VISCOUNT SNOWDEN.
[Acme Photo.]

The dissident ministers will be permitted to vote and speak against the policy of the majority of the cabinet, and, as far as the tariff, at least, is concerned, there is no cabinet policy.

Submit Tariff Report.

This decision was arrived at after a two and one half hour cabinet meeting today. The committee which has been investigating the balance of trade submitted a majority report in favor of moderate tariffs and the establishment of a tariff commission to devise graded taxes for certain industries before the cabinet.

Members of the committee were Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for colonies; Viscount Snowden, lord privy seal; Sir John Simon, foreign secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary.

It was learned that all but Viscount Snowden, Sir Herbert, and Runciman favored the tariffs. The latter was on the fence. After a long discussion it became clear that if a cabinet tariff policy was to be adopted a series of resignations must necessarily take place. In view of the serious international crisis, in which Britain's unity is an essential factor in recovery, it was agreed to allow a free vote in parliament.

became clear that if the tariff policy to be adopted is to be that of the cabinet, a series of resignations must necessarily take place. In view of the serious international crisis, in which Britain's unity is an essential factor in recovery, it was agreed to allow a free vote in parliament.

Situation About the Same.

As a matter of fact, this does not alter the situation at all. There is an overwhelming majority in parliament in favor of moderate tariffs, and the recalcitrant ministers will simply be allowed to salve their souls by a formal vote against a policy which is sure to be carried.

At the same time no one expects that the dissenting ministers can long continue as members of the cabinet. David Lloyd George, former Liberal leader, who recently returned from a sea voyage with restored health, is preparing to lead a raging campaign in favor of the maintenance of free trade, and he is bound to attract support from some free trade ministers.

Viscount Snowden, who is a neighbor and close friend, is likely to join him, while Sir Herbert is only a chair warmer for Lloyd George in the leadership of the Liberal party.

URGES NEW CURB ON JEWS GOING INTO HOLY LAND

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Lewis French, Palestine land commissioner, the London Jewish Chronicle said today, has called for a further curtailment of Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Mr. French, the paper said, indorsed the conclusions drawn by Sir John Hope Simpson, that the land available for cultivation is very small in territory and recommended that the British government adopt the land transfer ordinance, prohibiting land purchase in Palestine by Jews.

Reveal Terms of Agreement for Extending German Credits

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—A satisfactory provisory agreement on the gradual repayment of more than a billion dollars that foreign bankers loaned to German banks and industries has finally been reached, American banking circles in Berlin announced today. Bankers of the various countries have completed their work on an "agreement for further maintenance of short term banking credits in Germany." Participation of American banks in these credits approximates $600,000,000.

The credits are the so-called "standstill" loans which the lenders agreed to leave in the country.

The new agreement was submitted for approval to national creditor committees today. After they accept it, a committee of six bankers, already appointed, will meet quarterly to supervise and organize repayments of the loans and carry on all negotiations with the Reichsbank. They will also keep an eye on Germany's financial situation.

May Ask 10 Per Cent of Loans.

Foreign banks, according to the agreement, have the right to demand that 10 per cent of their loans which were in German hands on Oct. 8 be returned by March 1. The Germans point out that during these past months they have refunded $300,000,000 to creditors and state that this amply covers payments which would ordinarily fall due on March 1.

The new agreement nominally prolongs the short term credits until Feb. 28, 1933, but its conditions pave the way for a further extension. Thus the cash advances to banks will be repaid in four half-yearly rates of equal amounts. Industrial debtors are required to pay up their loans at the rate of 15 per cent semi-annually for two years, after which their rate of payment must be increased.

The agreement also provides special precautions to prevent the possibility of a breakdown of German currency through large payments of foreign monies. In certain cases money repaid must be reinvested in Germany and kept there for five years.

Trust Fund Fixed.

American bankers succeeded in enforcing their plan for a trust fund to obtain security for part of the cash advances. German banks must pay the equivalent of 15 per cent of the credits they took up into the trust fund, against which trust certificates will be issued to the creditors. They will bear 6 per cent interest and are to be amortized within ten years.

Foreign creditors, it is provided, can cancel the agreement before the year expires if its effectiveness is seriously threatened by events in Germany or through pressure on Germany from foreign countries. It can also be canceled if a moratorium is proclaimed or should the Reichsbank fail to obtain a prolongation of its rediscount credits.

TWO SLAIN AS SPAIN CRUSHES RED REBELLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Jan. 22.—Two persons were killed in street fights today at Malaga as the army of the republic crushed the red rebellion which yesterday placed more than a dozen towns in Catalonia in control of radicals.

The revolt today was put down mercilessly and effectively. The rebels fled in disorder from all their centers but one. Their last stronghold is the hill of San Cornello, above the mining town of Figols. Troops entered Figols tonight and tomorrow they will attack the rebels, fortified above with arms and about a ton of dynamite. The rebels are reported to be holding mine owners as hostages.

Serious riots were reported at Malaga this afternoon as a sequel to communist disturbances. Troops and civil guards are patrolling the streets and machine guns are fixed at strategic points. Automobiles conveying tourists from Gibraltar were forced to return because of skirmishes in the suburbs of Malaga. Motor bus services were compelled to stop at Torremolinos, about five miles from the city. A general strike throughout Spain is planned to begin on Monday.

Replies to Request for Figures in Quiz.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A total of more than $571,000,000 has been borrowed in the United States in the last ten years by the government of Chile, the Cosach nitrate monopoly, Chilean cities and the Mortgage bank, an official statement said today.

The statement was Chile's reply to the request of Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, who asked for the figures in connection with a senate investigation at Washington.

15 Bond Issues Listed.

The text of the reply was cabled to Washington and made public by the foreign office. It listed fifteen bond issues of the government, the Mortgage bank and cities, totaling $296,112,000 during the 10 years, and said they were made through the National City bank of New York; Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co.; Haligarten & Co.; Kuh, Loeb & Co.; the Guaranty Trust company and the Grace National bank of New York.

No commission, it said, had been paid in excess of one per cent, although some issues were sold at a discount.

The Cosach obligations issued thus far, it said, total $275,596,601. Full details of the Cosach organization were given, although the government denied the nitrate combine has anything to do with the debt moratorium.

Peru's Plea Acted Upon.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Ambassador Manuel Freyre Santander at Washington has informed the Peruvian government that the American state department would transmit to the United States senate's banking committee Peru's petition for further investigation of foreign loans to Peru.

FRANCE HUNTS GERMAN ARMS IN DUTCH FACTORIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 22.—Despite a denial by the Dutch government of French press reports that war materials are secretly being manufactured for Germany in Holland, the persistence of the rumors has resulted in the French government making a formal inquiry in the matter.

The French military attaché at The Hague, accompanied by Dutch military authorities, today investigated Dutch arms factories. He discovered nothing to substantiate the reports.

The French attitude is being strongly attacked in the Dutch press and a former war minister, Van Dyke, today criticized the government for permitting the investigation, which he declared was not dignified.

RADICAL GROUP TURNS COLD EYE ON WILKERSON

Borah and Blaine Dig Into His Record.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The unfriendly temper of the senate subcommittee considering the promotion of Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago to the Circuit Court of Appeals was made plain today.

The radical senators of both parties, who occupy four of the five subcommittee places, indicated that the burden of proof, so far as they are concerned, lies with the group headed by Senator Otis G. Glenn of Illinois, which is attempting to demonstrate Judge Wilkerson's fitness for the new assignment.

Calling attention to the fact that Senator Glenn's law firm was counsel for "Jake the Barber" Factor, Senator John J. Blaine, radical Republican of Wisconsin, intimated that there was a definite connection between Judge Wilkerson's confirmation by the senate and his attitude in the extradition case of the alleged confidence man wanted for trial by the British authorities.

Blaine States Stand.

"To be perfectly frank with you," the Wisconsin senator told Senator Glenn, "my information is that a demurrer has been filed and that Judge Wilkerson has deferred judgment until after action has been taken upon his nomination to the Circuit Court of Appeals."

Senators Borah of Idaho and Walsh of Montana made it clear that they intended to scrutinize closely three features of Judge Wilkerson's record.

"We are particularly interested," said Senator Borah, the subcommittee chairman, "in Judge Wilkerson's injunction in the 1921 railway shopmen's strike, in his activities in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul receivership, and in the Chicago street railway receivership."

Factor Case Aired.

Pointing out that Senator Glenn and former Senator Deneen had also indorsed Judge Charles E. Woodward of Ottawa, Ill., Senator Blaine declared that Judge Woodward had declined to act in the Factor case because of that fact.

"Judge Woodward felt he ought not to sit while he was under consideration for appointment," said Senator Blaine.

Senator Glenn admitted that certain phases of the Factor case had come before Judge Wilkerson, but said he, personally, had taken no part in the case.

"Judge Wilkerson rendered the decision on our motion to dismiss and decided against us," said Senator Glenn. "Moreover, Senator Deneen and I indorsed Judge Wilkerson before the Factor case started."

Glenn Answers Critics.

Answering the criticisms of Senators Borah and Walsh, who complained that Judge Wilkerson's injunction in the railway workers' strike had been issued without sufficient notice, Senator Glenn retorted:

"It was a great national emergency; the whole country was paralyzed. Judge Wilkerson honestly believed he was following the law in a great crisis."

At the conclusion of today's session the hearings were recessed until some time next week, when labor representatives opposing Judge Wilkerson's confirmation are expected to appear.

TOWNS REPORTED WIPED OUT BY FIERY VOLCANO

SAN SALVADOR, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Antigua, Santa Lucia, Cotzumalhuapa, and other towns in Guatemala were reported today to have been destroyed by the eruption of a Catenango volcano. San Salvador and other cities in this country were covered by clouds of dense smoke and ashes, apparently coming from the volcano. Streets and house roofs were coated with ashes.

Sixty Quakes in Guatemala.

GUATEMALA CITY, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A series of more than sixty earthquake shocks felt in part of Guatemala yesterday damaged communications, and it was feared today considerable damage might have been wrought in the sections around the two volcanoes Fuego and Acatenango, which began to erupt after the shocks. The volcanoes are 50 miles from here. Ashes from the two volcanoes dropped on Guatemala City.

Houses Fall in Quake.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A slight earthquake was felt here early today. Delayed reports from the town of Huaraz said the shocks there destroyed two houses, interrupted the light service, and were followed by heavy rains which flooded the nearby rivers. So far as could be learned, no one was hurt.

Bandits Rob 3 in Office of Wholesale Grocers

Three bandits entered the offices of the South Chicago Wholesale Grocery company at 3014 East 90th street last night and robbed Nathan Grossman, 9017 Exchange avenue, the president, and two salesmen of approximately $1,350. The robbers followed the salesmen, Morris Rabinos, 7145 Yates avenue, and Meyer Wittert, 7840 Constance avenue, into the place. From Rabinos they took $150 and from Wittert $200. They forced Grossman to open the safe, getting $1,000 more.

G. O. P. LEADERS HERE TODAY TO PLAN CONVENTION

Fess Group Will Inspect Stadium.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's two big political shows in June are beginning to take on shape. Headed by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Republican national chairman, a group of national committeemen is to arrive in Chicago this morning to look over the blue prints of the Republican national convention which opens June 14 at the Stadium.

SENATOR FESS.

The arrangements committee is to organize at the Congress hotel, with Roy O. West, Illinois committeeman, and Edward N. Hurley, head of the nonpartisan citizens' committee which landed both Republican and Democratic conventions for Chicago, in attendance. The members will visit the Stadium to look over the plans, which require approval from both parties before becoming official.

Plan Layout of Hall.

The proposed layout is to place the speaker's platform on the Warren avenue side of the hall, with the press stands flanking on either side. In the arena where delegates and alternates will sit is space for 8,000 to 10,000 seats, while circling the arena are some 16,000 permanent seats.

The plans have already been approved by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee. The same interior arrangement is to stand for both conventions, about the only change necessary being to move out the elephant symbol after the Republicans have adjourned and exalt the donkey for the Democrats. The Democratic convention opens June 27.

Part of today's ceremonies is expected to be the turning over of $75,000 by Mr. Hurley as part of the guaranty provided by Chicago to underwrite the convention expenses up to $150,000.

The press arrangements will be in charge of the veteran James D. Preston, for years superintendent of the United States senate press gallery, who recently resigned to become senate librarian, and William J. Donaldson Jr., superintendent of the house press gallery at Washington. They will accompany the committee. Preston has run the press arrangements at conventions of both parties for many years. Between 500 and 700 newspaper representatives are expected to cover the big meet.

Others to Arrive Today.

The group arriving today is scheduled to include George de B. Keim, New Jersey, secretary of the committee; James Francis Burke, Pennsylvania, general counsel, and the following members of the national committee: Ralph E. Williams, Oregon; Charles D. Hilles, New York; J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut; Clarence C. Hamlin, Colorado; David W. Mulvane, Kansas; Dr. E. B. Clements, Missouri; Maurice Maschke, Ohio; Miss Martha McClure, Iowa; Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, Wisconsin, and James E. Davidson, Michigan

County slate making is to be taken up by the Democrats Monday at a meeting of the county committee at the Sherman hotel, according to an announcement last night.

2 BROTHERS DIE AS PLANE FALLS INTO EAST RIVER

New York, Jan. 22.—Lieut. Francis X. Kelly of the army reserve corps and his brother, Edward, both of Brooklyn, were killed this afternoon when an airplane in which the lieutenant was giving his brother a flying lesson plunged from nearly 2,000 feet into the upper East river.

The craft, an open cockpit Fairchild monoplane, powered by a 90 horsepower Cirrus engine, struck the water upside down between the shores of Clason Point, the Bronx, and College Point, Queens. It submerged, but bobbed to the surface again, almost alongside the freighter Baltic. Capt. Cummins of the freighter had the boat crane swung over the wreckage and the shattered airplane was lifted to the ship's deck.

There the bodies of the Kelly brothers were taken out. Both wore parachutes, but were strapped in the cockpit.

Lieut. Kelly was a transport pilot and was regarded as an excellent flyer. He and his brother had taken off from a flying field near North Beach a few minutes before the crash.

BERLIN CLOSES UNIVERSITY AS FASCISTS RIOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Berlin university was ordered closed for two days today after Fascist students had organized anti-Semitic raids and engaged in free for all fights with communists and Socialists in the heat of an election campaign for the student parliament. Eight persons were injured and seven rioters arrested.

German universities have a regular student congress, which the Prussian government has refused to recognize heretofore because the congress failed to punish Vienna students for anti-Semitic excesses.

In the present election the Fascist students are campaigning vigorously for the party of the "superman," Adolf Hitler. The rector finally lost patience with the swashbuckling students today, when he was forced to call in the police for the second time in a week to prevent serious bloodshed and he ordered the university closed for two days until the student elections are over.

FOUR H. O. STONE OFFICERS SEIZED ON FRAUD CHARGE

U. S. Seeks Five Others in Mail Use Inquiry.

Four officials of the defunct H. O. Stone & Co. investment and realty concern were arrested yesterday on federal warrants charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud. United States deputy marshals were searching for five other officers of the concern last night.

The men arrested were officers who took control of the concern three years ago. They are Henry F. Norcott, president; Harold D. Bennett, a vice president; Marshall W. George, secretary, and David A. Coleman, president of the Stone Finance company, a subsidiary of the H. O. Stone company. The four were released on bonds of $5,000 each which had been set by United States Commissioner Walker when he issued the warrants earlier in the day.

Seek Other Officials.

Those sought are: Claude C. Niles, a vice president; W. Scott Carroll, controller; Charles P. Packer Jr., treasurer, and Leslie A. Needham, attorney for the concern, and Francis E. Richardson, vice president of the finance company.

At a public auction ordered by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on Dec. 30, the entire assets of H. O. Stone & Co. were sold to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company for $137,500. Several thousand creditors who possess claims totaling $14,500,000 will receive nothing from the assets.

H. O. Stone & Co. was 95 years old. Control of the company was acquired in 1929 by Norcott and the other officers. Then followed the selling of a stock issue to the public for $7,500,000. Under Norcott's régime the company plunged into the mortgage bond business on such a scale that when the failure came and the Chicago Title and Trust company was appointed as receiver in December of 1930 there was outstanding $30,000,000 in bonds underwritten and sold by the company. Many of these issues were defaulted.

Jury Hears 100 Witnesses.

Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph A. Struett is in charge of the investigation, and directed the grand jury quiz. More than 100 witnesses testified before the jury and told of individual transactions. Individual losses from investments in the company ranged from $100 to $27,000, it was said. Mr. Struett was assisted in the inquiry by Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Kennedy.

Commissioner Walker has set Jan. 29 as the date for the hearing. Meantime the grand jury is expected to complete its investigation.

A large amount of stock in H. O. Stone & Co. was sold at $12 and $15 a share in the spring of 1930, according to the prosecutors. Prospective buyers were told that the stock would be worth $30 to $35 a share in a short time, it is alleged, and these representations were followed by a campaign through the mails advertising the profits that were to be made from the stock. A few months later the stock dropped in value to less than $1 a share.

Attorney Issues Statement.

Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., one of Norcott's attorneys, issued a statement last night in which he asserted that his client had lost everything he possessed in the crash of the concern.

Cantwell declared that Norcott was the heaviest holder of stock in the company and had never sold a share. "Events over which Mr. Norcott had no control precipitated the failure," the attorney said.

BRITISH OFFICIAL BOMBED; DEAF, HE DOESN'T KNOW IT

BOMBAY, Jan. 22.—(AP)—In Calcutta today somebody threw a bomb into the railway carriage occupied by Harold Quinton, district magistrate at Howrah. No one was hurt. Mr. Quinton is a little deaf, but he heard the explosion and thought his own pistol had gone off accidentally. He found the cartridges intact and then heard the shouts of other passengers as the train stopped.

Mahatma Gandhi today sent his first letter from the Yeravda jail. It was addressed to Miss Madeline Slade, the English girl who is one of his most devoted disciples. He said he was happy. He spins 200 yards of yarn a day, does much reading and walks for two hours every evening. "Tell all my friends not to worry about me," he wrote. "Yours with love, Bapoo."

Since the beginning of the civil disobedience campaign and the enactment of laws to control it 798 persons, including many women, have been imprisoned in the united provinces.

RUSH MEDICINE BY PLANE TO AID LORD READING

LUXOR, Egypt, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Lord Reading, prominent British statesman, who married his youthful secretary hardly six months ago, lay seriously ill tonight with influenza and bronchitis. A physician who came here by airplane from Cairo said he was very ill and probably would have to be under medical care for some time. Medical supplies are on the way from Cairo in another plane.

Lord Reading and his wife, the former Stella Charnaud, were here on a sort of post-honeymoon trip. They came here early in the month from Palestine where they were accorded a triumphant reception. They spent one week-end at the villa of the late Lord Melchett on the shore of the Sea of Galilee.

The marquess was viceroy of India for five years, beginning in 1921, and was foreign secretary briefly in Prime Minister MacDonald's first National government. He married Miss Charnaud, known as the "most remarkable woman in London," last August, and she continued to act as his secretary. He is 71 and she is 37.

Paving Material Inspector Guilty on Fraud Charge

Ross H. Smith, head of the Standard Inspection company of Hammond, was found guilty last night of obtaining money by fraudulent claims by a jury in the Lake county [Ind.] Criminal court before Judge C. V. Ridgely at Crown Point. Smith has been paid $90,000 in the last six years for inspecting paving materials used in Lake county roads. At the trial it was charged that the Standard Inspection company was a dummy concern, and that Smith had all of his work done in a Chicago testing laboratory, which charged him $1,500 during the whole period. He faces a sentence of from two to fourteen years in the penitentiary. Sentence will be pronounced today.

WIDOW OF BANK OFFICIAL SOUGHT FOR COURT QUIZ

An effort to discover hidden assets of the closed North Town State bank was begun yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. Attorney Jacob L. Fox, representing the receiver, told the judge that he has been seeking Mrs. Genevieve Koeber, widow of Harry Koeber, former vice president of the bank. Mrs. Koeber is now in Florida, it was said.

Koeber had borrowed $12,000 from the bank, giving as security a 12 flat building. Upon Koeber's death, the receiver discovered that the building was in the name of Mrs. Koeber, who had also collected $25,000 in life insurance. William Tichy, brother of Mrs. Koeber, said his sister had gone to Florida for her health and that she was not trying to escape testifying. He said she probably would not return for several weeks.

The hearing will be resumed on Monday.

Expects It to Pull Us Out of Depression.

At last, and by a side door, came Representative Claude Parsons, Illinois Democrat, chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills. He was breathless, but triumphant. He had the bill.

He had had to fight for it. He had snatched it with the help of Alexander Campbell, committee clerk, out of the very hands of the senate. It was technically a house bill. It was Mr. Parsons' job to convey it to the White House. And he had discovered at the last minute that the senate—none other than Vice President Curtis, it was rumored—had been plotting to walk off with the house's thunder and do the delivering via its own dignified delegation.

The bill, with its potential draft upon two billion dollars of the people's money, received final congressional approbation with less noise and flutter than often marks the passage of a $10,000 measure to bridge some meandering creek.

In neither house was there a roll call. Some thirty senators were present when the senate voted to concur in the conference report, and about the same proportion of representatives when the house gave its consent.

A few radicals were present, but knowing their efforts would be fruitless, made no attempt to put their opposition to the test of a vote.

Three senators spoke against the bill—La Follette of Wisconsin, and Brookhart of Iowa, Radical Republicans, and Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborite.

La Follette Fights "Secrecy."

Senator La Follette s protest was directed at the action of the senate conferees in having agreed to eliminate a provision put in by the senate which would have required the quarterly reports of the corporation to list the names of institutions receiving loans and the amounts loaned them.

He reminded the senators how the farm board has insisted on a policy of secrecy and has refused to make public the names of those receiving loans out of the board's half billion dollar revolving fund.

"I realize," said the senator from Wisconsin, "that the senate has been dragooned into passing this bill under the whip and spur of the administration. And I wish to warn the senators responsible that they will regret having agreed to omit any report on how the taxpayers' money is administered and to whom it is loaned."

"A Shot in the Arm"—Shipstead.

Senator Shipstead termed the bill a "receivership for big business."

"We must pay for our mistakes," he declared, "but this two billion dollars will not pay for the mistakes made by business and the banks in the past two years."

Business and industry, intent on inflation because it was profitable to themselves, he likened to "the hog so greedy that it eats its own trough."

"This depression did not spring out of nothing," he concluded. "It is the result of courses which were pursued and therefore could have been averted. Are we going to be content with this temporary shot in the arm or are we going to remove the causes?"

Senator Brookhart said that the bill would not "restore the prices of farm products or find jobs for the jobless.

Wagner Attacks Hoover.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, New York Democrat, did not find fault with the bill but he did with President Hoover for having violated the bill's provisions even before it was passed.

The New York senator inquired by what authority the President had named Gen. Dawes president of the corporation and Gov. Meyer of the federal reserve board chairman of the corporation when the bill specified that the corporation's board of directors should have the right to appoint the officers and chairman.

Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican floor leader, intervened with the explanation that the President had had to act quickly, because Gen. Dawes had been due to sail as chairman of the disarmament delegation.

Consideration for foreign nations was again offered as an excuse for the President's action. For, said Senator Watson, the other nations had to be informed that Gen. Dawes' withdrawal from the conference was due to an urgent necessity for his presence at home.

Protecting Reserve System.

In the house, where the conference report was first taken up, Representative Steagall [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the house conferees, was particular to explain the elimination of the house bill clause, making the obligations of the corporation eligible for purchase or discount by federal reserve banks.

"We felt," he said, "that we ought to preserve something in this country that is safe, sound, and normal. We are involving the credit of the United States in this emergency. It is too much to ask that we also involve the credit of the federal reserve system, too."

Representative Louis T. McFadden [Rep., Pa.] was the only house member to speak against the bill, and he did so briefly. The clause put in by the senate, permitting the corporation to accept export bills of exchange, would put the government into the same foreign acceptance business which helped bring on the depression, he argued. And he warned the house that the bill contained the dangerous germ of inflation.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, P. R., Jan. 22.—More than 400 Porto Ricans who became destitute in Cuba returned home today, brought by the naval transport Kittery from Santiago through the intervention of the state department. Some of the repatriates had been in Cuba for more than thirty years and said they had never seen so many persons unemployed and hungry.

How U. S. Will Operate as Two Billion Dollar Banker

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—When President Hoover signed the reconstruction finance corporation bill tonight he authorized the extension of two billion dollars' worth of government guaranteed credit to the following institutions:

Banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, mortgage loan companies, credit unions, federal land banks, joint stock land banks, federal intermediate credit banks, and agricultural and live stock credit corporations;

To closed banks and banks in the process of liquidation, provided that not more than 200 millions shall go to such banks;

And, with the approval of the interstate commerce commission, to railroads, and railroads in process of construction and in receivership, provided such railroads cannot obtain loans elsewhere.

Five Years Is Maximum.

Such loans are to be for three years, with a maximum extension of two years. They may be made directly upon promissory notes or by way of discounting securities tendered for that purpose. The corporation has the right to administer and liquidate any collateral put up as security.

No loans are to be made on foreign securities or acceptances, nor for the purpose of assisting in carrying or liquidating such foreign securities. Loans to one institution, its affiliates and subsidiaries are not to exceed 100 million dollars. No fee or commission is to be paid in connection with making any loan.

Of the corporation's credit, 200 million dollars is to be allocated to the secretary of agriculture to be used in making crop loans directly to farmers, preference being given to farmers whose crops failed in 1931. Loans to finance agriculture are excepted from a prohibition against making loans to finance new undertakings.

Can Accept Export Drafts.

The corporation may accept drafts and bills of exchange growing out of export transactions, provided the paper is payable in dollars, is backed by American securities as collateral or guaranteed by an American bank, and provided the export is not of war materials.

The corporation gets 500 million dollars of the money necessary to make these loans direct from the federal treasury, which is required to subscribe for the corporation's capital stock as needed. The remaining maximum amount of $1,500,000,000 is to come from the sale of five year bonds, the interest on them to be fixed by the corporation's directors. Bonds may be issued to the amount of three times the amount of subscribed capital stock.

It is here that some of the most important provisions of the bill enter in. The government guarantees both the principal and interest of the bonds, and if the bonds find no ready market the secretary of the treasury is to purchase them, obtaining the necessary money by issuing government bonds.

Restricted as Investments.

The bonds are not eligible for purchase or discount by the federal reserve banks, but are to be lawful investments for trust, fiduciary, and public funds under federal control. They are to be exempt from all taxation except federal surtaxes and estate, inheritance, and gift taxes.

The corporation is also authorized to sell short term obligations at discount, provided the amount, plus the amount of bonds outstanding, does not exceed three times the amount of paid in capital stock.

The management of the corporation is vested in a board of seven directors composed of the secretary of the treasury, the governor of the federal reserve board, and the farm loan commissioner, ex-officio, and four members appointed by the President. Not more than four of the seven may belong to one political party; not more than one of the four appointed members [according to current interpretation] may come from any one federal reserve district. No director may participate in a decision affecting his own interests. The directors are given the right to select their officers and chairman.

Branches in Various Cities.

The principal office of the corporation is to be in Washington, with branches in other cities.

Federal reserve banks are to act as depositaries and fiscal agents of the corporation. Government departments and bureaus are to open their records to the corporation in confidence and institutions receiving loans must submit to examination. The corporation is to report to congress quarterly, listing its loans by classes of institutions and by states.

The corporation is set up for ten years. Loans may be made during the first year or during a second year, at the President's discretion. At the end of the loan making period the directors are to proceed to liquidate the corporation's assets and wind up its affairs. If this duty is not completed by the end of the ten year period the secretary of the treasury takes over the job.

In the end, the government receives all profits and stands any losses.

Senate Action Raises Hope for Accord.

the conference will continue through tomorrow and probably go into the early part of next week.

In reiterating their statements that no decision on the wage cut has been made, the labor leaders pointed out that in the interests of diplomacy they had asked their general chairmen to maintain an open mind, so that when the time to vote arrives they will not have been prejudiced beforehand.

There have been some hints that the unions might present a compromise proposal. Some sentiment among the union men is opposed to cutting the wages of track workers and shopmen, who are now working three days a week at low wages. However, other leaders pointed out that if a horizontal cut is granted the railroads would use the saving for resuming the long neglected repairs of road beds and equipment, which would provide more employment for these workers. Even if they took a 10 per cent cut, if they were given four days work a week instead of three it would amount to a 20 per cent increase in earnings, it was pointed out.

Willard Tells Roads' Plight.

In his speech before the union men, Mr. Willard went over in detail his statement of Thursday. Mr. Willard, who is 71 years old, spoke for two hours. Shortly before he began he stepped away from the microphone, which had been placed before him, and said, "Can you hear me?" The men shouted that they could and Mr. Willard went on without the use of the microphone.

Incidentally this veteran of more than fifty years of railroad work started out as a track laborer. Later he was an engineer and as such was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Mr. Willard emphasized that the railroad situation is the key to the entire financial and industrial position of the nation.

"Face Desperate Situation."

He went on to say that the railroad presidents in their negotiations with the union leaders were faced with a desperate situation. He asserted that they were not moved by any purpose of trading with the union men, but felt they were working with them jointly to solve the difficulties confronting them. The rail executive poitned out that there had been no loud voices raised at the present conference, no quarreling. All had recognized the gravity of ths situation.

Mr. Willard spoke of the prevailing gloom in industry, citing as one indication the smokeless chimneys of the great steel mills. The railroads are among the principal purchasers of steel, oil, lumber, and coal, and their being out of the market is responsible for much of the financial gloom, he continued. He concluded by asking the union men to bring back "the sunshine.'

Southern Road Cuts Pay.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A 20 per cent reduction in the pay of its organized workers who did not accept a reduction last July has been posted here by the Gulf, Mobile and Northern railroad. Last July many of the road's employés voluntarily accepted a 10 per cent cut in their pay to aid the road in meeting its charges, but there were many employés who did not.

Despite the acceptance of the reduction last year by approximately 40 per cent of the train service employés of the combined force of Gulf, Mobile and Northern and the New Orleans, Great Northern and about 95 per cent of the other employés, the Gulf, Mobile and Northern finished 1931 with a deficit of about $225,000 after all charges.

The New Orleans, Great Northern has had to apply to the Railway Credit corporation for funds to meet Feb. 1 bond interest.

FIVE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD EMPLOYES TO GET HERO MEDALS

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Award of the Pennsylvania railroad's heroic service medal to five employés was announced today by R. V. Assey, vice president, to be presented at an early meeting of the directors.

With one exception, the heroic acts involved the rescue of persons from the track in front of approaching trains. In the other case, the employé saved a boy from drowning in the Allegheny river at Franklin, Pa. Those designated for the decoration are:

Edward C. Hodgkiss of Bloomfield, N. J., conductor.

E. J. Ewing of Winamac, Ind., station clerk.

Glen V. Hartzell of Cresson, Pa., freight conductor.

President Hoover's program for economic recovery, which embraces the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation headed by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, was hailed last night by Secretary of War P. J. Hurley as the "strongest and most far-reaching" ever sent to congress by any President.

He declared that this finance program touches every phase of American life, reaches every element of the depression, and offers constructive means for combatting its effects.

"To the banks it affords legitimate security," said Secretary Hurley. "It safeguards the account of every depositor. To industry, it offers new life and greater fields of endeavor. To railroads it suggests economics of operation, better credit and greater stability. To business it gives confidence and credit.

Called Boon to Farmer.

"To the farmer it insures better prices and more certain markets. To American labor it returns jobs that have been discontinued and offers greater purchasing power. To all the American people it gives a definite constructive plan consistent with the traditional principles of combatting a great national emergency by increasing self-reliance and individual initiative."

What the Hoover administration has done in the last two years to aid labor, industry and commerce was the theme of Mr. Hurley's manuscript address, which was delivered before the Commercial club of Chicago at the Blackstone hotel. The secretary of war pictured the reconstruction corporation with "Hell 'n' Maria" Dawes at its head as the capstone of a long line of Hoover achievements.

It sounded much like keynoting in advance of the Republican national convention June 14. The politically minded invested it with political significance as a forerunner of the arguments and appeals that will be presented during the coming presidential campaign.

Defends Hoover's Record.

Secretary Hurley painted President Hoover as a maligned executive, and said he was the target of a vicious propaganda system to defame his character and ability.

"A lot of this," he said, "has been conducted anonymously, by men who would sacrifice the welfare of the nation to gain a political advantage. But even the critics have been driven by the people to adopt the President's program.

"Today a hostile congress is working assiduously to put into effect the economic program submitted to it by the President. Congress must pass the President's program because it has no other. The citizens are demanding the enactment of the President's constructive proposals."

Tells Deeds of Government.

After pointing out that America has passed through fifteen depressions in the last century, Secretary Hurley outlined things done by the Hoover administration to mitigate the effects of the depression in the last two years.

"From the beginning of the depression," he said, "the President has continuously fought for the maintenance of the American standard of living. He inaugurated a program of federal construction to stimulate industry and increase employment.

"He sponsored a building program by state and local governments and private industry. He stopped immigration, conciliated capital and labor, prevented strikes and acrimony between employed and employé that have been the universal accompaniment of all former panics and depressions.

"He defeated the dole. He mobilized public opinion to take care of unemployed locally.

Billions Saved for Farmers.

"He directed the farm board to take and hold surplus until better markets could be obtained, thereby saving farmers billions of dollars. He bolstered up confidence in the financial world and stopped the onrush of bank failures by organizing a private bank pool of $500,000,000. He extended a moratorium—which has nothing to do with cancellation of debts—to enable European debtors to tide over the emergency and to sustain markets for American surpluses.

"He led in the organization of a movement to stimulate home building and home ownership. He reëstablished American prestige abroad. He saved Germany from catastrophe. He offered a strong, far-reaching, nonpartisan program to accelerate recovery."

Secretary Hurley depicted President Hoover as a "watchdog of the treasury," guarding against attempted raids. He said the treasury deficit was not caused by the expansion of public works alone, but measures passed over the veto of the President contributed their share.

Mentions Political Future.

"I have been told," he said, "that the President's proposal to increase taxes in these hard times would mean his defeat for reëlection. My answer to that remark is that the President is far more concerned in the welfare of the republic and its 125 million citizens than he is in his own political future."

Secretary Hurley ripped into the Democrats. He said some of the opposition is shouting that the administration is becoming entangled in Europe.

"If they were intelligent and truthful," he said, "they would say we became entangled with Europe about fifteen years ago under a Democratic administration and that every Republican administration since that time has been attempting to disentangle us. The money which we are seeking to collect from Europe was lent rather lavishly and to some extent unnecessarily by a Democratic administration."

Assails Democratic Proposals.

"Two feeble and impracticable suggestions have been offered by the Democrats in opposition to the President's practical and constructive program. One wing of the Democratic party would wipe out depression by a dole, another by a bond issue of five billion dollars. For the dole, there are no sound reasons.

"A dollar spent on public works which will not bring a dollar's worth of service is a dollar squandered. We cannot squander ourselves out of this depression. That is what our Democratic friends are asking us to do when they ask us to spend five billion dollars on a public works program that has already been expanded to three times its normal size and is already the greatest internal improvement program in the history of the world.

"The proposed five billion dollar bond issue offered by the Democrats is a boon to wasteful bureaucracy at the expense of the taxpayer. On the other hand, the President's constructive program benefits the whole nation."

Inspects Fort Sheridan.

Earlier yesterday Secretary Hurley made a formal inspection of Fort Sheridan. He received the regulation salute of nineteen guns on entering the reservation, and his automobile was escorted by a squadron of cavalry down a road beside which were drawn up 2,000 troops stationed at the fort, units of infantry, cavalry, field artillery, and anti-aircraft.

Secretary Hurley went then to the home of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, where he was a guest at luncheon. Among those present were Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley, commander of the Great Lakes naval training station, Gen. Abel Davis, former Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin; Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commander of the fort; Col. William H. Burt, chief of staff of the corps area, and Max Epstein, Chicago capitalist and philanthropist.

GROCER AND WIFE HELD UP.

Rock Island, Ill., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—E. R. Marshall, grocer, and his wife were held up in their store by two armed bandits this afternoon. $27 was taken from the cash register and Marshall's pockets. They escaped with a third man in an auto. Marshall gave chase in his own car but lost them in the traffic.

LOUISIANA SUPREME COURT DECIDES LONG IS STILL GOVERNOR

New Orleans, La., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—By a vote of four to three the Louisiana state Supreme court today decided it had no jurisdiction and dismissed the suit brought by Dr. Paul N. Cyr, former lieutenant governor, to oust Huey P. Long as governor on the ground that the latter was already elected to the United States senate and by holding both offices was violating the law.

The court said only the senate itself could pass upon the qualification of a United States senator.

Gov. Long personally appeared to argue his cause. He contended that although he had sent his qualifications to the senate, that body had never acted upon those qualifications and that he never had taken the oath of office nor received any of the emoluments of a senator.

After the decision, Gov. Long, who already had conferred with bankers and business men over bonds to be signed by Senator King, who will be acting governor in case Long goes to Washington, and will be governor in case he takes his seat in the senate, left for the state capital.

"Now that my position as governor is assured, I have changed my mind about leaving for Washington tonight, but may go in a few days," the governor announced.

Asked about the clothes he bought yesterday in preparation for his trip to Washington, Gov. Long said:

"They'll keep and I didn't buy anything that I would be ashamed for the people of Louisiana to see me wear. You can say, however, that I didn't buy a silk hat."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AFTER THE KELLY BILL.

The passage of the Kelly bill is the first step toward the restoration of solvency to Chicago's local governments. It would be a grave mistake to regard the enactment of the law as anything more than that. If the full hopes of its supporters are realized, the Kelly plan will assure prompt assessments which will stand attack in the courts. That is all, and that alone will not raise cash for teachers, policemen, firemen, and the rest of the municipal employés.

Much more is needed. There must be in the first place some provision which will permit the refund to taxpayers of any amounts which the courts may subsequently find to be excessive. This provision must apply to 1928 and 1929 taxes, as a matter of justice to those who loyally supported the government while other taxpayers were on strike; and, of course, it must apply to 1930 taxes, if any money is to be paid into the public treasury before the last lawsuit is carried to the last court. The immediate difficulties of the local governments arise in part from the fact that the 1930 bills, which should have been paid last April, have not yet been sent out. Once the bills go out, money will come in, provided the taxpayers are assured that they will not be discriminated against. The legislature must give that assurance.

But the Kelly bill, together with a bill to require refunds of excessive payments, will not be enough. In addition—and this is of greatest importance, by far—there must be reductions of expenditures which will cut deeper than any of the local governments has yet shown any disposition to go. That is the only way in which the willingness of the taxpayers to pay can be restored and the only way in which the size of the tax bills can be brought into line with the ability of the taxpayers to pay.

None of the governments has yet produced a budget in accordance with the obvious requirements of 1932. But some of the governments have begun to show the first faint signs of returning sanity. The school board's finance committee has found it possible to reduce the original estimate of expenditures by $14,000,000, a slash of 14 per cent. Compared to the achievements of the other governments, this is creditable, but it is still only a start. The goal for all the governments is a reduction of at least 30 per cent under last year's expenditures; and unless that goal is reached it is extremely doubtful if any relief measures which the legislature can enact will restore credit.

Some progress is to be noted in the proposal now before the legislature to reduce the salaries of public officials in the state and local governments. The indignation expressed by the county board at the extravagant purchases for the school of nurses is also a hopeful sign. Public officials seem to have come to a tardy realization that the whoopee days are over.

But that, too, is not enough. The tax eaters must go on a reducing diet and stay on it. A 30 per cent reduction in expenses of each government will go further to restore the taxpayers' willingness to pay than all the so-called relief bills which the legislature can enact in the next ten years.

FROM CHICAGO'S G. O. M.

The crime commission underscores its title to the community's gratitude and support by the reelection of Frank J. Loesch as its president. Chicago's grand old man, he will be 80 in April, has served four years in this office, besides acting as special prosecutor in the vote fraud and election violence cases of four years ago and later as a member of the Wickersham commission. His courage and unselfish devotion as a leader in the fight on crime and its ally, corrupt politics, have been an inspiration to good citizenship, and when he speaks the community listens.

Mr. Loesch's annual report as president of the crime commission is as full of meat as his previous messages. His remarks upon the Criminal court judiciary emphasize a process of deterioration upon which THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly commented. Lawyers are aware of this deterioration and in private agree that there has been a serious lowering of the level of judicial fitness in recent years. There are judges who need fear no comparison with the best of their predecessors and who in character and competence preserve the best traditions of our courts. But there are incumbents who owe their office to irresponsible and unscrupulous politics which disregards fitness and which will continue to exploit and degrade judicial office unless better safeguards are set up against it.

This, as we urged repeatedly, is the most important objective of reform in the administration of justice, and yet it has been shirked. Improvements in procedure and organization are needed, but benefits derived from them will be disappointing and inconsiderable if the methods of selecting our judiciary are not bettered. If the bar is not disposed or able to work out a system which will bar incompetents from the bench and which will insure the independence of the judiciary from the political pressures and influences inherent in present conditions, the task should be taken up by laymen. It should not be much longer postponed.

Mr. Loesch's report summarizes the work of the commission and notes the progress achieved in the campaign against organized criminality, a progress which we think has been notable, and to which the crime commission and its able operating director, Col. Chamberlin, have substantially contributed. The commission has proved itself indispensable to public information as to the administration of the criminal law and is an agency for improvement which the community can never afford to give up.

Another item of the report recognizes the efforts of Commissioner of Police Allman to increase the efficiency of the police, which the community will appreciate and support. With the support of Mayor Cermak, which may be relied upon, they will materially better police efficiency.

INCOME TAX FAILURE.

Advocates of a state income tax we trust will reflect upon the facts just disclosed by the federal bureau of internal revenue. If this does not chill their enthusiasm for this new exaction their motive has not much to do with the problem of insuring reliable means of support for the state government.

The internal revenue figures show that for the first half of the fiscal year the returns fell $492,000,000 below those of the same period of the previous year, yielding only about $615,307,000. The corporation tax fell $225,584,000, yielding $378,660,000, and the individual income tax fell $266,420,000, yielding only $236,646,000.

Furthermore, the decrease in yield is getting worse. For the month of December the total returns were $256,522,000, a drop of $238,543,000. It is estimated that these taxes will yield a billion less for the fiscal year than last.

The income tax is revealing its weakness under such conditions as the present and they prevail in Illinois as well as in federal affairs. Whatever may be said on behalf of this form of taxation, it has failed when most needed. As a device for procuring revenue for the government of Illinois at this time it does not deserve serious consideration by the assembly, to say nothing of other objections to its imposition upon an overtaxed community. What is needed from Springfield as everywhere else in the United States is drastic retrenchment to bring public expenditure into a tolerable relation to resources.

DESTROY RACKETEERING.

The murder of Benjamin Rosenberg and the attacks upon funerals have roused the community, we think, to the gravity of conditions which have grown up in some business activities. The racket has adopted violence as a normal method, and this development challenges the safety as well as the self-respect of the community.

A full realization of this should make drastic correction possible. The racket and its lawlessness should be attacked and destroyed. Every resource of the law should be directed and persistently exerted until this is fully accomplished. An awakened public demands this, and civic agencies should give such assistance as the legal authorities need, if they need any. No evasion or incompetence in this fight on racketeering will be tolerated.

OFF TO THE PICKING.

American delegates are on their way to the goose plucking conference at Geneva and, as Mr. Stimson has said, there is not a militarist among them, all good sound pacifists as ever scuttled a cruiser or pinned a medal on a conscientious objector. Mr. Stimson himself, fresh from his Manchurian triumphs, will join the delegation later, but it is even now not uncared for. A party of earnest ladies, sealed to internationalism and the dove, are in attendance to see that the delegates return, not with their shield or on it but in a barrel and a horse blanket, a work of supererogation, if there ever was one.

Mr. Stimson, wearing the Manchurian quince wreath which he thinks is laurel, is reported to be almost persuaded that the budgetary limitation of armament upon which Europe insists has more good points than bad, it heretofore having been regarded in America as wholly bad. We may expect an earnest and careful betrayal of the United States.

The European hosts will be at the dock and receive their American guests with the familiar beguilements. This time there is hope that feather eggs and patés de foie gras can be obtained with one simple operation. It's not unlikely.

WHILE INVESTIGATING UTILITIES.

In order to provide a "factual basis for future legislation," the house of representatives has just voted a sweeping investigation of the ownership and control of all the public utilities in the United States except the railroads. The railroads under the regulation of the United States do not inspire the investigating zeal of the house of representatives, being now on the brink of bankruptcy, but the other public utilities are going concerns, most of them successful and therefore in need of congressional attention.

But the house has not voted a sweeping investigation of the greatest utility in the United States, the United States government.

Editorial of the Day

A SHAME TO CHICAGO.

[Los Angeles Times.]

The spineless attitude of the Chicago authorities in the face of such a challenge to common decency as the outrageous demands of the funeral drivers' union furnishes plenty of proof to the rest of the world that the recent claim of the Chicago crime commission that it has won the war on racketeering is a long way short of actuality.

There is something radically wrong with a city which will temporize for a minute with a condition like this, when the very dead in their coffins can be made the means of extortion.

This situation makes it plainer that it was not Chicago that beat Al Capone. It was the federal government. Capone had Chicago flat on its back and it lay there and bleated. It dared not charge him with the murders of which he was undoubtedly guilty. But when a long and strong arm from Washington picked up Mr. Capone and dusted him off, Chicago picked up courage enough to crow about it.

A few weeks later Chicago allows itself to be bluffed by cheap labor politicians on the make, lets them laugh at the processes of its courts, and wrings its hands helplessly while they rob the dead.

Better than his successor, Big Bill Thompson typifies Chicago's spirit. Thompson was at least honest about it; there were no limits to what he was willing the racketeers should do. A score of fearless and forthright citizens could save Chicago from this shame by taking the leaders of the livery car chauffeurs' union and dousing them in the Chicago drainage canal, but apparently there are not that many righteous present.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

FRANCE is about to lend Czecho-Slovakia one billion kronen (or, as we Americans say, twenty-four million in real money). Hey, how come France can take Czecho-Slovakia's I. O. U. for twenty-four million dollars and hasn't got a nickel to pay on the millions of dollars she owes Uncle Sam?

THE DETROIT restaurant people have tearfully petitioned the authorities to make the speakeasies stop serving free lunch, just as the saloons used to do, because it's about killed the night restaurant business. The speakeasies had better be careful; what with their free lunches, their egg and a clam with every drink, and a ballyhooer on the sidewalk shouting come on in, folks, here's where you get the best likker in town, some day they may go too far. But maybe not.

(A Poem of Modest Protest.)

On some nice auspicious day
I should like to wend my way
To your City by the Lake;
But I, somehow, stand in awe
Of your gladsome Greeter Gaw
And his howdydo handshake.

I'm quite sure that I could shun
The grim gangster and his gun;
Anyhow, I'd take the chances.
I could bluff your best bootleggers,
I'm a hopeless mark for beggars,
Under present circumstances.

But since it became a law
That your gorgeous Greeter Gaw
Shall meet every train and bus,
Greet each comer with a whoop,
March him twice around the Loop—
Well—it's too conspicuous.

On the other hand, if I Should arrive, and, slipping by
Greeter Gaw with all his fuss—
Should walk calmly down the street,
Thus avoiding every greet,
I'd feel more conspicuous.

Mind you, I'm not shy of strangers,
And a city's lurking dangers
Hardly ever make me quake.
I should love to come—but, pshaw,
I'm afraid of Greeter Gaw
And his howdydo handshake.

I'm afraid of Greeter Gaw,
Your official Greeter Gaw,
Your hilarious,
gregarious,
multifarious Greeter Gaw.

NOW THE REDS IN MOSCOW say they will permit Trotzky to leave his exile in Turkey and live in Germany. Or they will let him live in Bulgaria, or he may live in Finland. In fact, the Reds indicate very strongly they don't care where Trotzky lives just so it isn't Russia. And, in fact, they are not much interested if he lives at all.

"I HOPE YOU SAW in the papers," says K. Q. X., rather testily, "that in a vote in the United States senate Thursday, in the matter of state referenda on repeal and modification, drys beat the wets three to one. Three dry votes to each wet vote! I trust you fully realize that this is an overwhelming victory for the W. C. T. U. and the Anti-Saloon league, and a most crushing and humiliating defeat for those who oppose them." Ah, K. Q. X., we refuse to be crushed or humiliated, or go without our supper. In such moments we try instead to emulate the brave hearts who fought a losing fight against slavery for a long time. How beautiful and how consoling the words of Whittier are at such a time! You remember (lykell, lykell) that there were thirty-eight abolitionists in Pennsylvania who were protecting a runaway slave from Maryland. When the United States marshals came to enforce the constitution and the fugitive slave laws there was a riot. The abolitioners were defeated and captured. While they were in jail in Moyamensing prison, Philadelphia, John G. Whittier, the beloved Quaker poet, a stanch enemy of slavery, wrote a poem dedicated to the men who had tried to give freedom to the poor slave:

God's ways seem dark, but soon or late
They touch the shining hills of day.
The evil cannot brook delay,
The good can well afford to wait.
Give ermined knaves their hour of crime;
Ye have the future grand and great,
The safe appeal of truth to time.

Ah, yes, K. Q. X., some time the way seems long and dark, but we good can afford to wait.

DISSOLUTION.

So seldom are we with ourselves,
So much with others cast,
How far we drift from what we were
To what we are at last!

I sometimes think that on each street,
In every crowd, might be,
Did he but know the man within,
A man of destiny!

For in each man a monster sleeps
And in each man a Christ;
And who shall say which will appear
To keep the final tryst?

THIS DAY CHICAGO celebrates two solid years without zero weather. And this winter has been so warm the farmers in the suburbs are complaining about the grasshoppers being a great pest and the purple martins and the thrush and the bluebirds are all back, or else they didn't go away. Ah, thrice blessed Chicago! What a climate, what a climate. (Loz Onglaize and southern California papers please copy.) R. H. L.

IRON AND COPPER.

A NORMAL man, under ordinary circumstances, needs about one-quarter of a grain of iron daily. If he is on an average American diet what he eats will supply that amount of the mineral, or more. If he is on a milk diet, or any other kind of freak diet, there is a fair chance that he will need some additional iron, or that he must eat some foods that will supply the need. If he has some disease that destroys the richness of the blood he may require iron from some source.

Sherman gives the iron foods, in the order of their value as a source, as: Lima beans, peas, unmilled wheat, lean beef, steak, spinach, oatmeal, raisins, eggs, and green vegetables.

Babies are born with a considerable amount of stored iron. Since they live for a long time on milk, a food that is poor in iron, they use up their reserve, and presently they are pale and white. Among the good foods with which to supplement milk in a pale baby's diet are yellow of egg, egg soups, oatmeal, wheat germ, and soups made with green vegetables and spinach.

Among the diseases which cause a considerable degree of anemia are Bright's disease, acute rheumatic fever, and malaria. Among the iron-rich foods that are good for pale people, made so by these diseases, are green vegetables spinach, good vegetable soups, and pot liquors, salads, unmilled wheat, egg yelow, and lean meat.

It has been established that man needs a little copper in his food in order to avail himself of the iron in his diet. Among the best copper foods, the first named being the best, are wheat germ, almonds, oats, kidney beans, rye, peas, asparagus, corn, lentils, and barley. Many though not all the green oysters contain more than the average amount of copper.

Actively growing children need to eat lime foods. It is thought that nervous, on-edge people and those who catch diseases easily are especially in need of lime foods. Dr. M. H. Epstein gives the richer lime foods in the following order: Milk, cheese, all other foods made from milk, carrots, cabbage, turnips, oranges, prunes, beets, and apples.

Phosphorus goes hand in hand with lime. If they get out of proper relation health is hazarded. Dr. Epstein quotes Lusk as ranking the phosphorus foods in the following order: Milk, egg yolk, cheese, unmilled wheat, beans, oatmeal, lean beef, peanuts, walnuts, and almonds.

In the trimming of vegetables for cooking the percentage of loss is given by McDonald as follows: String beans, 15; cabbage, 19; carrots, 17; cauliflower, 70; celery, 23; head lettuce, 41; old potatoes, 12; new potatoes, 19; spinach, 17; turnips, 16; yams, 15.

If unmilled nuts are bought by weight the loss in reducing to nut meat is very great.

HAIR DYE USER.

A. H. M. writes: Does the trademark, registered in the U. S. patent office, and printed on cartons containing bottled hair dye, insure against the dye containing poisonous ingredients that would be injurious to the human system if used as prescribed, with a small brush?

REPLY.

It does not. The registration of a trademark is for the purpose of protecting the owner against infringement on his property rights. It serves no other purpose. I know of no law the purpose of which is to protect the consumer of hair dyes.

LOANING TO MINOR.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Could a girl 18 years of age borrow money to pay for a college education without the approval of her parents? 2. Could this be done without the promise of an established business man to stand responsible for the debt in the event of her failure to pay? 3. With whom could a debt of this kind be mostly conveniently transacted? 4. I am aware that some insurance companies provide for this, but I should like to know if there is any other way in which this can be done? G. B.

1 and 2. Yes, in the sense that there is no legal prohibition or penalty. No, in the sense that since her promise to pay would not be literally enforceable most persons would refuse to lend to a minor.

3. On the facts stated there would seem to be no chance of negotiating such a loan as a business proposition.

4. This is done only where enough money has been paid on the policy to provide a surrender value equal to the amount of the loan. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PARTNERSHIP.

McHenry, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Two partners own a piece of property. Can either one lease a portion of the land without the signature of the other? 2. Is it legal? 3. Can the other partner break the lease?

W. J. S.

1. If the partnership business was the buying and selling of real estate, then third parties would be entitled to assume that either partner had power to bind the partnership in such a transaction, but as between the partners' rights this would depend on the wording of the partnership agreement.

2 and 3. See No. 1.

LAW SAYS TWO YEARS.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—A naturalized citizen of the United States wishes to return to the land of his birth. How long can he stay in the latter country without losing his citizenship? J. J. M.

The law provides that when a naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or for five years in any other foreign state, it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen. If the person referred to expects to be out of the United States for longer periods than above stated he should keep in touch with the American consul in whatever country he may be staying.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

New York, Oct. 18. — Stocks were again very irregular and weaker at the close. Gold was firmer and closed at 108¼. The announcement that Jay Gould intended to retire from active operations in the street was the subject of much comment. Mr. Gould told a reporter that the strain of the last two years had been very great and it had been remarkably severe during the last few weeks. He said he had been gradually withdrawing from his operations as he did not believe that the worst of the recent trouble had been felt.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 14.—Supt. Torrence of the Joliet Iron and Steel company notified the officers and clerks employed in the mills that the company has agreed to a reduction in their wages amounting on an average to 10 per cent.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Last week Chicago was crowded with buyers, and jobbers and manufacturers saw more business than they have in any one week since 1892. Buyers, however, were conservative and prudent, and sales were not what they were two years ago. The improvement is purely gradual and is no boom. Bankers are not overenthusiastic. Some of them think it will be two years before prosperity is fully restored.

Chicago, Oct. 24. — A number of roads issued statements on earnings for August. That of the Atchison is noteworthy for a decrease in net of over $538,000.

1913.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—President Wilson is giving almost his entire thought to the business situation and proposes to use all the means at his disposal to bring about its prompt and permanent improvement.

1921.

Chicago, April 14.—The Santa Fé railway system has sent out notices of a 20 per cent reduction in the salaries of all subordinate officials and other employés not ranking as common laborers, effective May 12.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 23, 1916.

DOUGLAS, Ariz.—The state of Oaxaca, Mexico, is overrun with bandits who have been killing Americans while carrying on a campaign of murder and plunder, despite every effort of the Carranza authorities to preserve order, according to an affidavit made by Andrew J. Trumbo of Los Angeles, a mining man, who arrived here from Oaxaca. Trumbo said that near Ejutla he saw the bodies of six men hanging in trees and was told by Mexicans that they were Americans. Two miles further on he saw two other bodies hanging from trees.

EL PASO, Tex.—Francisco Villa sent a message to the American people that he was not responsible for the massacres of eighteen Americans at Santa Ysabel on Jan. 10. The bandit leader said that he took no part and knew nothing of the massacre until afterwards and that the whole thing was merely a plot of the Carranzistas to bring him into disfavor with the United States.

LONDON.—"Surrender or no quarter" is the Austrian ultimatum to Montenegro contained in an official report given out in Vienna. King Nicholas has fled the country and is now at Brindisi on his way to join Queen Milena and other members of the royal household at Lyons, France, where the government is to be set up. The defense of the country has been left to Prince Mirko. A report from Rome says that the Montenegrins under Gen. Markinovitch have repulsed the Austrians in severe fighting at Berani on the Lem river.

CHICAGO.—The police hunt for the robber who looted the Thomas Cook & Son agency, 15 East Jackson boulevard, and murdered Policeman Bror Johnson, centered upon William La Trasse. Chief of Detectives Nicholas Hunt, who is directing the search, declared he believed La Trasse would resist to the death and branded him as one of the most desperate criminals in the United States. Pursuit of the bandit and his blond woman accomplice led the police investigation to Toledo. A public subscription was started for the benefit of the widow of the slain policeman and her 16 months old baby.

JANUARY 23, 1902.

CHICAGO. — William McFetridge shot his brother Robert, who will probably die of his wounds. The tragedy was the result of a long standing feud between the brothers, who were rivals in the ice business.

CHICAGO. — Resolutions inviting President Kruger to visit Chicago on the day of King Edward's coronation were passed at a meeting of Boer sympathizers in Willard hall. Jacob Ingenthron, Clarence Darrow, and John T. Keating severely arraigned the course of the British government in South Africa.

CHICAGO.—J. Pierpont Morgan and other New York capitalists have secured a large block of stock in the Commercial National bank of this city. President James H. Eckels of the bank returned from New York and confirmed the report that he had placed the stock with Mr. Morgan and his associates.

SIOUX CITY, Ia.—Robert T. Hall, known as "Bob Kneebs," a horseman of international reputation, died here at the age of 62. He was convicted of "ringing" in Germany in 1894 and spent a year in jail. The case attracted wide attention among horsemen of Europe and America. It has been contended that Kneebs' imprisonment was the spite work of a rejected backer, with whom he refused to divide profits of victories gained on foreign soil.

CHICAGO.—Prof. Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago has been offered the pulpit of the First Baptist church, recently vacated by Dr. Henson. No intimation has been given by Dr. Henderson that he will accept the call.

NEW YORK. — Richard Croker sailed for England on the Philadelphia. Most of the leaders of Tammany Hall, of which he has so long been leader, were at the dock to bid farewell to their former chieftain.

FAIRNESS TO THOSE WHO PAID.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—I am in favor of any legislation that will put our Chicago on its feet and keep it there. I am willing to pay my proportion of any taxes levied against me, providing that all others are equally and legally assessed. I have paid my 1928 and 1929 taxes in full, as a loyal citizen, but from what I read in the papers about funding the unpaid portion of the 1928 and 1929 taxes, as I understand it, a premium will be placed on disloyalty. Is it possible that this funding plan contemplates the funding by a bond issue to relieve those who have been disloyal and not paid these taxes, and then place a penalty on those who have paid them by asking that they pay their proportion of the interest on these bonds? This would certainly be a gross injustice. If, as Judge Jarecki has decided, the assessment for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930 was illegal, the only fair thing to do would be to fund the entire taxes for these years and place the amount paid by those who were loyal and paid these taxes to their credit and have the amounts applied on future assessments.

If this is not done, just let the city try and collect 1930 taxes by appealing to the loyalty of the citizens and see how far they will get pending a final decision on the matter.

H. G. FLANDERS.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—I wonder how many people in Chicago know the following interesting facts:

City pay roll for board of motion pictures censors, Mrs. Effie Ziegler in charge	$ 2,880.00
Five censors at $2,460	12,300.00
Two censors at $2,040	4,080.00
One senior clerk	2,480.00
Two operators on moving picture machines at $108.05 per week to Jan. 10, 1931, after that $110.55	11,521.64
Two operators of machines for vacation relief, for four weeks only, at not to exceed $110.55 per week	442.20
Total	$33,703.84

Rather high priced civic virtue.

A STOUT THIEF.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—I am only ordinarily informed as to governmental function, but your editorial of today entitled "A Stout Thief on a Starved Jackass" is so complete a picture, in my opinion, I am obliged to commend. Courage of this kind on the part of the press is going to be needed to exhort the citizens to awake as to what is being done to them, and may I suggest my further opinion that if we continue filling our offices with the material therein today our system of government is doomed?

LLOYD J. LONG.

POLITENESS FOR CONDUCTORS.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—"Be polite to visitors," Gaw tells traffic cops. Why try to make the police department supercourteous? I never met a discourteous policeman. With 1933 only one year off, isn't it about time for the street car company to call in Greeter Gaw for a few lectures? Every visitor to the city doesn't come in an automobile, and street car patrons won't object to having conductors practice "company manners" on them. ENNIS CLARE.

GOVERNMENT IN THE LIQUOR BUSINESS.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Why not, for a change, put the government in a profitable business? This would result if the amendment proposed by the Crusaders, Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, and the Moderation league, evidently with the approval and blessing of the National Association Against Prohibition, was adopted. It preserves prohibition for the communities that really want it, if any such there be, by providing for local option. It is so drawn as to eliminate the open saloon. The state would dispense liquor under the Ontario plan, or would strictly supervise its sale, and there would be no drinking except in homes and places of abode.

This was Ontario's answer to the failure of prohibition. It was the plan adopted in Finland after prohibition had demoralized a country which had been almost immune to the evils of strong drink in the days of the open saloon. It is a reasonable solution for a vexatious problem. The only important objection to it is its outrage upon the sensibilities of the professional prohibitionists and some honest souls who will shout against "the government going into the liquor business."

It is rather too bad to tread upon the tender sentiments of these ultra-good people. The only possible justification for such proceedings in a democracy is the fact that these same people have rammed down the throats of a majority of us a legislative monstrosity so immoral and vicious that it has produced a Saturnalia of vice and crime unknown to previous recorded history. It will be a lot better to have the government in the liquor business than to continue the scheme under which a criminal liquor business has its fingers in finance and public morals, and presumes to dictate to government.

L. M. HAMBURGER.

PAID AFTER 14 YEARS.

Marengo, Ill., Jan. 14.—Fourteen years ago I lived on the south side in Chicago. I purchased from the Consumers company an ice coupon book which still had unused coupons when I removed from the city. Last week I found that old book and returned it to the Consumers company for redemption. I would not have blamed the company had they told me they could not redeem coupons after so long a time, but the company sent me a refund for the amount called for by unused coupons. I think such square dealing should be commended. I am glad to register this testimony for Chicago's honest dealing.

EDWARD J. AIKEN.

SALARY CUTS FOR TEACHERS.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Most certainly the teachers in our public schools should be paid, but the attitude of some of the teachers regarding salary cuts, etc., is ridiculous. How many employés have had to take cuts, layoffs, etc., in other lines of work, losing their pensions, annuities, etc.? The teachers have been making good money and pay no income tax. Why don't the teachers go out and get other jobs? Because they couldn't find another where they work five days a week, five hours a day, and a year off every seven years with half pay, if they want to take it.

CHINESE PASTOR IS FOUND SLAIN IN HIS STUDY

CRIMINAL COURT.

Louis Frierson, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Joseph Nelsman, Matthew Fisher and Elmer Peterson, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in Pontiac reformatory; St. Clair Rogers, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Arthur Williams, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge George Fred Rush.

A killer slipped up behind the Rev. H. Frank Cham, a Chinese, as he was writing several days ago in the study of the Chinese Church of Christ at 2301 Wentworth avenue, and hacked him to death with a hatchet.

The body was discovered yesterday when a meter man for the Commonwealth Edison company entered the minister's apartment. It was sprawled beside an overturned chair. There was a partially written note in Chinese characters on the study desk and a pen lay near the hand of the slain man. A few feet away was the little hatchet with which he had been killed.

Slain First of Week.

Investigators Frank Donohue and Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office said that the condition of the body indicated that death occurred on Monday, or possibly on Tuesday.

The Rev. Mr. Cham, who was 40 years old, was an ordained minister of the Baptist church and had been in Chicago for two years. The church was supported by the Chicago Church federation. It was interdenominational and the pastor had wide contacts with various churches in Chicago and the suburbs.

Because of his accurate knowledge of Chinese life and customs, he was frequently invited to lecture in these churches. He sometimes staged Chinese dinners in traditional fashion for the instruction of his hosts.

Fail to Find Clew.

The coroner's investigators and Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the detective bureau were unable to find any clew to the motive for the killing. The minister, so far as could be learned, had no open enemies and was reputed to have steered clear of factional strife among the tongs in Chinatown.

Walter R. Mee, secretary of the Chicago Church federation, said that he believed the Wentworth avenue church was the only interdenominational one for Chinese in this country.

"The Rev. Mr. Cham formerly lived in California," he said, "and came here at our call. His work among his people was satisfactory and we had never heard of any trouble. He was well known to many ministers in the city and was regarded as a force for good in his community."

Typical Chinese Killing.

The manner of the killing was regarded as typically Chinese. It was suggested by the investigators that the Rev. Mr. Cham may have been suspected of giving information to immigration authorities who have been seizing Chinese emigrants who entered the United States illegally, but federal authorities said he had never aided them.

Robbery seemingly was not the motive, as the minister's watch was found in a bedrom adjoining the study.

The Rev. Mr. Cham's wife, is was said, is in China. He has a daughter living in Portland, Ore.

EX-PROSECUTOR PRESENTS ALIBIS IN BOOZE TRIAL

An abill defense was presented yesterday by Robert W. Besse, former state's attorney of Whiteside county, one of the defendants in the liquor conspiracy case on trial before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Only 22 defendants remain of the original 52 who faced trial, 30 having entered pleas of guilty or nolo contendere.

Besse, according to the charges, was owner of a farm near Fulton on which a huge still was found. According to the government's evidence, he had been seen on the farm on the night of June 6, 1930, making arrangements for construction of the still.

The former state's attorney placed his two sons, Kenard, 16 years old, and Robert W. Jr., 14 years old, on the stand to prove that on that night he did not leave his home because the birthday of the younger son was being celebrated.

A number of character witnesses also testified in behalf of Besse, among them Oscar E. Heard, justice of the Illinois Supreme court, who said that Besse's reputation was good.

Arthur Cooper, one of the defendants, who pleaded guilty, testified for Besse. He said all the arrangements for placing the still on the Besse farm had been made with Henry Kane, who lived on the farm, and that, so far as he knew, Besse knew nothing of the transaction.

ABYSSINIA MAKES APOLOGY TO U. S. ENVOY, HIT BY COP

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The foreign minister, the mayor, and three other cabinet members called today on Addison E. Southard, the American minister, and apologized for an assault on the American by a traffic policeman last Sunday. The policeman and several civilians are in prison as a result of the incident. Sentence will be passed later.

Washington Demands Redress.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The American government demanded redress today of Abyssinia for an attack Sunday on American Minister Southard by a policeman in the capital, Addis Ababa.

Secretary Stimson on receiving a report of the incident from Southard, instructed him to call on the emperor and inform him the United States "expects that prompt steps will be taken to punish those guilty of the attack." Southard was directed to add that the American government also expects the Ethiopian authorities to "take immediate and effective steps" to protect foreign representatives in that country.

HONOLULU, Jan. 22.—The grand jury considering the case of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men, charged with the abduction and murder of Joseph Kahahawai, deliberated for two and one-half hours today and then took a recess until Tuesday. A motion by defense attorneys to dismiss the police court complaint against the defendants was put over pending action by the grand jury.

Extreme secrecy shrouded the grand jury proceedings, but it was evident that some sort of deadlock developed. Judge Albert Cristy and the prosecution declined to comment, but it was reported that the jurors failed to reach a decision on an indictment. One report is that the jury voted a "no bill" and that the court refused to receive it. The theory gaining the most credence was that the jury was divided whether to vote an indictment under a first or second degree murder charge, or to eliminate the murder charge, or just a kidnaping indictment.

Gov. Lawrence M. Judd signed the Honolulu police reorganization bill today and appointed a police commission. The members are Ernest W. Green, George I. Brown, Antonio P. Castro, Edward E. Bodge, and Frederick D. Lowery.

RUSSIA PROMISES WORKERS BETTER LIVING STANDARD

Second Five Year Plan Is Revealed by State.

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Lifting of the soviet worker's standard of living to new heights was pledged by the state today in an extensive outline of the second five year plan.

First instructions for executing the successor to the present five year plan, now drawing to a conclusion, were contained in reports by Premier V. M. Molotoff and V. V. Kuybishev, head of the state planning commission. They were approved by the political bureau of the communist party.

A speedier rise in living standards than under the first five year plan must be assured, the reports stated, and the population must be supplied with the principal articles of consumption from two to three times the present schedule. The realization of these tasks was said to depend on technical reconstruction of industry, transportation and agriculture.

It will be necessary to increase the output of machinery under the second five year plan by at least three and a half times. It will be necessary to reach by 1937 a production of 100,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy against 17,000,000 in 1932.

Two hundred and fifty million tons of coal must be produced by the end of the plan against 90,000,000 in 1932, the output of oil must be raised two and a half to three times the present and the production of iron must jump to at least 22,000,000 tons.

Railway transportation must be completely reorganized, the reports continued, and from 15,000 to 18,000 miles of new road must be built. Larger and more powerful rolling stock must be introduced and the lines must be electrified.

Further developments in the production of nonferrous metals, chemicals, water, transportation, airways, roads, light and food industries were envisaged. Agriculture must be completely reorganized along socialist lines so that machines and tractors will be available on all collective farms.

The cattle breeding problem must be solved by increasing herds and marketable produce. The output of cotton and flax must be doubled, that of sugar beets trebled, and that of grain must rise to at least 1,300,000,000 centners (100 pounds).

Since these problems are inseparably connected with the mastery of technique, it was explained, it will be necessary to create a new technical intelligentsia from among the workers and peasants and the cultural level of all toilers must be raised.

Recovers After Removal of Knife from Brain

Linus Larson, 59 years old, 10112 Avenue M, is on the road to recovery after removal of a two and a half inch knife blade from his brain. Dr. Eric Oldberg, who performed the operation, said yesterday. The blade had been imbedded in the left frontal lobe of the brain for 30 years. Dr. Oldberg operated on Tuesday at the Illinois Research hospital of the University of Illinois college of medicine. The blade had caused attacks of epilepsy.

FLOOD MENACE GROWS AS RAIN SWELLS RIVERS

Coast Guards Rescue Many Delta Refugees.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—More rains in the Mississippi delta today and tonight are threatening new floods in the Greenville and Glendora sectors where, for more than a month, distraught farm occupants, town dwellers, and planters have been waging a battle against the swirling waters of the Tallahatchie and Yalobusha and other rivers. Rivers had been at a standstill for days, but are rising with the arrival of the rain.

Meanwhile, coast guardsmen and Red Cross workers are doing valiant service in getting refugees to protected points and supplying them with food and shelter.

Disease Perils Refugees.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Danger of disease in the crowded refugee camps of the flooded Mississippi delta developed into a new menace today as the waters became less an immediate threat. Physicians with medical supplies cruised the flood area to Sumner, Webb and Crowder where many of the refugees have been concentrated as reports that disease had broken out in some of the camps were received.

Wabash River Rises 16 Feet.

Vincennes, Ind., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The river situation was serious here tonight, due to heavy rains. All streams in this region, including the Wabash and White rivers in Indiana and the Embarrass river in Illinois, are rising again. The Wabash here is more than 2 feet above flood stage of 14 feet.

Flood Waters Block Roads.

Seymour, Ind., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—White river here began a steady rise last night, and today the river was at flood stage, 10 feet. Highways in this neighborhood will be blocked by high water by morning.

Lowland Dwellers Moving.

Mount Carmel, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—As the result of heavy rains in the upstream regions of the Wabash and White rivers, J. H. Armington, weather observer of Indianapolis, today issued a warning of a possible 26 foot stage of the Wabash river here. Lowland dwellers have started to move. The river today was at the 22.2 foot level.

DR. CHASE TELLS HOW UNIVERSITY IS CUTTING COSTS

By retarding and curtailing many normal activities of the University of Illinois, the institution will have effected a saving of several hundred thousand dollars by the end of the academic year, President Harry Woodburn Chase said yesterday at the close of a trustee meeting at the Blackstone hotel.

"The university has practically stopped all except the absolutely necessary expenditures," Dr. Chase said. "Like all enterprises these days, we are economizing in every possible direction. The stopping of replacement of equipment, repairs, building, and cuts in normal expenditures of every sort are necessitated by the general business situation.

"The university's funds in the First National bank of Champaign were fully protected, and there is no loss there. But that is altogether aside from the fact that the general situation in the state and in the country calls for everybody's cooperation. We are running for the remainder of the year on several hundred thousand dollars less than the amount authorized by the legislature. On account of the condition of the state treasury we have postponed indefinitely the building of our second medical unit in Chicago, for which the legislature appropriated $1,400,000."

FOUR MITCHELL JEWEL ROBBERS ARE SENTENCED

Four members of the "42" gang, convicted a week ago of the $150,000 jewel holdup in the Lake Forest home of William H. Mitchell on Nov. 21, were sentenced to from one year to life in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady in Waukegan yesterday. Judge Dady overruled motions for a new trial.

The prisoners are Frank Tufano, Nick Maentanis, Paul Rossi, and Joseph Perello. They are in the county jail pending an application for a writ of supersedeas with the Supreme court.

Attorney Frank McDonnell for the defense, in his plea for a new trial, charged that prejudicial testimony had been introduced. He referred to testimony of Lieut. William Malone of the Chicago police that he had seen the defendants in a police station. That testimony was ruled out during the trial.

Mrs. Morris Boguslowski Files Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Annette Bogeaus, 925 Glengyle place, filed a suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Maurice Bogeaus, better known as Morris Boguslowski, who was convicted last November of an attempt to extort money by threats from a physician. She seeks the decree on the grounds of conviction for a felony. The bill states that Bogeaus was convicted in 1929 of conspiracy and forgery, and that conviction has since been upheld by the Supreme court. She asks permission to resume her maiden name, Annette Greenwald.

Divorce Bill Says Mate Got Mail Order Decree

Mrs. Ann Barstow Henderson, a former cabaret dancer living at the Norwood hotel, 6400 Normal boulevard, charged yesterday in a bill for divorce that her husband got a mail order divorce in Matamoras, Mexico, and then lived with her for another year without telling her about it. The husband, Bruce, a real estate operator, lives with his parents at 6818 Prairie avenue. Mrs. Henderson charges cruelty, drunkenness, desertion, and adultery, and asks that the Mexican decree be declared invalid and that she be granted the divorce.

WESTERN FARMERS REBEL WHEN WILD DUCKS STRIP FIELDS

Brawley, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A mild uprising of northern Imperial valley ranchers against hungry wild ducks flared into an open armed rebellion today as an invading horde of 40,000 migratory birds from Salton sea sanctuaries attacked barley and vegetable fields with unstinted appetites.

Charges of lack of protection for farmers were hurled at state and federal governments. A mayor who owns extensive vegetable fields offered to furnish shells for all hunters and pay their fines if game wardens arrested them. Another rancher hired a marksman to guard his barley fields during the night.

A shotgun barrage, which echoed throughout the desert empire, blazed out as ranchers stalked into their fields to drive out, by slaughter if necessary, wild ducks. Weapons of all varieties replaced plows.

Chamber of commerce officers broadcast requests for farmers to file their estimated losses, said to amount to nearly $200,000 in less than 1½ years. Field agents of the chamber said they inspected more than 1,000 acres and found alfalfa and barley clipped close to the ground by ravaging ducks. Winter peas fared the same.

Salton sea sanctuaries annually are the haven for thousands of wild fowl. They are under the supervision of the state and government.

4,000 JOIN RENT RIOT AND BATTLE HUNDRED POLICE

Gotham Tenants Fight Eviction.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A rent riot in the heart of a communist district of the Bronx this afternoon threw a hundred policemen into battle against evicted tenants and 4,000 angry sympathizers. A dozen or more were injured from flying stones and bricks or in fist fights that exploded all over the clamorous scene, none seriously. Seven arrests were made.

For two months the tenants of a sixty family apartment house on Olinville avenue, in a district largely populated by Reds, have been refusing to pay their leasehold rents and have demanded heavy reductions which the landlord has refused. The landlord is the Marlin Construction Company corporation. During the two months the house has been in a state of siege.

The tenants declared a rent strike, filled their windows with placards announcing the strike and denouncing the landlord, held impromptu parades and indignation meetings in the open street and generally stirred the neighborhood with the chorus of their embittered complaints. Then the landlord went to court as a last resort and secured warrants of eviction for eighteen of the recalictrant tenants.

The tenants, bunched in front of their imperiled lares and penates screamed denunciations and called on the crowd to help stop the eviction. With that stones began to fly and bricks and whatever else came in handy. Several of the evicting officials were nicked by flying missiles as the street crowd kept pressing in. Finally they gave up the job. That brought the police into action.

Later a compromise settlement was reached on the basis of rent reductions of from $2 to $4 a room, the furniture was moved back, and those behind in payments given a reasonable time to pay up.

SEEKS TO FORCE HOOVER'S HAND ON WARSHIP BILL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The chances for passage at this session of legislation authorizing all warships needed to bring the American fleet up to the tonnage levels permitted by the London and Washington naval treaties were dimmed today by the disclosure that Republicans and Democrats are far from an agreement on the type of measure which should be enacted during the depression period.

Although the house naval committee will not vote on the Vinson 616 million dollar warship authorization bill until Monday, it was learned that several Republican members of the committee probably will not vote to recommend the measure to congress unless President Hoover sends word the bill is in conformity with his financial program. Former Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] said today he would endeavor to have a smaller program substituted for the Vinson bill.

In an attempt to clarify the atmosphere Mr. Britten and Representative George P. Darrow [Rep., Pa.] will ask President Hoover tomorrow to lay his cards on the table and make known definitely whether he is in favor of the Vinson bill or any type of naval construction legislation at this time.

CANAL TRIAL IS ADJOURNED OVER THE WEEK-END

The sanitary district graft conspiracy trial was adjourned over the week-end without any testimony being taken yesterday. The adjournment was taken to give First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup and his staff an opportunity to gather the loose ends of the case together. The prosecution will conclude its side of the case Monday, even if it is necessary to have a night session, it was announced.

"We intend to end this case with a grand smash," said Prosecutor Northup. "We are busy tabulating some contract work, which will show that the district lost a large sum, perhaps as much as $500,000, through one deal whereby bills were duplicated."

Defense Attorneys Albert Fink and John McInerney refused to discuss their possible defense in the case, although they said that the first step after the prosecution closes will be to argue concerning the sufficiency of the proof by the prosecution on the conspiracy charge.

BOOKS

Author Hides Name as Book Wins Praise

Jealous Wife Heroine of "Forever and Ever."

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Forever and Ever," by Warren Spencer [King]. Published yesterday.

"FOREVER AND EVER" is a first novel with as spectacular an advance critical approbation as any I remember of late years.

From Rupert Hughes it elicited: "The author climbs from climax to climax . . . it's Greek tragedy in modern garb. The novel has great power and reality." Upon the occasion of the acceptance of the manuscript, Mr. Hughes sent a telegram to the author, saying, "Three cheers for the American book business for publishing your great novel."

Theodore Dreiser says it has "A situation handled honestly and with sound psychology and natural and proper emotion," and calls it "a very good first book." Burton Rascoe declares that "The book has solid merit. A sort of Dreiserian integrity runs through it. I am sure that it will have an excellent sale . . . that it will get into the best seller list."

Dr. Louis E. Bisch, a well known psychiatrist, adds, "What impressed me concerning 'Forever and Ever' was the psychological insight and accuracy of the character drawing . . . Mr. Spencer has given us an added insight into human emotions and motives."

Other names adorn critical enconiums. And the circumstances of the publication of "Forever and Ever" are not without their own peans of praise. The novel is the work of a well known editor, the associate editor of one of the large monthly magazines. His identity is an open secret now. Before the book was published, being a modest soul and suspicious of his own work, he sent the manuscript to several prominent authors, saying it was the work of an unknown writer in whom he was interested and he would like to have their critical opinion of it.

The praise given the manuscript was praise for that unknown writer. When he was convinced that the book wasn't bad, "Mr. Spencer" (wild horses won't drag that man's name out of me until he shoots the starting gun) revealed its author's real name to its admirers.

After all of the uproarious handclapping which it already has received, my voice may sound a little feeble when I say that to me "Forever and Ever" is not the great novel discovery of the year; that I don't expect it to be the best seller of its year, and that it isn't exactly Greek tragedy. By overpraise sometimes a fickle public may be put off a really good book. Or perhaps that's the way to start a landslide in the book business. The career of "Forever and Ever" will be an interesting development to watch, anyway.

Meanwhile, "Forever and Ever" has a tremendous psychological honesty that must be apparent to the most casual reader, and which separates it from the countless books of the vicissitudes and adjustments and failures of love in marriage. It is the story of a young man, attractive to and attracted by women, who marries a girl who is literally his ideal. The girl, through an unfortunate heritance, believes that all men are deceivers and goads her husband with suspicions which are false, but which have a damning semblance of reality—so does fate pull the strings that make us all hurl ourselves (and our hearts) about. Just a shade more understanding in their relationships and a marriage which was the culmination of real love, would have been a success. Just a little. It is in recording those shades that the author has done a memorable piece of work.

The hero is a young man of volatile emotions. The author pictures those emotions with vivid honesty. His heroine is a young woman who is too near conscious perfection to be subject to any whimsies of emotion, whose struggle never is with her own shortcomings, but with those of others. They love each other passionately and the young man at least knows that his love is a love "forever and ever." But love isn't enough. Through it adversity can be conquered, and is, but not their inherent selves.

The author uses his material skillfully. He succeeds in writing a book which has all of the surface facets of a light, popular novel, but which is psychologically a moving treatise on human maladjustment.

What keeps "Forever and Ever" from being (to me) the great novel which its admirers claim it to be is not the author's material but the way he writes. There is neither grace, nor charm, nor beauty in his style, nor are there starkness and power, as there is in the unadorned style of Ernest Hemingway, for instance. It is in spite of the way the book is written, in spite of the somewhat heavy, description and narrative and dialogue, that "Forever and Ever" is a good book.

Lincoln as Kentucky Boy Theme of Book

Another Author Tells About Sailing Ships.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"Burro's Money Bag," by Margaret Thomas [Abingdon Press].

"Blackface," by Thelma Bell [Doubleday-Doran].

IN "Abe Lincoln, Kentucky Boy," Raymond Warren gives us the story of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood in Kentucky, presenting a realistic picture of the young Abraham as son of a pioneer family, and of the environment of which he was a part. Beginning his story with the death of the boy's grandfather at the hands of a skulking savage and including something of the boyhood and youth of his father, the author has succeeded in giving a very realistic picture of the life and traditions into which the young Abraham came and of their influence upon the growing boy.

The later chapters of the book are devoted to the story of the martyred President and the origin and activities of the Lincoln Farm association. The author has somewhat complicated the story for young readers by inserting incidents of later adult life while discussing his childhood, and then returning to the original subject, breaking the straightforward narrative. However, the book is interesting and inspiring, and will have an appeal for the reader of 12 or 14 who, familiar with the story of Lincoln as man and President, would like to know something more about his life as a boy.

Two especially interesting books for young information seekers are "The Book of the Sailing Ship" by Stanley Rogers and "Toys and Toy Makers" by James E. Tippett. The first is an account of the development of the sailing ship from prehistoric days to the present, and includes material on all phases of sailing, the crew, sailors' customs, superstitions, etc. Adventure lovers will enjoy the tales of treasure ships, famous voyages and freak crafts. The second relates the history of toys and toy making in a manner which will fascinate young people. Toy making is reviewed from the early days of Greece and Egypt to that of our own times, and American made toys traced from the mountains of North Carolina to the eastern manufacturing towns where whole villages devote themselves to this business. Attractive illustrations add to the interest of the subject.

Our list today also includes two of the most delightful stories for young animal lovers that we have seen in a long time. They are Margaret Thomas' "The Burro's Money Bag" and Thelma Bell's "Blackface." Both are stories for younger children which will bring real joy to little readers. The former is a story of a little Mexican boy whose great desire was to own a burro, and of how he saved and sacrificed to accomplish his purpose. It is a very human story of a little boy who worked hard to secure the desire of his heart, and of his joy in attaining it. It is, besides, a fine story of Mexican life in city and country. "Blackface" is a picture story book of an adventuresome little lamb who went to the city on the cowcatcher of the engine that passed his meadow each day and of his experiences there. Children will love it.

Malcolm Campbell Plans Another Treasure Hunt

Sir Malcolm Campbell, author of "Searching for Pirate Treasure on Cocos Island" [Stokes], will head another expedition of Anglo-American sportsmen to the Pacific island where he believes there is $60,000,000 of gold and silver and jewels. This island is 500 miles off the west coast of Central America. He is said to have all the assistance he needs, both financial and otherwise, and the Costa Rican government has offered to supply an armed guard for his party.

True realism in the best tradition of Zola and Balzac

This serious novel, holding a high place in European literature, deals candidly with the life of the inmates of the notorious Red House. It required a change in social attitudes before the book could be presented to the American public and earn respect for its probing of human and social evil.

Perhaps Wilde Said "Last Word" on Shaw, Harris

Concerning Frank Harris' life of Bernard Shaw it has been disputed as to which one had the last word. Perhaps Oscar Wilde said the last word about each of them many years ago. "Shaw has no enemies—and none of his friends like him. And Frank Harris has been received in all the great houses—once."

Carveth Wells Will Talk Tomorrow for the Midland Authors

Carveth Wells, who has had adventure with a capital A in all sorts of places, the Malay jungle and what not, and who has written books to cheer those who are bound by fate to their own firesides, will thrill his fellow craftsmen with the inside story of his adventures tomorrow evening when the Society of Midland Authors dines at the Fortnightly club in his honor.

Margaret Ayer Barnes [Mrs. Cecil Barnes], author of "Years of Grace," which won the Pulitzer novel prize last year, and "Westward Passage," is president of the society, and Mr. Arthur Meeker Jr., whose second novel, "Strange Capers," was a popular publication of 1931, is chairman of the social committee which arranged the evening.

Mr. Wells is something of a "debunker" of the business of seeking copy in far parts and it is rumored that when he gets confidential he extracts the teeth and claws from marauding lions and makes them seem little pets of the forest.

Miss Sylvia Thompson, the very popular English novelist, whose "Summer's Night" will be published on Feb. 2, will be among the guests.

Warless War Predicted as Result of Economic Loss

In the book called "America's Tomorrow" [Funk & Wagnalls], by C. C. Furnas, we have a few more prophecies on what the future of this country will be. The author predicts there will be corporate farming instead of the small tenant farming of the present, that farms will be managed scientifically in large units, that every one, due to the accomplishments of machines, will have plenty of leisure [even a four or two hour day], and that war will be permanently outlawed in the world not because of unselfishness but because of the world's recognition of the disastrous aftermaths of such struggles.

LAST YEAR'S WIFE

By ALICE M. WILLIAMSON

SYNOPSIS.

Lorne Carlton and Dick Farrow, popular moving picture stars of Hollywood, sail for Europe on a delayed honeymoon, after a year's happy marriage. Lorne is sad about leaving, as she has an undefinable presentiment of trouble, but Dick is anxious for the adventure. Dick's parents are famous on the stage. Lorne, who fought her way through poverty to the heights, feels that she is not approved by the elder Farrows. Dolores, duchess of Crowninshield, a friend of Dick's parents, has invited the young people to be her guests in London. She is divorced from the duke, but is one of England's most important hostesses. From the first moment of their meeting Dick is a willing captive of the beautiful and charming duchess. Before the visit is ended Lorne realizes that she has lost her husband. She returns home alone, Dick deciding to give up his movie career and remain in London. Back in Hollywood, Lorne obtains a Mexican divorce from Dick, and shortly after Dick and Dolores are married. Two years after their separation Dick's name is almost forgotten by the movie fans, while Lorne has made several successful pictures. Then Dick returns to Hollywood, with his duchess, and calls on Lorne, begging forgiveness.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

THE CARDS ON THE TABLE.

Lorne rose and held out her hand, but the telephone began to ring in a determined way. She went to the desk where it stood under the puffed skirt of a Marie Antoinette shepherdess, a present from Dick before their marriage.

The same thought was in both their minds—"Is it Dolores?"

"Why, hello, darling!" Lorne exclaimed gayly, and Dick sighed his relief. "No, I'm not alone just now," she went on. "Quite an old friend has been calling. Motor to La Venta for dinner? What fun! I'd love to. But wait—Let me think! My gracious! I'd nearly forgotten that a woman may come here on most important business. I daren't be out. We'll have to put it off, I'm afraid, dear thing. Good-by, bless you. O, I almost forgot to say I've been practicing the song. It goes well."

She hung up, turned and explained to Dick.

"Sorry," she said, "but that was my director, Eddie Waring. You know all about him, of course, how marvelous he is."

"I didn't know what terms you were on with him," Dick answered, grimly, an expression on his face as if he had eaten a lemon.

"Terms?" Lorne sweetly registered surprise. "O, my calling him 'darling' you mean, and all that? But, do you know, I really believe I learned that sort of thing from the duchess! She did it so constantly with you from the first day."

When Dick had gone, Lorne rushed upstairs and said a prayer of praise. Then she quickly changed her dress. She had lunched and received her late husband in a little sleeveless white silk sports frock; but it was officially afternoon now, and she could appropriately be elegant. She wanted to be elegant. She wanted to be at her very best and as beautiful as possible to confront [confront was the word] Dolores, duchess, if Dolores came.

Lately, Lorne had been letting her hair grow. She undid a bun and arranged instead a row of baby curls with two in front of each ear. She then slipped into a pale pink organdie which she had worn once, and been told that it made her look sixteen. It had a narrow black velvet sash, so she put on black slippers to go with it. She was choosing between a string of pink coral beads and a jet choker when Filipina almost burst in to announce that there was a duchess downstairs. She said to give the name of duchess of Crowdingshell, or something like that.

Lorne, a Lorne transformed since the morning, went downstairs slowly. Talk of queens! There were two queens in that living room when Lorne Carlton made her entrance, and Dolores Crowninshield stood up to meet her.

"How do you do?" asked the moving picture actress of the duchess. "I read in the paper," she repeated her late speech to Dick Farrow, "that you had come to Los Angeles. Nice of you to call and see me."

Dolores was in black and white. She was as spectacular as ever and slightly more mature. Artificial, too; brittle, somehow!

"Lorne!" the duchess exclaimed, "I really did come meaning to 'be nice.' Don't put on airs with me, dear. I always admired you so much, from first to last."

"And I you," replied Lorne. "Can you stay to tea or have you come only to say 'how do you do and good-by?'"

"I'd love to stay to tea," the duchess said. "I've got such a lot I want to talk about."

Lorne rang, ordered tea, and asked the duchess if she would like to see the garden. The duchess wouldn't, thanks.

"I've journeyed all the way from England with just one object: to see you," she added, piling charm on charm as she spoke, in the way she had with men.

"That's interesting," said Lorne. "Tea'll be here in a few minutes. Of course, it's something about Dick you want to say."

Dolores looked slightly seasick. "Yes, it's about Dick, I admit."

"What about him?" challenged Lorne. "He's no business of mine, now. He's yours."

"No, indeed, that's where you're mistaken, my dear. He's yours," said Dolores. He never really got over loving you. The boy is breaking his heart for you now."

"Rather late in the day for him to do that! Well, now, I suppose, you want to get rid of Dick, and you must have a pretty strong reason for doing that or you wouldn't bother; you'd let him hang around and pay no attention to him. You needn't have traveled six thousand miles for that. Now, I happen to know something about your divorce from the duke that I didn't know when I was in England. I got it out of Dick's parents when they were here, after I came home."

"Dick's parents!" cried Dolores, "but they were delighted to have their son divorced from you and married to me."

"I grant you that," Lorne agreed, "but they were a tiny bit sorry for the deserted one. They wanted to console me. Not that I complained. But they pandered to the cat in me by telling the true story. You hadn't been married to the duke long when King Loris of Dalvania turned up in England—the 'loneliest royal bachelor,' he was called, looking for a wife. He saw you, fell head over heels in love and hurried away to try and forget. But you didn't see why being a married woman need interfere when royal love was in question. And you were semi-royal yourself, so birth was no obstacle. You had a heart to heart talk with the duke and, as in those days he couldn't refuse you anything, he didn't refuse you a divorce. The only trouble was, by the time he'd given you cause and the whole business had dragged along through the law courts, King Loris had been persuaded to marry the Danish Princess Brunhilda. That tale shows me your line—your method, you know! You wouldn't have wanted to be off with the duke if you hadn't had something better up your sleeve. The same now. Whom have you decided to marry if you can whistle Dick down the wind?"

"Well, I'm not a lady," Lorne explained. "Not a lady in the sense you are. I don't have to pretend. Look here, duchess, if you'll be frank with me—if you'll tell me why you really came to Los Angeles, and who it is you want to marry next, I may just possibly be able to help you quite a lot."

Dolores stared, swallowed, hesitated.

"I can put two and two together," said Lorne. "The duke of Crowninshield's second duchess has died. He's one of the richest men in Europe. He has an heir and an understudy for his heir. You may not have quite as much money now as when you had the duke for your husband. If he took you on again, he wouldn't need to be worrying your life out to have children, which I'm sure you'd hate to do. Is it the duke?" Lorne insisted.

"It—it is," Dolores answered, in a whisper.

"Where is he?"

"Traveling where?"

"O! In California."

"I thought as much!" Lorne exclaimed. "So it was the duke you came to see in Los Angeles, not me?"

"I had to see you, too, Lorne. It wasn't a fib I told you," Dolores excused herself. "I—thought if you loved Dick you might—might——"

"I quite understand," said Lorne. "You thought I might be the co-respondent. Then you could divorce Dick."

"Well, don't you want him?" shrilled Dolores. "You've seen him, I know. He's been here."

"If a cat may look at a king, an ex-husband may look at his ex-wife without being divorced for it. As for my wanting him, that's not the question now. It is what you want. I have an idea, just an idea, that Dick doesn't know yet about this duke business. But even more important to you—does the duke know?"

"Tom loved me dearly once," said Dolores. "That's why he gave me my divorce. To make me happy."

By Mae Tinée.

A new star has risen in the cinema heavens. Miss Marian Marsh! The girl who made such a hit as Trilby in "Svengali" with John Barrymore, and who has done such consistently good work since then. "Under Eighteen" is her first stellar vehicle.

Miss Marsh is an easy and versatile young actress and "Under Eighteen" makes a human and interesting vehicle for her.

She is seen as a little daughter of the poor, who loses for a time her taste for matrimony with the nice young chap to whom she's engaged because of her sister's uncomfortable domestic experiences.

Seamstress—and observer—in a fashionable modiste shop that caters to girls who have chosen the easiest way, she decides that it would be bright of her to go and do likewise. An experience in the penthouse of a man about town—who turns out to be a decent sort—brings her to her senses, and makes home and her Jim look mighty good to her.

Miss Marsh makes her heroine a real and appealing person. She portrays a nice girl who is far from being a dumb girl and tinctures her characterization with humor and a quality of thoughtfulness that is unusual. She is sweetly naïve, without once becoming saccharine or silly.

She has a top notch supporting cast. Regis Toomey is a peach as honest Jim who goes about his business of loving and protecting his Marge in convincing and amusing fashion. His proposal atop a truck parked by a fire plug is downright funny and has an outcome that makes the audience howl. As a matter of fact, the piece is well studded with laughs.

Emma Dunn as Marge's mother, Anita Page as her sister, Norman Foster as her disillusioning brother-in-law, and Warren William as the penthouse experiment are fine. J. Farrell MacDonald, Maude Eburne, and Paul Porcasi contribute colorful bits. Direction is unusually intelligent.

Run the old eyes over this little programmer!

PHOTOGRAPHY: Excellent.

DIRECTION: Ordinary.

SOUND: All right.

MUSIC: Lovely, of course, though there's not a great deal of it.

SETS, SCENERY, COSTUMES: Of the period and effective.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Not much. The action is too meandering and the players not long on personality.

Yankee Woman Mourns Lack of Bathtubs in Russia

Russia still is a land of too few bathtubs, despite its new factories and entire new cities under construction, Miss Margaret Bourke-White, an American industrial photographer, found. Miss Bourke-White returned to her New York studio in the Chrysler building six weeks ago from a five weeks' stay in Russia.

She is stopping in the Drake hotel here while she photographs industrial Chicago.

"I didn't mind eating nothing for days at a time but a little cheese or chocolate I'd brought with me from Germany," said Miss Bourke-White. "For 10 days I had no hot food at all, but I was too busy to care. It did bother me, however, not to be able to find bathtubs.

"I not only wanted to bathe in the bathtubs, but to print up my negatives. I had to carry all my own chemicals around with me and then hunt for bathtubs to convert into dark rooms," she said.

Miss Bourke-White photogrpahed the Magneto-Gorsk steel plant under construction in the Ural mountains, where a city the size of Gary is being built around the plant. She reached there after a two days airplane flight from Moscow, in company with several Moscow officials. They silently shared their black bread with her in exchange for a bit of chocolate, and gave her glasses of tea to wash it down with, she said.

"Of course they don't heat their planes, so it was rather cold, as it was in November," said Miss Bourke-White. "The tea cooled off before I could get it to my mouth."

Mary Roberts Rinehart Says Mystery Yarns Lessen Readers' Woes

Mary Roberts Rinehart, writer of mystery novels, arrived in Chicago on the Pennsylvania railroad's Liberty limited yesterday. She had a mystery novel by another author under her arm. Before departing on the Santa Fé Chief for Hollywood to visit her son, Allan, who is associated with Paramount Pictures company, Mrs. Rinehart stopped in the Union station and purchased several more mystery stories.

"By becoming completely absorbed in the difficulties some one else is in, readers can forget their own troubles," she said. "I have noticed that the more active a man is in business, the deeper he delves into mystery and crime stories."

Mrs. Rinehart is taking a vacation from her workshop in Washington, D. C., where she resides with her husband, Dr. Stanley Marshall Rinehart, a physician.

Ancient Gold Workers Called Art's Masters

Expert Tells Wonders of Mixtec Tombs.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22.—In a letter published in El Universal, the leading Mexican daily, Alfonso X. Caso, government archæologist in charge of the expedition at Monte Alban, Oaxaca, declares the tomb of the Mixtec chieftains recently unearthed there constitutes "one of the richest, if not the richest tomb found in the Americas."

He says the actual discovery was made on Jan. 9 last, but public announcement was withheld so the jewels could be removed, classified and packed for shipment without attracting attention. In the interim, he says, he and his two assistants and wife worked 14 hours daily carrying out this task.

At the entrance to the tomb containing the bodies of the Mixtec chieftains, he said, were a number of large Zapotec urns, all broken, and apparently purposely. The entrance to the tomb was well concealed by earth, he said, and the roof, through which the burial probably was accomplished, was covered with a huge stone.

"Within the tomb, Señor Caso said, "were bones adorned with bracelets of gold and copper and collars studded with turquoise and jade. One of the chieftains wore on his breast an ornament of alligator teeth, which was supposed to give the ferocity of the animal to those who wore it. The mouth of another skeleton was adorned with an eagle's head worked in gold.

"Innumerable rings in gold, silver or copper were found. Most of them had been exquisitely engraved. Even the bones found had been engraved. Some of these bore scenes, apparently depicting incidents from the lives of the buried chieftains.

"But probably the most valuable discovery of all was the magnificent head of "Xipotectec the Lord of Grief," which stands ten centimeters high and is of solid gold. In concluding his letter Señor Caso says it is impossible to relate all "the beauty and glories of our discoveries."

"We understand now," he says, "how ignorant we have been in describing as ignorant those Indian peoples capable of creating a civilization so wonderful as is manifested in their arts."

METHODISTS DROP 200 OLD HYMNS; KEEP 'ROCK OF AGES'

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Methodists of America modernized their hymn book today. A committee of the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, and Methodist Episcopal, South, churches doomed about 200 old tunes to oblivion and considered new ones in their places.

Those stricken out include "Church Triumphant," "O Come with Me," and "O Perfect Life of Love."

"Nearer My God to Thee" was among those retained. Among the reasons for rejections were such expressions as "Impossible," "exaggerated imagery," or "obsolete." It was said the modern hymns will make even more beautiful the denomination's collections of tunes, revised for the first time in 25 years.

The committee, composed of ministers, college professors, and singers, reached decision after decision as one member played a piano and James R. Houghton of Boston university led the singing in a rich baritone voice.

Irving Maurer, Beloit, Elected President of Colleges' Association

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Irving Maurer of Beloit, Wis., today was elected president of the Association of American Colleges. He succeeded Dr. Ernest H. Wilkins, president of Oberlin. Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., was chosen treasurer.

A new type of college has been recommended for the man or woman headed for a nonprofessional life. It was suggested by Dr. Wilkins, who said the present type of college does not fit such persons properly for social living—home life, earning, citizenship, leisure, and the fields of philosophy and religion.

Britain Rules U. S. Author May Act in Own Play

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Producers of Susan Glaspell's comedy, "Trifles," were informed today that the government would make no objection to the appearance of the author as a member of the cast when the play opens next week. It was reported yesterday that Miss Glaspell would be refused permission to appear in her own play because the part might be taken by one of the many unemployed British actresses.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An item in THE TRIBUNE stated that the will of Mrs. Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, society matron and art leader, provided that her $250,000 estate should pass eventually to the Winterbotham fund at the Art institute. This was incorrect. The will placed the property in trust for Mrs. Carpenter's daughter, Genevieve, whose marriage to Patrick C. Hill took place shortly after her mother's death. There was a provision that if the daughter left no heirs the property should be added to the Art institute fund established by the late John R. Winterbotham. There was a direct bequest of $5,000 to the Winterbotham fund.

It was stated yesterday that the Hoosier salon in the Marshall Field galleries would be opened this morning. The salon will be open to the public Monday morning. A preview will be held this evening for invited guests.

Gulf Stream Under Study as Key to Weather

Yale Expedition Hopes for Longer Forecasts.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The course a drop of cold water follows after entering the Gulf of Mexico until it flows out again in the great gulf stream will be traced by a Yale university scientific expedition sailing from Miami tomorrow. Where the water comes from is another question that the expedition will seek to answer.

Dr. A. E. Parr of Yale will head the expedition on its five months' cruise. His companions will be M. B. Bishop, Gifford C. Ewing and Drayton Cochran, owner of the schooner yacht Mabel Taylor, on which the journey will be made.

The time a drop of cold water stays in the gulf, Dr. Parr said, is vital information in forecasting the weather. Also its direction from the time it enters the gulf until it is warm enough to rise to the surface and flow out again is important. When scientists know the answers they may be able to forecast weather conditions for months or even years in advance, he said.

The Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea are protected from the Atlantic by a reef that ranges from 1,100 fathoms below the surface to places where it rises above the water to form islands. This reef keeps the cold water of the Atlantic out of the gulf, but allows the warmer water of the gulf stream to roll out and start northward.

In addition to getting the warmest water from the Atlantic, the gulf also is heated the year around by a tropical sun, Dr. Parr said. Despite this, however, there are places in the gulf where the water is only eight degrees above freezing temperature. It is this water whose source he wishes to trace as well as to find out what happens to it before it enters the gulf stream.

Lucille Williams Weds J. H. Harris in West

The bridegroom was attended by George O'Brien, screen actor, while Miss Mary Harris, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor.

The wedding followed a three year, romance which started at O'Brien's home. Many of the movie colony's notables including Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Regis Toomey, Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Brown, Eddie Quillan and Winnie Lightner, were present.

A reception was held at a Beverly Hills hotel following the nuptials. The couple will leave tomorrow for Honolulu on a honeymoon.

BRONX ZOO LACKS GROUNDHOG FOR WINTER PROPHET ROLE

It is a crisis of no mean proportions. Already the big buzzard and elk men at the Bronx zoo are viewing with alarm where formerly they pointed with pride. Candlemas sans groundhog classifies with beans without pork and eggs without ham.

"How," inquired Dr. Raymond Ditmars, the zoo's chief, today, "are we to predict how long winter will last if we have no groundhog? I tell you, gentlemen, the idea is preposterous."

It is admittedly one of the gravest zoölogical - meteorological-prognostication dilemmas the Bronx ever has known. The public has shown itself sympathetic; but as Dr. Ditmars said, somewhat impatiently, this is no time for sympathy. Tears, he intimated, are no substitute for groundhogs.

Mystery Man Called Nemesis in Fox Studio

New Yorker Takes Long Look at Hollywood.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 22.—Claudia Dell, instead of Helene Costello, gets the leading rôle opposite Tom Mix in the latter's "Destry Rides Again," which starts just as soon as surgeons acquiesce in Mix's plea to let him climb aboard a horse. Miss Costello was billed for the part when Mix fell ill and underwent an operation for peritonitis. Due to her divorce fracas with Lowell Sherman, Miss Costello decided to take a couple of months abroad.

The Hollywood Reporter prints an article saying that the big shake-up at the Fox studio resulted after an undercover representative of the company's new financial powers had been sent here to look over the way things were going at the studio. The representative came here with a letter to Winfield Sheehan, the now replaced general manager here, which instructed Sheehan to give the man a job. The job was given and the man got an office on the studio grounds, but according to the Reporter was allowed to sit in it for four months without being allowed to do any work, or permitted to see Sheehan. In the four months the undercover man gathered a voluminous report. When he returned to the New York main offices of the Fox moguls, the upheaval among the studio's former big shots followed.

U. S. Senate Votes Medals for Post, Gatty, Flyers

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Gold medals for Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in recognition of their flight around the world were authorized under a resolution approved today by the senate. House action still is necessary.

Children Need Other Youngsters Their Own Age for Companions

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

You can share many things with your children—the joy of wind in the trees; the happiness of the early morning sun, which is a special kind of sun; the delicate humor of young things in a zoo, the ecstasy of a wild ocean surf. And you can partially share with them, through remembrance, the excitement and thrill of the Fourth of July, or the pleasure in little bits of bright colored silks for doll's clothes. But there is a realm where you cannot enter—only a like soul, that is, the soul of a child, can hold this communion.

"What are you doing?" a little guest was asked by the mother of his young host. He was stretched out straight on the couch, an intense look on his face, and queer sounds issuing from his mouth. She wondered what he had been eating and thought he was perhaps taken with a fit! "I'm making believe I'm a sky rocket," he answered.

Do you believe any grown-up could be quite so delightfully imaginative as that, or as "foolish"? Only a boy of the same age could truly understand and be interested. She saw that as another boy promptly made himself into a right angle and began to hiss, in imitation of a Fourth of July zizzer.

Our children need our companionship and should have it—lots of it. But there is a place filled by a companion of their own age, or sex, or temperament that cannot be filled by the most loving and sympathetic and imaginative parent. It is surprising that even in the larger cities it is often difficult to find neighborhood playmates for children. Many of my correspondents write presenting this problem.

It may be that there are no children of the right age near them, or children are shy and do not make friends easily. But companionship should be managed, even if it means the extra trouble of inviting children who are not in the immediate neighborhood, or helping along a tentative friendship by little treats until the entente cordiale is established.

Chap Loses His Head When Asked to Join Stag Line at Parties

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl holds a secretarial position. The young man works in an adjoining office. They met three years ago and all went merrily for them until the social bug hit the boy friend. They had talked of marriage and were saving for it.

Then, the boy got on one of the social lists as an "extra" man for deb parties and he has never been the same since. He high hats his old flame. Tells her of the gorgeous parties he has been to, the gorgeous girls he meets doing duty on the stag line.

"He is handsome," his old flame writes, "and weak as he is, I love him. He cannot afford the changes of clothes he now thinks part of his social act. He can't afford the meals he treats the girls to. And his health is suffering from the crazy late hours.

"His job is less secure than it was, I have learned from one of his coworkers. Often he just looks as if he had been off on all night bat. What can you do with a boy like that when you want to save him for something better?

"I doubt if one of those girls would marry him. He hasn't family or money behind him. His salary couldn't support such a girl. Of course, he hasn't cut me out of his life altogether, but he has changed so of late. Is there a cure for him?

"MONA."

The question is whether a cure for you, "Mona," wouldn't be better than for him, whether you couldn't do better for yourself. But, then, that's neither here nor there, if you are crazy about him. Maybe you are the woman he needs to set him straight. Maybe your clever handling will put him on the right road again. Not that he is on a downward course because he loves being part of the stag line. Yet it is no secret that more than one young man's life has been ruined by the taste of high life so acquired when he hadn't the means to see it through.

Social secretaries have portrayed this theme more than once in their confessions. The thing sometimes gets in the blood so that a formerly decent, self-respecting young man prefers a gigolo job to alienation from the society show.

If you love him, "Mona," keep your head on your shoulders! Perhaps a blow like the loss of his job would be a blessing. Don't nag. Lie quietly in wait for the return of the old adored character.

When you have the chance, show your faith in him.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson have gone to their Long Island home to remain over Sunday.

Mrs. Hyde, wife of the secretary of agriculture, was given a luncheon today by Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel at the National Woman's Country club.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago was the guest of honor of the Illinois State society of Washington at a reception this afternoon at the Willard. Mrs. Lewis was detained in Chicago. She will return next week.

Mrs. Herbert Feis, wife of the economic adviser to the state department and a granddaughter of the late President Garfield, was hostess at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

The president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn of Chicago were hosts to the personnel of the organization at a reception and dance this afternoon in the council chambers of the headquarters facing Lafayette square.

THREE MEALS A DAY From the Tribune Cook Book

Food Talk.

Mrs. A. R. K. has written requesting a recipe for an "old fashioned spice cake. The one below fills your requirements for age and is most palatable. You may or may not, depending on your energy this morning, ice the cake. If you do, make a light icing such as a white boiled one, whose charm is based on its appearance rather than any strong flavoring. A decided flavoring would detract from the perfection of flavoring in the body of the cake.

By the way, this is a cake that should be baked in a loaf, or else in a thick layer. Don't forget to cut and grease a piece of paper for the bottom, so that the cake will fairly slip out of the pan after the baking.

MARY'S SPICE CAKE.

1 cup of sugar.
½ cup of butter.
1 cup of sour milk or buttermilk.
1 teaspoon of soda.
1 teaspoon of cinnamon.
½ teaspoon of cloves.
¼ teaspoon of mace.
½ teaspoon of salt.
2 cups of flour.
2 eggs.
1 cup of seedless raisins.

Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly. Add to them the sour milk in which the soda has been dissolved. Beat the eggs until light. Fold them into the butter mixture. Then add the sifted dry ingredients and the raisins. Bake in a loaf or thick layer, in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit] about forty-five minutes.

The following baked chocolate custard was suggested as a dessert for tomorrow noonday dinner, the menu for which was given yesterday.

BAKED CHOCOLATE CUSTARD.

2 eggs.
4 tablespoons of sugar.
¼ teaspoon of salt.

OR

1½ tablespoons of cocoa.

Mix the eggs thoroughly with the salt, sugar, and cocoa [if this is used]. Stir until the sugar dissolves. Then pour over the egg mixture the hot milk [if chocolate is used, it should have been dissolved in the milk first], slowly stirring all the time. Pour into buttered custard cups. Place the cups in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] until the custard is firm.

2 cups of milk or soup stock.

Put the ingredients together, in the order given, carefully. Season with salt and pepper. Place the hash in a casserole, and dot the top with bits of butter. Bake about forty-five minutes in a moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit].

SOCIETY NEWS AND FASHIONS OF THE DAY

Sponsors Ready for Chevalier Benefit Concert

Friday's Symphony Program Retains Favor.

THE smartly dressed crowds at Orchestra hall every Friday afternoon during the concert season make one wonder if, after all, the Friday symphony concert is not more consistently popular with fashionable Chicago women than any other social or artistic event.

Women who are fortunate enough to possess season tickets cherish them as they do the family china and silver. They seldom make conflicting engagements on Friday afternoon and they take care that luncheons each Friday are over in good time to get to Orchestra hall.

Yesterday afternoon there was not an unoccupied seat in Orchestra hall. In the audience there were row upon row of familiar faces of women who have been attending the Friday concerts for years. There were younger women and girls, too, whose concert attendance record is shorter than that of their elders, but no less earnest.

Among the regulars were Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, wearing a smart black wool suit trimmed with Persian lamb; her daughter, Miss Eleanor McCormick, also in black, with a broadcloth coat and short caracul jacket; Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine Jr., Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and her sister, Mrs. Philip Miller; Mrs. Farwell Winston, Mrs. Waller Borden and her daughter, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Willard Newhall Boyden, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Miss Louise Neff, Miss Mary Ellen Prindiville, Miss Betty Scriven, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mrs. James R. Addington, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mrs. Frank S. Sims, and Miss Janet Ayer.

French Comedian Will Be Guest at Casino Club.

The French-American benefit tomorrow afternoon at the Erlanger theater will attract most of society, for not only is every one interested in helping swell the fund for the French unemployed, but the debonair Chevalier, with the infectious smile, is a great drawing card. There will be luncheons galore before the performance, among the hostesses being Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, Mrs. John L. Senior, Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris. M. and Mme. Chevalier will be the guests of the executive committee at luncheon at the Casino. James B. Forgan is treasurer of the committee in charge, Ira Nelson Morris and M. Bougereal, the French consul, are co-chairmen of the men's committee, and Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Wolf are co-chairmen of the women's committee.

If the Chevalier benefit wasn't attracting practically everybody in town tomorrow afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift would be taking quite a large party of their friends to the Olympic ski meet at Ogden Dunes. As it is, the Swifts have managed to round up about a dozen sports enthusiasts who will give away their Chevalier tickets and go to the dunes instead. The party will motor down in time for luncheon before the meet. The Charles Swifts, with Harold and Alden Swift, are to have dinner with some of Mrs. Swift's Norwegian friends at a Norwegian club this evening.

Katherine Hare and Fred McLaughlin II. Wed Today.

A wedding which will bring a charming new matron to Chicago is taking place today in Radnor, just outside Philadelphia, when Miss Katherine Hare becomes the bride of Frederic McLaughlin II. of Chicago. The ceremony is being read at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Edward Mullaley of Chicago at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Truxton Hare, in the presence of the families and close friends.

Among the Chicagoans at the wedding are the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, his sister, Miss Harriet McLaughlin, a brother, Herbert, who will be best man, and another brother, George F., who will be an usher, Philip Holden and Thomas Leiter, also ushers, and the two younger Mrs. McLaughlins.

Ellen Mary Hare and little Ross Smith Jr., cousins of the bride, will be her only attendants, and the other ushers, in addition to those already mentioned, are John Howell of New York, Richard Simmons of St. Louis, and Robert and Truxton Hare Jr., brothers of the bride. Mr. McLaughlin and his bride will come to Chicago in about a month and then will find an apartment in town or a house in Lake Forest; his mother and sister live at 1300 Ritchie court, the Herbert McLaughlins [Corinne Brewer] have an apartment at 70 Cedar street, and the George F. McLaughlins [Hollis Letts] have a house in Lake Forest. Miss Hare attended the Shipley school, made her debut in Philadelphia in 1927 and is a member of the Junior League.

Yesterday's mail brought us the engagement announcement of Miss Janet O'Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. O'Leary of 1500 Lake Shore drive and Robinwood, Lake Forest, to Rufus Choate Brown III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Brown Jr. of Oshkosh, Wis. Miss O'Leary was graduated from Ferry Hall in Lake Forest and then spent two years at Smith college. Mr. Brown attended Exeter and was graduated from Yale in 1930, where he was a member of St. Anthony. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Miss Gwendolyn Thomen of New York, fiancée of Roger Fowler Sherman, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Booth Sherman of 575 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

Miss Patti Edmonston arrived last evening just in time to go home with her hostess, Miss Dorothy Dewes, daughter of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes of 2314 Lincoln Park West, and change into evening clothes for a dinner and theater party Mrs. Dewes and Miss Dewes had planned as a welcome to this attractive guest from Baltimore. Miss Edmonston made her debut in Baltimore at the Bachelors' cotillion in December, when Miss Dewes, whose mother was a Baltimore girl, made a Baltimore debut also. Miss Dewes had a Chicago coming out party, too, of course. Tomorrow the Deweses are giving a large buffet luncheon for Miss Edmonston, and there is a number of other affairs being planned for her to take place next week.

Mrs. Waller Borden Giving Political Tea.

Mrs. Waller Borden hopes that those of her friends who have never before been actively interested in politics will not forget her invitation to attend the political tea she is giving this afternoon at her residence to meet State Representative Robert M. Woodward and Ald. James B. Waller (Mrs. Borden's brother). Like so many other fashionables, Mrs. Borden plans to postpone her summer vacation this year until after the national conventions in June. She will have a winter holiday in February, however, when she goes east to visit her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kingsley Porter, at Cambridge, Mass. Mrs. Borden spent the greater part of last summer at the Porters' castle in Ireland.

Those who are interested in the Manchurian situation—and who can help but be?—certainly should know quite a bit about it if listening to various Chinese and Japanese, and even Americans, who know something about it is of any value, for there have been many speakers in the last month or two who have told us much about both sides of the question.

Today Count Aisuke Kabayama and Takashi Komatsu will speak on "Japan's Position in Manchuria" at a luncheon of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:30 o'clock at the Palmer house.

Among the Chicagoans wintering at the Huntington in Pasadena are Dr. Hugh T. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Hicks.

Some Styles for Afternoon as Worn by Society Women

MRS. J. ANDREWS KING, MRS. AUSTIN H. NIBLACK AND MRS. VAUGHAN C. SPALDING.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

This picture of three of Lake Forest's smartest women snapped the other day gives a splendid idea of how simply and with what careless insouciance society women dress in the country. They may be elaborately gowned in the evening, but it is seldom that one sees any one in Lake Forest in the daytime in anything but the most simple sports clothes, tweeds and knitted things predominating in the winter, of course. A Lake Forester who does not come to town often needs nothing but sports clothes and evening gowns in her wardrobe except one afternoon dress, which can be worn to the few formal functions that are given in the daytime, such as weddings, and to informal dinners.

MRS. E. F. WIEBOLDT AND MRS. S. P. CARSON.
This picture, showing fashions for wear at afternoon club meetings, was taken yesterday at the session of the Infant Welfare society of Glencoe at the Skokie Country club. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Antoinette Gives Several Practical Rules for Makeup

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"What is the very best rule you can give for makeup?" I have been asked.

I suppose the question refers to the proper color to use. But I would evade the color angle for the moment and ascribe as the very best rule for makeup—a good light. Here is where so many of our best efforts are lost. We women make up in corners of rooms where a good light is hampered by taffeta curtains or chintz; anyway, shaded windows.

The effect is often startlingly different when we run into ourselves full force before a publicly exposed mirror. And there is nothing surprising in that when you realize the difference in dress tones under one light and another.

Get your dressing table, then, over near the window so the bright light falls directly on your makeup work. Or, if your appearance is to be made at an evening function, get the benefit of clear electric lighting on it. This may seem a small detail, but it is not. Personally, I think that it is the reason one sees as many poorly matched complexions and badly applied makeup as one does. Heaven knows it isn't that women are not anxious to create the best of effects.

Then, the next makeup rule of importance is to know something of the skin coloring to which the stuff is to be applied. Find out if there is yellow in the skin, blue [as many older women have], gray, peach, pale pink or what.

If you haven't a good color sense, let some one who has give you a hint. We women are kinda stubborn about our claims to a color sense. We think we show it in our clothes, for instance. Yet we have found by taking advice on occasions that we could wear most becomingly colors not heretofore suspected. That's been my experience, anyway. And I judge yours, too. We get color complexes. We are set against a shade, or we go sentimental over another.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

I have two close friends whom we shall call Mr. A and Mr. B, who play golf together a great deal. Mr. A's form is excellent. Mr. B's form is rotten. Quite naturally Mr. A frequently criticizes the form of Mr. B, but Mr. B almost invariably defeats Mr. A. Silly, isn't it?

I feel a little like Mr. A in criticizing the bidding of the hand below, since as it was originally bid North and South reached a declaration of seven spades—unquestionably the proper result for the hand. As long as they got there, who should question the route? Here is the hand:

NORTH
♠—K,10,3
♥—A,K,Q,10,9,6
♦—9,5,4

WEST
♠—8,7,5
♥—J,8,3,2
♦—8,6,3
♣—8,7,3

EAST (Dealer)
♠—9
♥—7,5,4
♦—K,Q,J,10,2

SOUTH
♥—None
♦—A,7
♣—A,6,5,4,2

East dealt and bid a diamond, South bid two spades, West passed, North went to three spades. East passed, South bid four no-trumps, West passed, North bid five hearts. East passed, South bid five spades, West passed, North bid six spades. East again passed, South bid seven spades, and all passed.

While it is a bit unsporting to suggest, I would prefer the following bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠
Pass	7 ♠

In other words, my one objection to the original bidding is that South's bid of four no trumps on the second round does not show more than a four card spade suit, while to my mind the spades must be rebid at least once to show a holding of at least five. Once this is shown, there is no reason for North to again return to his hearts, holding very strong spade support.

West opened the ♦ 8, North played the 4, East the 10, and South the A. South now led the ♠ 2 to dummy's 10, returning the ♥ 6, which he trumped with the ♠ 4. He then led the ♠ 6, which dummy took with the K and returned the ♥ 9, which South trumped with the ♠ J. South then led the ♠ Q to clear the trump suit and then led the ♣ 2 to dummy's K and led out dummy's four good hearts, taking the last two tricks in his own hand with the ♠ A and the ♣ A for his grand slam.

If West had opened a club, South could not have played the hand quite as stated. He would then have taken only one trump on the low heart, which would, nevertheless, as the hands lay, have resulted in a grand slam.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Colonial Days Relive at Dance in New York

Washington Portrayed as Kissing 14 Ladies.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—In settings of splendor, and costumed in silken and bejeweled elegance of colonial times, New York society thronged the Waldorf-Astoria hotel tonight at the Beaux Arts ball. Nearly 3,000 attended.

Many a direct lineal descendant of historic characters gathered for the colorful midnight pageant of old New York which was the climax of the evening.

They saw Kenneth Muchison, New York architect, portraying the character of George Washington, gallantly busy in the last scene. He had to say "how-do-you-do" to fifty-five ladies and kiss 14 others after his inauguration as first President of the United States.

The rôle of Mme. Jumel, one of the most spectacular characters of early New York history and whose mansion, still standing on Washington Heights, is now a historical museum, was portrayed by Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, society matron. She wore a costume of cloth of gold, embossed in colonial flowered pattern. Birds of paradise trimmings were on both the dress and headdress.

Mrs. R. T. Stone wore a 1780 court costume of white taffeta with silver lamé flowers looping up the skirt. A petticoat of white and silver tulle looked like spun sugar; diamond bowknots decorated the bodice, and jade feathers mounted a silver tricorn hat. Mr. Stone was in a lavishly embroidered ambassador's costume of black, with a crimson vest.

White pannier velvet was used for Mrs. H. Leroy Whitney's gown, the pointed bodice of which was trimmed with silver and blue embroidered banding.

TO WEAR AT SAN MORITZ

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—All the world is outward bound from Paris these days, going to seek the sun. Some like to take their sun with heat and others prefer it with the tonic cold of the Alps. St. Moritz, in fact, gets the smartest people during the holidays and for two weeks after, so that what to wear a-skiing and a-skating is the question Paris has been absorbed in for some days.

The approved ski suits from Paris this winter usually combine leather and wool, or they unite leather and tricot. All fashionable winter sports clothes come in one color this season, and bright touches, if any, are to be found in the wooly scarfs, mittens and socks that are worn with the ski suit.

Suede is the leather most of the dressmakers use for their winter sports clothes, and it is placed where the greatest resistance to cold is necessary, that is to say, around the shoulders.

Jane Regny's sports suit, shown in our sketch, has sapphire blue suede sleeves and shoulder yoke, the yoke extending both across the front and the back. This suit has a short jacket that buttons up to the neck with suede buttons, and below the suede yoke its material is blue gabardine with set-in pockets placed very high, and below them four little rectangles of suede for trimming. At the back of this jacket, as shown by the small sketch, there is an inverted box plait held flat by two rectangles of suede.

The trousers are blue gabardine and tuck in under orange wool socks. The beret is made of orange wool to match the socks.

Don Cossack Chorus Thrills at Concert Here

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THE Don Cossack Russian Male chorus, directed by Serge Jaroff, appeared at Orchestra hall last night and will be there again tomorrow afternoon.

There are thirty-six in that organization, and in the words of a program note they are former officers of the Russian imperial army. Coming from a prison camp near Constantinople, they are men without a country, and consequently are traveling on the so-called Nansen passports issued by the league of nations.

Interesting as this may be as a matter of history, it is more to the purpose here that they are singers of more than ordinary merit. There is a basso in their ranks who digs down to B-flat, A, and A-flat below the staff, and if you do not think those are low notes, try them with the piano for a guide. The tenors go almost as much higher than ordinary tenors, and when all else fails, they sing something approaching a falsetto, which takes them still further up the scale.

With this range they are capable of something considerably more than ordinary male chorus singing. In addition, they and their conductor are striking musicians. They bring a pianissimo down to a whisper; they raise an exultant and striking climax. Part of their program was sacred, part secular, but if there was ever anything dramatic in choral singing, it was the way they took Lvovsky's "Have Mercy on Us, O Lord" down a diminishing phrase to what was almost silence and back again to the full force of mighty lungs.

They are worth hearing.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They beat the world's champion, Art Thurnblad of Chicago, and they whipped Johnny Layton and Allen Hall, two other stake horses of billiards, in the world's championship three cushion tournament here yesterday.

It was the most startling series of upsets in the history of this famous gentleman's game of the cue, green cloth and ivory. The defeats were caused by a careless janitor and the strangest weather conditions that have ever prevailed at a championship billiard match since the game was introduced to mankind.

Blame It on Fog.

Remember when that fog was hanging over the loop about midday yesterday and the lights had to be turned on and the wind was blowing at only about a mile an hour. Well, the fog seeped in through the open windows of the billiard amphitheater at 131 South Wabash avenue, which a busy janitor had forgotten to close. The fog and the atmospheric conditions played havoc with the tournament. The cushions were frozen, and the ivories became just so many square objects which resembled crap shooting implements and the cues were warped.

At least that's what the three dejected and defeated billiard stars told their listeners last night.

"I blame the janitor who left the windows open and let the cushions freeze up," said Layton. "It would have taken a 110 horse power engine to push the balls once around the table. Usually I can push 'em around the table twice with my little finger."

Westhus Beats Layton.

Mr. Layton should know what he is talking about. For he was beaten by Bud Westhus of St. Louis, 50 to 46, in 82 innings. It was the longest three cushion championship game played since 1920 and as the struggle dragged along into the late stages one could see and hear the spectators enjoying short afternoon naps.

Mr. Hall blamed his defeat by Len Kenney, 50 to 38 in 55 innings, on the fog. "The open windows had nothing to do with it," said Mr. Hall. "That kind of a fog will seep through a steel wall and turn a billiard ball into a hunk of lead any day," he continued. And Mr. Hall should know, for he was the favorite at 5 to 2 when the tournament opened.

Mr. Thurnblad who succumbed to Gus Copulous, 50 to 27, in 41 innings, didn't play until the last game last night, but he also claimed to have been a victim of the fog. After the fog had cleared and the janitor had slammed down the windows and had turned on the heat to a higher degree, the billiard balls, the cushions, and the cues were melting.

Even the Champion.

Mr. Thurnblad told his audience, "I just tapped them lightly with my left thumb and they rolled four or five times around the table. How can a fellow make three cushion shots under such circumstances?" And again, don't you think a world's billiard champion should know what he is talking about?

As a result of the fog and the atmospheric conditions and the windows which the busy janitor in the billiard

PETROLLE STOPS RAN WITH PUNCH IN SIXTH ROUND

Ran Down Three Times.

Petrolle, showing no regard for Ran's punching, waded in headlong as soon as the bout started and toppled Ran three times in the first round.

The Fargo veteran surprised the spectators quite as much as he did Ran with the first knockdown, for he administered it with his right hand. Ran took a count of five and arose, dazed, to face a savage Petrolle who immediately dropped him again, this time for no count, with another right to the jaw. Ran was unsteady, and retreated while Petrolle charged in. Just before the bell a left hook to the jaw felled Ran again. He took a count of nine this time.

Despite this battering, Ran came up for the second round comparatively strong. He proceeded to tear into Petrolle at every opportunity and they traded punches all over the ring. Petrolle was forced to take numerous rights on the jaw, but he absorbed them and continued firing. He tossed vicious lefts and rights into Ran's midsection and forced the latter to retreat.

Then Billy Took Aim.

For the next three rounds the fighting was bitter, with Ran trying his utmost to reach Petrolle's jaw with his deadly right, and Petrolle disdaining to offer a defense, crashing back lefts and rights to the head and body.

When the sixth round opened, Ran lashed out with a right to the head, but Petrolle burrowed in relentlessly and pounded his body incessantly. Suddenly Petrolle stood up straight, stepped back, and sent a long sweeping right which deposited Ran full length on the canvas. He was completely out as Referee Patsy Haley counted ten over him.

Northwestern, Ohio State Play for Big Ten Lead Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Three basketball games are scheduled in the Big Ten tonight, and two of them are all important. At the head of the list is the Ohio State-Northwestern contest at Evanston. Each is undefeated and the leadership of the conference is the stake.

Equally important, for defeat means elimination from the title race in all probability, is the Michigan-Minnesota game at Minneapolis. Each quintet has lost one game. Minnesota has won two and its defeat was by Michigan at Ann Arbor, 30 to 25. The Wolverines have won three games and their only defeat was administered by Northwestern a week ago at Patten gymnasium, 21 to 20.

Illini Likely to Win.

Chicago meets Illinois at Champaign tonight in the other Big Ten game. Illinois should win on the basis of its record this season, but the Maroons, twice defeated, at least have the proverbial fighting chance, especially since Harry Ashley, Maroon captain, will return to the lineup.

If Northwestern can defeat Ohio State tonight it may realize its ambition of a successful title defense. The Wildcats have won five games. It is reasonable to suppose that they can defeat Iowa and Indiana, having done so already. If Northwestern proves its superiority tonight the return game at Columbus will not be an insurmountable barrier.

Michigan, Purdue Are Obstacles.

Northwestern's return game with Michigan at Ann Arbor presents difficulty. Purdue, still rated the best quintet in the conference despite its loss to Illinois, has two games with Northwestern. But since Northwestern can lose one game and be certain of at least a tie for the championship, the series with the Boilermakers is not quite as important as it was before Illinois did the Wildcats a good turn.

Six thousand, a capacity crowd, and the second of the season, are expected to see Ohio and Northwestern play for the lead tonight. Ohio is reputed to have sufficient height to match Northwestern's exceptionally tall team. It is predicted that Fred Conrad, a 6 foot 4 inch center, will outjump either Elmer Johnson or Capt. Bob McCarnes. Last week Johnson was sent to the circle by Coach Lonborg for the first time since McCarnes rejoined the team.

Record of Teams.

Ohio State, 29; Illinois, 28.
Ohio State, 40; Iowa, 23.

Northwestern, 31; Wisconsin, 30.
Northwestern, 29; Indiana, 23.
Northwestern, 32; Iowa, 26.
Northwestern, 21; Michigan, 20.
Northwestern, 28; Wisconsin, 24.

Coach Harold Olsen of Ohio State has assigned Howard Mattison the task of stopping Joe Reiff's scoring activity tonight. Mattison possesses the physique, for he is two inches over the 6 foot mark. But Reiff has scored 50 points in five games and it's likely he'll get a few more against Ohio. Reiff's effectiveness on the free throw line is increased when Saul Farber, Northwestern floor guard, is in the game.

Farber Fastest Regular.

Farber knows when to whip the ball in to Reiff and moreover possesses the ability. Farber also is the fastest player of the regulars, which is imperative for the ball handler who feeds to his teammates. If he has any pronounced weakness it is failure to convert on quick dribble-in shots under the goal. But on the other hand Farber was directly responsible for winning the Southern California game and the first Wisconsin contest.

Northwestern's scoring strength is well distributed. McCarnes is second to Reiff with 28 points. Johnson and Farber have 20 points apiece, while Bus Smith, the other guard, has 18 points. Any one of the five is apt to set the pace, depending on the caliber of the defensive man playing opposite him.

Gophers, Wolverines in Running.

Either Michigan or Minnesota must be considered a title prospect following tonight's game at Minneapolis. If Michigan wins it has an excellent chance, for Ohio State in two games and Northwestern in one will be its most serious competition. The Wolverines already have defeated Illinois and Wisconsin decisively.

Minnesota has an even easier schedule if it can beat Michigan tonight. Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Chicago comprise the remaining opposition.

The Northwestern-Ohio State lineup follows:

NORTHWESTERN.	OHIO STATE.
Reiff,f	Colburn,f
Johnson,f	Fugitt,f
McCarnes,c	Conrad,c
Farber,g	Hoffer,g
Smith,g	Mattison,g

Games Tonight

Ohio State at Northwestern.
Michigan at Minnesota.
Chicago at Illinois.

PITT AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Victorious in eight of ten games, Notre Dame's basketball team will go out for revenege tomorrow night when Pittsburgh plays here. Last season Pitt won both games of a home and home series in overtime.

BADGER COACHES' 'BIG PAY, LITTLE WORK' ASSAILED

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The high salaries paid athletic coaches at the University of Wisconsin and the policies of the athletic council were assailed in a report filed in the assembly today and adopted by that house.

It was a supplemental report to one submitted earlier this week by four of the five members of the special committee which investigated the athletic department. The fifth member, Assemblyman Frederick Krez, Plymouth, submitted the supplemental report.

"Apparently few of the high priced coaches do anything except a few hours of coaching work a day and that for only a few months during the season of the sport," the Krez report said. "There is at least one coach who draws a salary of $5,000 or over who does not average two hours a day throughout the year."

The report contended that the athletic department is overstaffed, and that the faculty members of the council were ignorant of the amount of work performed by coaches.

Bad Knee Gets Best of Lott; He Loses at Montreal

MONTREAL, Quebec, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—George M. Lott Jr., the defending champion, who has been playing with an injured knee since the tournament opened, today was eliminated in the semi-finals of the Canadian covered court tennis championships. Lott was defeated by J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., 12-10, 2-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

NATIONAL SKATE RACES TO OPEN AT OCONOMOWOC

Titles, Olympic Places at Stake Today.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The United States ice skating championships will get under way tomorrow on Lake Fowler here with three national speed skating titles and the selection of the six girls for the American Olympic team on the schedule.

More than 200 of the best skaters in the United States will compete. The greatest field of women stars on record, numbering 40 in all, is out for the titles and Olympic team membership. The following 15 title events are scheduled:

The girls' Olympic team will be selected on the 400 meter course with the first half dozen finishers qualifying for the team.

Champion Defends Title.

Loretta Neitzel of Detroit, who has broken many national records, is the defending champion in the girls' races. She has been training on Lake Fowler all week and will defend her crown against such stars as Elizabeth Du Bois of Chicago, Elsie Muller of New York, Dorothy Franey of St. Paul, Rose Brady of Detroit, Crystal Bruce of Milwaukee, Lillian Corke of New York, and a host of others.

With the return of the unpicked four Olympic candidates who were not given a chance to compete in the trials scheduled in the east, which were called off on account of adverse weather conditions, a battle royal for the men's title and possibly a place on the Olympic team will be staged.

Many skating enthusiasts believe the four, Mel Johnson, Wallace Mitchell, Al Kucera, and Bill Minster, will show well in the championships. However, many of the younger stars are dangerous.

Stundl Is a Streak.

The youngest senior and one of the fastest to start will be Eddie Stundl of Chicago. Eddie was a whirlwind in the intermediate division last year. He won the North American outdoor championship and broke several speed records in this division.

Wilbur Marks is all set to protect his intermediate title against the country's best under 18 years old. His wounded foot has healed. Marks is about the most colorful and consistent winner in skating today. He has been victorious in more than a half dozen major championships in his brief career.

BROOKLYN GIVES RUBE BRESSLER, LUQUE RELEASES

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Pitcher Adolfo Luque and Rube Bressler, outfielder, were given their unconditional releases by the Brooklyn National league baseball club today. Both entered the major leagues in 1914.

Luque, who came to the Dodgers in 1930 from the Cincinnati Reds, won 14 games while losing eight. An injury received during the early part of last season kept him away from the field. Bressler joined Brooklyn in 1928.

Clarence Munn Ill with Pleural Pneumonia

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Clarence Munn, captain of the 1931 University of Minnesota football team and winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S most valuable player award, today was confined to the students' health service with pleural pneumonia. His physician said Munn would be kept in bed for about a week. Munn is the Western conference shot put champion and he hopes to be sufficiently recovered to be ready for indoor competition late next month.

These Fight Signing Parties Aren't What They Used to Be

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—That was a pretty fair sort of signing the articles ceremony which the boys went through today, but, still and all, certain old touches were lacking which always used to adorn such occasions. After all, what was it?

Max Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs, and Jack Sharkey's manager, Johnny Buckley, got together, with Sharkey present but with Schmeling absent, and put in several hours wrangling about the division of the money. Several times they called each other liar back and forth as the prize fight reporters, sitting by, nodded unanimous assent. Then, after a long time, they broke up temporarily, hot and noisy, as though they had reached a deadlock and might never come to terms.

It's Part of Ritual.

This had an old familiar ring because the managers of boys who are fixing to fight one another for the heavyweight championship of the world almost invariably, for many years, have reached for their hats and taken a little walk for themselves at a certain stage of the proceedings. It is part of the ritual.

But they always come back and sign the agreements, and the present case, of course, followed the regular formula. The way Schmeling and Sharkey can make the most money is by fighting one another, and they both have come to the melancholy realization that the longer they wait the less money they will make.

Sharkey Still Playful.

Sharkey, big, playful bear that he is, flipped pinches of invisible sneeze powder into the air as the managers argued, and laughed mischievously when the victims sneezed. This sneeze powder trick of Sharkey's and a couple of other little pranks of the salt in the sugar bowl type describe his childish character better than any book that any one could write about him. He ought to make a good heavyweight champion. He has the true prize fighter's intellect. Dempsey used to clamp headlocks on his friends and make them howl. They are much alike.

But there was nothing really new, and much that was old had been eliminated from the routine. Old Tim O'Rourke of the silver bartender's bangs, imparting an odd, angelic, little boy look to a countenance that has gazed upon many forms of larcenous practice in the prize fight trades, was not there with his old time opposition bids on behalf of a syndicate of sportive capitalists who did not wish to reveal their identity. Mr. O'Rourke bid often in the past, but, fortunately, never was taken up.

Times Must Be Hard.

Neither was Lew Raymond in there bidding as of old, and when times are so hard that Lew Raymond cannot even pronounce the words of a two million dollar guarantee for a heavyweight championship fight then times are hard indeed.

Several years ago Mr. Raymond cost Tex Rickard about $50,000 by bidding against him for the one between Luis Firpo and Harry Wills. I do not know whether any adjustment was made with Mr. Raymond by the Wills management, but if he was not rewarded then it was a case of flagrant ingratitude.

And, finally, Mr. Joe Mulvihill of Danbury, Conn., did not enter in, jingling two quarters and a bunch of

Big Leagues Mean Nothing to Selph; He Prefers Texas

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If Carey Selph wants to play baseball he'll have to let the White Sox bosses have at least one glimpse of him. That may be enough, but it is wanted. Such was President Lou Comiskey's reply yesterday when the young athlete drafted from the Houston, Tex., league club returned his contract without a signature.

Selph professed satifaction with the proffered salary, but insisted he couldn't sign it because of his determination not to leave Houston, Tex., where, the depression notwithstanding, he claims to be involved in a highly profitable insurance business.

Selph doesn't object to being returned to the Houston club, that making it possible for him to remain in close contact with his affairs. But as for going to the big leagues or any other league, that is out, according to the gentleman's ultimatum. Selph is a second baseman, which is one of the things the Sox need. Hence the desire of the south side club to get him in line if it is possible.

Pat Malone, the Cub hurler who recently came here for a preliminary course of conditioning, turned up in his home town, Milan, Ohio, yesterday with an announcement that he had accepted the terms named in his 1932 contract.

Because of his transgressions last season, the most notable of which was the clouting of a couple of unsuspecting newspapermen, Pat was all set to get a cut in pay. He got it and admitted he had no complaint to make. He preferred to charge the reduction against the current depression, and is consoling himself with the thought that he is going to do so well this season that he will be restored to the salary basis of a real star.

Malone's last contract called for exactly $15,000, but he didn't collect the full amount. There were deductions for his previous offenses against the club's training code. His new contract is said to provide for $12,000.

Hugh Brennan, former part owner of the Milwaukee club, who recently made an offer to take over the Toledo Mudhens, is critically ill at the Norwegian-American hospital. Pneumonia developed after he had been struck last Saturday night by a speeding automobile.

Paul Edwin Gregory yesterday added his name to those satisfied with White Sox terms. He is a tall, right handed pitcher purchased from the Atlanta, Ga., Southern association club.

12 HOUR SESSION CLEARS WAY FOR RETURN MATCH

New York Gets 15 Round Bout.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling of Germany, world's heavyweight boxing champion, and Jack Sharkey, American contender, tonight signed contracts to meet in a 15 round fight in New York under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden corporation. The date was definitely fixed for June 16.

Under the terms of the contract Schmeling is to receive 37½ per cent of the receipts and Sharkey 12½ per cent, but it was the understanding that in reality Schmeling will receive 42½ per cent and Sharkey 10.

The contracts will be submitted to the New York state athletic commission at its meeting Tuesday. It had been expected that an agreement would be reached in time to be presented to the commission today, but arguments over controversial points prevented the signing until tonight.

Garden Takes 1933 Option.

Included in the contracts was a clause in which the Garden corporations obtains an option on all engagements of both Schmeling and Sharkey up to and including September, 1933. This arrangement probably will assure New York a heavyweight championship contest next year.

The contract also requires the posting by both champion and challenger of a certified check for $25,000 at the time of presenting the contract at the meeting of the commission Tuesday.

The contract signing came after a 12 hour session, beginning about 10 o'clock this morning, and marked the culmination of a campaign by Sharkey which he began immediately after his fight with Schmeling on June 12, 1930, at Yankee stadium, when he lost in the fourth round on a foul.

Ban to Be Lifted.

Sharkey demanded a return fight. Schmeling agreed verbally to Sharkey's demands, but failed to give him his chance before sailing for Germany. Shortly afterward Schmeling was suspended by the New York Athletic commission, which also withdrew recognition of his championship.

Schmeling's license as a boxer in the jurisdiction of the commission was revoked, as was also the license issued to his manager, Joe Jacobs. The signing of the contract tonight by Schmeling and Jacobs is expected to result in the restoration of their licenses. The commission already had recalled its ban to the extent of permitting them to negotiate with the Garden corporation and with Sharkey and his manager.

Hubbub About Garden.

Boxing managers and promoters ordinarily are prevented from entering into negotiations with suspended boxers and their representatives, so that the commission's permission is regarded as the preliminary step to reinstatement of the German and his manager.

All day and all evening the Garden swarmed with a voluble crowd almost as excited as if something in the nature of the championship boxing contest was about to be staged then and there. In the headquarters of the Madison Square Garden club, and in the adjacent hallways and anterooms, groups of boxing folk collected around the various lawyers connected with the several angles of the project under discussion.

Schmeling is expected to return from Germany in March and then engage in a short exhibition tour preparatory to launching his training campaign.

NEW TRIER KEEPS LEAD; CONQUERS EVANSTON, 35-19

Joslin Leads Attack with Fifteen Points.

New Trier High school, led by Joslin and Sinding, defeated Evanston, 35 to 19, to retain its lead in the Suburban league heavyweight race at the Evanston gymnasium last night. It was New Trier's fourth consecutive victory.

Joslin, playing at left forward, scored 15 points, while Sinding collected four baskets and one free throw. New Trier led, 24 to 10, at the half. Evanston's lightweights overwhelmed New Trier, 38 to 19, in a preliminary game.

A 22 to 14 victory sent Mount Carmel's lightweights into a tie with St. Philip for the south section lead in the Chicago Catholic High School league. The leading St. Philip heavyweights defeated Mount Carmel, 24 to 15.

Wendell Phillips' lightweight team scored its third league victory yesterday, defeating Tilden, 34 to 12, in one of the outstanding games in the Chicago Public High School league. The triumph assured Phillips of competing in the lightweight championship semi-finals.

Fight Signing Parties Minus Gents of Yore

keys in a prosperous manner, to outbid all the others on behalf of Danbury, Conn., the wonder city of the western world. Mr. Mulvihill, with his four bits and his key ring, was for years one of the most daring of all bidders for heavyweight championship prize fights. The gross aggregate capacity of all the stadia which he was going to build especially for these prize fights at one time or another over the years would equal the entire population of the city of New York.

Horrified if He Landed Match.

Everybody knew all about Mr. Mulvihill and nobody took him seriously, but the newspapers really have very little sense of humor and I dare say that the dossiers on Joe Mulvihill, a harmless and inconspicuous citizen of an inconspicuous minor league city, in the newspaper morgues of New York City are as big as the envelopes on any great and good surgeon you could name.

These envelopes will be filled with solemn reports of his having bid larger sums for fights. Yet he never promoted one. He would have been astounded and horrified if he ever had landed a match.

The competitive interest, even the interest of a mock competition between promoters, is the chief lack in these negotiations. The fighters know and the Garden firm knows and so does every one else who happens to be interested that the boys are bound to fight for the Garden firm. They always do.

Garden Always Promotes 'Em.

With the exceptions of the flop at Shelby, the little play bout at Benton Harbor, and the bout between Schmeling and Sharkey two years ago, which was a championship fight only by the special permission of the copyright owners, Tammany Hall, the Garden firm has produced all of them since 1916.

Jack Kearns would have made an amusing stir if he had been involved in the dealings, but he was out creating counter publicity for his own fighter, Mickey Walker, in Chicago. Kearns would have had messenger boys dashing into the conference room with cablegrams from syndicates of South American banana ranchers, offering to take over the fight at a flat price of a couple of millions for their own private amusement. That Kearns—he is A1.

But these boys of today, what do they do when they meet to sign articles? they yell at one another "You are a liar." That is not news.

ANGLERS ECHO SKATERS' PLEA FOR SOME ICE

BY BOB BECKER.

Anglers in Illinois are inclined to extend messages of sympathy to fishermen of Escanaba, Mich., and other northern cities who are not having their annual fishing through the ice. With spring weather moving from California to the lake states, there isn't enough ice to provide real old fashioned ice fishing in many localities.

We learned about the plight of the northern anglers Thursday in the upper peninsula of Michigan. The weather was mild in Ishpeming, with only a few inches of snow on the ground. But on the way home through Escanaba the situation affecting the perch and wall eyed pike fishermen came to light.

Loss of Income.

In an ordinary winter the bay freezes over at Escanaba's front door. Then the boys construct little shanties, move them on the ice, and go after the perch. A couple of fishermen can occupy a shanty, keep warm with a little stove, and make a nice catch in the course of a day by operating a hook and line through a hole in the ice.

It was pointed out that many men not working during the winter months can pick up enough cash by perch fishing to keep going until spring. Approximately 500 of these ice fishermen to whom the sport means cash and groceries are standing by waiting for the weather man to send along cold weather.

So far the weather has been so mild that there is nothing doing. This is one instance where mild weather is keeping a group of men from earning money with rod and line.

Card Table in Shack.

An ingenious ice fishing stunt was put into operation on the bay at Escanaba. It wins hands down for cleverness and comfort. Two men [one a newspaper man and the other Mayor W. H. Needham] rigged up a shanty for their ice fishing fun. They put a floor in this shack and then cut four holes, so they could operate four sets of lines through the ice.

Rather than just sit while waiting for bites, a table for a card game was the order of the day. Now comes the tricky part. Storage batteries, wire, lights, and bells were so arranged in the shack that every time a fish grabbed a bait the pull on the line touched off a bell. When the anglers heard the signal they laid down the cards, hauled in the fish, and then resumed their game.

CITY COLLEGE OF DETROIT BEATS ARMOUR, 29 TO 23

Dunes Skiing a Prelude to Olympic Meet

The Ogden Dunes Ski club's fifth annual meet tomorrow will be a preview of the winter Olympic games with the Norwegian Olympic ski team competing against the best of the American riders. The Norwegian skiers, in practice this week, soared far past the hill record of 169 feet and may exceed 200 feet tomorrow.

Sigmund Ruud of Norway, who holds the world's record of 276 feet, probably will be forced to his best by his six teammates, who are striving for the four places allotted the Norwegians in the international classic at Lake Placid. Capt. Olaf Helseth has indicated that the showing of the seven Norwegians in the Ogden Dunes meet will determine the makeup of the Olympic quartet.

America's chances for a victory depend largely on the ability of Gunnar Oman, captain of the Ogden Dunes club, and Guttorm Paulsen of the Norge club. Oman tied Kaare Walberg of Norway, winner of the Norge meet last week, in distance, but was disqualified for falling. Paulsen holds the American record of 214 feet. George Gunderson, winner of the class B event last year, is another who may cause the Norwegians trouble.

Capt. Helseth visited the Dunes slide, one mile east of Gary, Ind., yesterday to supervise the spreading of the imported snow.

Here are the routes recommended by the Chicago Motor club: The most direct route is via the outer drive, Indianapolis boulevard and U. S. 12 and 20, 37 miles. The optional route, via Ill. 1, Michigan City road, Sibley boulevard, and U. S. 12 and 20, 43 miles, probably will be less congested.

LOYOLA RESUMES PLAY TONIGHT; MEETS DETROIT

Resuming play after a ten day layoff because of examinations, Loyola university's basketball team meets the City College of Detroit tonight in the Loyola gymnasium.

Loyola will be seeking its twelfth victory in 14 starts this season, while Detroit will attempt to avenge a 36 to 30 defeat at the hands of Loyola two weeks ago. The Ramblers have not lost a game on the north side court this year, both of its defeats coming on a trip into Michigan.

Detroit has five veterans from the team which last year won 12 of its 20 games. Its record this season stands at five victories and two defeats. Herb Spathelf, forward, is the only sophomore in the starting lineup. Capt. Marvin Ouellette, guard, and Sydney Cornell, forward, are third year men, while Harold Bowie, center, and James Telfer, guard, are second year men.

Joe Wagner, center, has fully recovered from the infected finger which hampered his play in the last five games, so Loyola will be able to use its full strength. The lineups:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR Wake: The time around Christmas, New Year's, and immediately thereafter always brings memories of John Fehn's place at Ohio and Clark streets. Only the other day I had a little chat with Billy Sauerman, John's son-in-law, who became proprietor when John passed away.

Back in 1882 this was a great rendezvous for the old Board of Trade boys. I can see John right now dishing out the golden Culmbacher and Wurzburger, with Anheuser-Busch and Budweiser on the side.

In the early '60s Chicago was first given the name of "The Garden City of the West." Wabash avenue then was a private street. Nearly all houses were frame, two stories high, and painted white, with green shutters. All had high fences and each a beautiful flower garden in front.

Hannah Simon.

Here is an ordinance on fees passed by the common council of the city of Chicago, April 10, 1851:

The city clerk's fees for perquisites of his office shall be for issuing cab, dray, or other licenses, $1.

For the use of the corporate seal on any attestation, acknowledgment, or other certificate, 50 cents.

An Alarming Dream.

Hissing its sparks on the rug;
The wind outside blew cold and chill,
Making the room more snug.
I lounged on a downy sofa,
A kitten snuggled near,
And sleigh bell chimes were in the air
(I confess those bells seemed queer).
A pewter pot was brewing ale,
A radio tenor singing . . .
But over and under and topping it all,
Those sleigh bells kept on ringing.

Then a rushing sound, a scratch on my arm,
The kitten's voice in my ear.
"Get up—it's late—turn off the alarm"—
I knew those bells were queer.

WEST'S BEST POLO STARS WILL PLAY ON CHARITY CARD

Two of the outstanding polo players in the middle west will compete at the Chicago Riding club Feb. 12, in the matches for the benefit of the Joint Emergency Relief fund. They are Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening, the west's outstanding player with his six-goal rating, and Maj. C. C. [Square] Smith of Fort Sheridan, famous international star of the United States army, a five goal man.

The ten other men who will appear in the two games will be picked from nearly fifty players of the Chicago district who are working out nightly at the Chicago Riding club, the 124th Field Artillery armory, and other arenas. Among these are Frank Bering, Herbert J. Lorber, James A. Hannah, Prentice Porter, Capt. C. A. Wilkinson and Lieut. H. D. Reed of Fort Sheridan; Lieut. Paul Butler, Lieut. Col. R. G. Hunter, Lieut. C. M. Schuh, George Bates, Capt. W. S. Everett and Dave Silberman.

Lorber is chairman of the committee arranging the event. In addition to the polo matches there will be an exhibition drill by the famous Black Horse troop of the Illinois National Guard of 60 men.

Carnera to Meet Max Schmeling—in Court Battle

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, and Max Schmeling, who enjoys the title of heavyweight champion of the world, today were signed for a legal bout carrying a purse, somewhat modest for pugilistic circles, of $100,000.

The title to the purse will be decided by the Supreme court, and not the New York state boxing commission.

The matchmaker was Albert M. Yuzzolini, attorney for Carnera, through whom the boxer filed suit for $100,000 against Schmeling, alleging that the champion had failed to engage in a match agreed upon more than a year ago, which was to have been staged under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois.

Carnera declared the terms of the bout, which was to have been held in Chicago, were decided upon at a conference held Jan. 13, 1931. At a later date, according to the complaint, Schmeling agreed that the match would be held not later than September of last year.

But the champion, Carnera claimed, has avoided the meeting.

The $100,000, Carnera's complaint stated, would recompense him for some of the benefits that would have come to him through the match.

Smith, Defense Man, Released by Shamrocks

The unconditional release of Art Smith, defense, was announced yesterday by the Shamrock Hocky club management. Smith started out brilliantly this season but did not maintain the standard of play, the announcement said.

The three remaining defense men, Bouncer Taylor, Curly Headley, and Walter Buswell, will undertake the entire defense burden, at least for the time being. They will get their first test tomorrow night when the Shamrocks meet the Buffalo Majors at the Chicago Stadium.

"We'll come out of our slump all right," Manager Dye predicted. "The boys have had successively attacks of over confidence and over anxiety. Three of the teams we play have played together for three or four years, and Dick Carroll at St. Louis is undoubtedly one of the most successful builders of hockey clubs in the game. So our competition is stiff, especially for a young team. Once we settle down and get to playing more consistently for the breaks, we'll get back into our winning stride."

WILDCAT WATER POLO TEAM PLAYS I. A. C. TONIGHT

The Illinois Athletic club water polo team, augmented by stars from the former Chicago Athletic association team, will meet Northwestern university in the feature of the merry-go-round carnival at the I. A. C. tonight.

Potential Olympic stars from the Illinois Women's Athletic club will participate in swimming and diving exhibitions during the afternoon and evening.

Billiard matches between Otto Reiselt and Earl Lookabaugh and a rapid-fire tournament, a bowling match between the Boyle Valves, Chicago champions, and the I. A. C. All-Stars, handball and gymnastic contests, and boxing bouts are other features of the program.

PANTALEO AND CALMES TO END TRAINING TODAY

Kearns Takes Over Fields' Workouts.

Baxter Calmes of Oklahoma City and Paul Pantaleo, Chicago heavyweight, will finish training this afternoon at the Arcade gymnasium for their ten round bout at White City Monday night. Pantaleo is said to be punching harder than ever and is reported to have knocked down two sparing partners yesterday. Calmes is concentrating on a body attack. Les Finucane meets Jud Judkins in a four round supporting bout.

Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker and Jackie Fields, took active charge of Fields yesterday for the former welterweight champion's title bout against Lou Brouillard, present champion, at Chicago Stadium next Thursday night. When informed that Jackie is only two pounds within the welterweight limit, he ordered him to take the day off. Fields will resume work today.

Fans who have watched Brouillard at Trafton's gymnasium have rallied to his support. He is rugged, boxes well, and depends upon stamina, heavy punches, and aggressiveness. Although a southpaw, he is said to possess a good right jab and hook, something few lefthanders own. The complete supporting card, three ten round bouts and a four round match, will be as follows: Battling Bozo vs. Billy Jones, Lou Scozza vs. George Nichols, Franta Nekolny vs. Jackie Brady, and Babe Colima vs. Franklin Cheek.

In addition to dispatching a questionnaire to National Boxing association members for a vote to vacate Max Schmeling's heavyweight championship, the N. B. A. asked a vote on Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion. The six months' period accorded these two to defend their championships have expired, Schmeling's on Jan. 3 and Chocolate's on Jan. 15.

The owners and managers of race tracks in Illinois gathered in Chicago last night for the annual meeting of the Illinois Turf association which is to be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the offices of the association, 25 East Congress street.

The racing schedule for the year is to be adopted at the session and hotel lobby gossip last night indicated there will be no curtailment in the program. There will be 163 days of racing on the tracks in and near Chicago, and 50 days at the Fairmount track which is just across the Mississippi river from St. Louis, it was indicated.

To Renew Stakes.

Neither will there be a curtailment in the stake race program. All the rich events of last year will be renewed and Roy Carruthers, general manager of the Arlington Park Jockey club, said more money would be distributed at his plant in stakes and purses this year than last. The Arlington meeting last year was the world's richest in stakes and purses. The Futurity, which may have a gross value of $80,000, is a new race on the Arlington program.

There will be one radical change in the schedule, according to the early drafts on the program. The Hawthorne track will run one continuous meeting of 30 days in August instead of the two short meetings held there in recent seasons.

New Track Heads Absent.

Owners of the new half mile track in Cicero, which is to be known as the National Jockey club and which adjoins the old Hawthorne track, did not mingle last night with the other turf moguls who were in Chicago. This was evidence they will conduct their meeting without asking to be a member of the Illinois Turf association and on dates which will conflict with some of the other tracks.

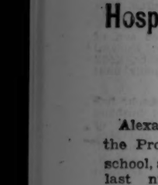
LET CONTRACT FOR $250,000 NEW PROVIDENT

Hospital to Be Greatest of Its Kind.

Alexander L. Jackson, president of the Provident Hospital and Training school, announced last night that contracts have been let by the building committee for the $250,000 remodeling of the old Chicago Lying-In hospital at 51st and Vincennes for the Provident hospital, in affiliation with the University of Chicago. A fund of more than $3,200,000 has been raised to make this the world's greatest medical center for colored doctors and internes.



ALEXANDER L. JACKSON. [R. D. Jones Photo.]

Work will start at once with completion scheduled for six months later, according to Schmidt, Garden & Erikson, architects. The present six story main building of the old Lying-In hospital will be completely remodeled from a maternity into a general hospital, with 110 beds.

The former mother's aid pavilion will be remodeled into a clinics building and a one story annex built. This will constitute an out-patient department with a capacity of 75,000 patient visits annually.

Under U. of C. Direction.

When completed it is stated that it will be the largest and best equipped training center for colored physicians and nurses in the world. Its medical staff will be under the direction of the University of Chicago medical school.

The present Provident Hospital and Training school, at 16 West 36th street, was founded in 1891 with funds supplied by P. D. Armour, John Crerar and others. The old Lying-In hospital site, covering the entire block bounded by 51st, Vincennes, Washington Park court, and 50th place, was purchased last year.

BY O. A. MATHER.

More than two years of almost constantly declining securities prices have brought terrific losses to the many investment trusts, big and little, that were organized during the prolonged bull market that terminated in 1929. Some of these trusts have incurred losses that have practically wiped out their capital. Others have sustained heavy "paper" losses, but are still holding the bulk of their investments.

If there is any cold comfort for the little speculator who lost heavily or was wiped out in the crash of the securities market he might derive it from the fact that the investment trusts, sponsored and managed by well known financiers and business leaders, have suffered as much as individuals. However the corporations have a chance to regain some of their losses if and when securities prices turn upward.

Annual Statement Issued.

The annual statement of the Continental Chicago corporation, one of the large middle west investment trusts, was made public yesterday. At the end of 1931 the company's investments at cost totaled $53,591,693. However, the report frankly states that the value of these investments, based on available market quotations or estimated fair values, was approximately $24,000,000 below cost after deducting investment reserve. In other words, the company's investments declined about 45 per cent between Dec. 8, 1930, when the Continental and Chicago corporations were merged, and Dec. 31, 1931.

Like most investment trusts, the Continental Chicago corporation made some changes in its investments last year. It had a net loss of $1,045,847 on securities sold. On the other hand, the corporation bought 163,844 shares of its preference stock in the open market at an average price of $26.68 a share, compared with its stated value of $50 a share. This resulted in a credit of $3,821,333.

On Dec. 31, 1931, the net assets were equivalent to $39.84 a share on the preference stock after deducting unrealized market depreciation. Both the loss on securities actually sold and the credit on stock bought are set up in an investment reserve account, which had a balance of $3,078,612 at the end of 1931.

Without reference to the shrinkage in market value of investments, the company had net income of $2,645,659 last year. This was sufficient to pay dividends of $3 a share totaling $2,643,758 on the preference stock.

"While no forecast is possible as to the continuation of present interest and dividends paid to the corporation on its investments," President Charles F. Glore says, "such payments at this time are at an annual rate sufficient to meet expenses and dividends on the convertible preference stock."

The company's balance sheet shows that it had invested on Dec. 31, 1931, in bonds $12,366,953, in stocks $39,470,453, and other investments $1,754,287. Its total assets, without deducting depreciation in investments, were $57,621,991.

MAYTAG FIRM OPERATING AT 75% CAPACITY

The factory of the Maytag company, Newton, Ia., is operating more than 75 per cent full time schedule, and has been since the middle of October last year. This increase in employment was the result of a new low priced procelain tub washer announced on Nov. 1.

November and December of 1931 show a substantial increase in sales over the same months in 1930, and January is expected to show even a larger precentage of gain over January a year ago on account of the new low priced cast aluminum tub washer being announced this month. This new model gives Maytag a model in every price range.

Montreal Bond Issue Is Reported Oversubscribed

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 22.—[(AP)]—For the third time since Canada began floating her loans in her own country, a bond issue has been oversubscribed with the closing of books today on the city of Montreal's offering. In all three cases the loans are payable both as to principal and interest in Canadian funds.

The city of Montreal offered one group of securities for $3,770,000, maturing on Dec. 15, 1935; and another group of $11,456,000 maturing on Dec. 15, 1941. Both bear 6 per cent interest.

The $150,000,000 national service loan, offered late last year, was oversubscribed $65,000,000.

The province of New Brunswick's issue of $5,062,000 was absorbed quickly last week.

A. B. Leach & Co. Closes Branches in Four Cities

A. B. Leach & Co., Chicago investment houses, yesterday closed its branch offices in four middle western cities and in the future will be represented by salesmen in those cities. The firm closed its west coast offices early last year. The depression in the security distributing field was given as the reason for the retrenchment. Brancnes were located in Minneapolis, Milwaukee, St. Louis, and Detroit. The firm has been in the security business for 42 years and has been prominent in recent years in the distribution of public utility securities. The house participated in the offerings of many of the Insull companies.

Yellow Cab Here Unique as An Earner

BY SCRUTATOR.

While taxicab companies in other cities are struggling to plug up deficits resulting from a reduced volume of business and sharp competition, operators in Chicago have fared comparatively well.

Benjamin Samuels, vice president of Chicago Yellow Cab company, says that his company is the only taxicab company in the country that is able to pay a dividend.

In the first nine months of last year Chicago Yellow Cab earnings were equal to $2.44 per share on its outstanding stock, compared with $3.15 in the corresponding period of 1930. The dividend was recently reduced from $3 to $2 per year.

Mr. Samuels contends, however, that Chicago has many more taxicabs than it needs with the result that downtown streets are cluttered with cruising empties and the available business is spread over so many cabs that operating expenses are unduly high in comparison with gross receipts.

Still Too Many Cabs.

"For the past week," he says, "Chicago has been getting along with 1,200 fewer cabs than usual due to the Checker strike, and still there are more than enough cabs.

"Two years ago Chicago Yellow Cab company had from 3,000 to 3,200 cabs in operation. Today we have only 2,350 and even with the Checker drivers off the streets about 150 Yellows are kept in the barns because they are not needed."

An ordinance now pending before a subcommittee of the city council committee on transportation would limit taxicabs permitted to operate on the city streets to the present number.

The proposed measure also would raise license fees from five to ten dollars, put control of rates in the hands of the city council, and give the latter sole power to initiate demands for increasing the number of cabs in operation.

Taxicab operators favor such action for they see in it protection against the possible incursion of cut rate competitors and rate wars.

Other Units Lose Money.

"There isn't another large city in the country," Mr. Samuels says, "where a taxicab company can operate profitably. In Detroit, Cleveland, Kansas City, New Orleans, Washington and New York it is the same story, although in New York the recent council action should improve matters by limiting the number of cabs. Every unit of Parmelee is losing money except Chicago Yellow Cab."

Parmelee Transportation company is controled by Checker Cab Manufacturing corporation. Other Parmelee subsidiaries operate taxicabs in New York, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

"The cab business in Chicago," Mr. Samuels adds, "has fallen off considerably. The demands of the sporting element, night club trade and theater business are things of the past.

Day Time Demand Best.

"Two or three years ago we had to fight to get our drivers to work in the daytime and now we have to fight to get them to work at night, because the bulk of the demand for cabs now comes during the day.

"Earnings of Yellow drivers now average about $21 per week, plus what they can make in tips, which means just about the price of their lunches. Those who have had accidents or whose bookings have been poor are temporarily laid off. In that way we keep the supply pretty well under control and manage to rotate the jobs."

THIRD CALL FOR PAYMENTS MADE BY CREDIT CORP.

$150,000,000 Devoted to Bank Aid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—A third call of 10 per cent, or $50,000,000, on subscriptions to its gold notes has gone forth from the National Credit corporation, banks here have been notified, such subscriptions being payable next Monday. Previous calls were for similar amounts and make a total of $150,000,000 of funds which the corporation has to date employed or is about to employ in making advances to banks on sound but nonrediscountable collateral.

The corporation in the early weeks of its existence, following its formation last October at the request of President Hoover, financed its requirements by borrowing from selected member banks in this city. Now that its operations are in full swing and to the full extent that demands upon its facilities are being made, it is using its own rather than borrowed capital.

Renders Timely Service.

The fact that the corporation has rendered timely service to hundreds of banks throughout the country is, in the opinion of bankers, proof enough of its usefulness for the emergency for which it was formed.

Bank failures in recent weeks have been materially reduced in number and in the amount of deposit liabilities tied up. While the National Credit corporation never pretended to be able to prevent bank failures, the fact that mortality is decreasing is an indirect reflection of the assistance rendered sound banks whose conditions had become temporarily unliquid.

Like previous subscription calls the third one is payable at the Federal Reserve bank in each district.

How Loans Are Handled.

The subscribed capital of the National Credit corporation, in the form of gold notes subscribed by banks to the extent of 2 per cent of their net deposits, amounts to $500,000,000.

Each loan or advance made by the corporation is passed upon by regional clearing house bankers' committees in the district in which it is made and again by the home office of the corporation. Only loans sound from a banking standpoint are made.

EXPECT PENNSY RY. TO VOTE REGULAR 50 CENT DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at their meeting Wednesday are expected to declare the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, it was reported today in usually well informed quarters.

Following two successive reductions in the dividend rate in 1931, some apprehension existed that a further downward revision in the rate of disbursement to stockholders was in prospect.

After the payment of two quarterly disbursements of $1 a share, or at the annual rate of 8 per cent, a year on the $50 par capital stock in the first two quarters of 1931, a payment of 75 cents a share, or at a 7 per cent annual rate, was made in the third quarter. This was further reduced in the final quarter when a distribution of 50 cents a share, or at the annual rate of 4 per cent, was ordered.

Indications are, however, that the last cut in the dividend to the present $2 a share annual rate placed disbursements to stockholders on a level warranted by the company's excellent financial condition and future prospects, and accordingly no further reduction is considered probable at this time.

The company succeeded, however, in improving its working capital position during the last year. Net current assets on Sept. 30 last aggregated $50,175,046, compared with $41,534,301 on Sept. 30, 1930.

Sanka Coffee Reports 1931 Best Year in History

The Sanka Coffee corporation will report the largest sales volume in its history for 1931, according to an announcement by Clarence Francis, executive vice president of General Foods corporation. Sales last year ran 18 per cent ahead of 1930, which was the company's previous record year. This product was acquired by General Foods through a marketing contract in 1927, and is one of the company's 20 nationally advertised brands.

TAKE ACTION TO PREVENT HEAVY DRAIN ON BANKS

Bloomington Clearing House Invokes Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 22.—In order to prevent unusual cash withdrawals the Bloomington Clearing House association today invoked in all banks in the city the stipulated notice for the withdrawal of savings deposits and limited withdrawals on checking accounts and certificates of deposit to an amount not in excess of 5 per cent per month of present balances.

The full effect of the Bloomington Clearing House association order limiting withdrawals for hoarding from local banks may be summarized as follows:

Funds for Business.

Funds for ordinary living expenses of individuals, such as money for taxes, groceries, and rent, will also be readily paid.

Sixty to ninety days' notice, according to the rules of the particular bank, must be given by depositors seeking to withdraw their savings for the purpose of hoarding such money.

Checking accounts and certificates of deposit and all account classified as "commercial" may be withdrawn in amounts not to exceed 5 per cent per month of the balances as of Jan. 21, except that such restriction will not apply on withdrawals for pay rolls, taxes, and other normal purposes.

New and additional deposits will not be subjected to the foregoing rules and will be handled in the normal routine of bank clearing.

Confidence Grows.

Public confidence in the banks and full approval of the plan were evident today. Only normal business was conducted by the banks today so certain was the faith of the citizens in the stability of the banks.

The six banks in Bloomington and two in Normal, a suburb, readily agreed to the order and their officials expressed the belief that the action of the clearing house would prevent any such catastrophes as occurred in Champaign recently. Banks in Bloomington are strong and in only four small towns of McLean county have there been bank failures since 1923.

Dollar Drops Below Gold Shipping Point

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The dollar dropped to 25 francs 39½ centimes on the Paris bourse today. This is approximately the level of the so-called gold point when shipments of gold automatically begin to be commercially profitable operations.

This is the lowest the dollar has hit in Paris since the big rush in October, and is due to give a big impetus to the gold exodus to the old world which has already commenced. Steady, fairly heavy sales of dollars in the face of an apathetic demand caused today's drop. The movement was general but orderly, and there is still little evidence of speculation.

See Prolonged Weakness.

Belief in a relatively prolonged weakness of American currency on the Paris exchange is reflected in the forward rates which bring the rate of the dollar for three months below 25.20—a figure which represents an annual loss of 3 per cent on dollar purchases, interest included.

The French press is playing up the weakness of the dollar, although in moderate and unsentimental fashion. The semi-official Temps in a double edged front page editorial today expressed belief in the fundamental soundness of the dollar, and said that Senator Reed's remarks recently in the senate suggesting it is reported, seizure of French holdings in case France defaulted on her debt payments have induced many French capitalists to order a repatriation of their funds invested in America, "although the remarks do not seem to have unduly alarmed the Bank of France."

Exports to France.

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Gold transactions today resulted in a net decrease of $8,703,800 in the country's monetary stock, according to the New York Federal Reserve bank. Further exports to France amounted to $20,474,000 and a shipment of $230,000 went to Switzerland. Gold under earmark for foreign account decreased $12,000,200. There were no imports.

Resume Purchases.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22.—Gold purchases on straight exchange transactions were resumed on a considerable scale today with an unexpected and rigid advance in the French franc.

In addition to a shipment of $15,000,000 of gold from earmarked stocks to France on the liner Europa tonight, there was shipped, it is understood, around $5,000,000 gold purchased on exchange transactions. Furthermore, additional shipments of free as well as earmarked gold will be made next week on the liners Ile de France and Majestic.

In banking circles there is rapidly taking on shape a policy to discourage foreign hoarding of American gold coin and gold certificates. Several banks are refusing to ship any but gold bars, which, of course, run into so much money that the small foreign hoarder is barred from purchasing them.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 22. — Seemingly worn out by it long struggle to make headway against insurmountable odds, the stock market gave up the ghost completely in the late trading today.

The leaders collapsed in a group dragging the whole list pellmell down after them. Losses ranged anywhere from 1 to 5 points.

Immediate reasons for the sudden turn about were not apparent. In the early trading the market had worked hard to take up the thread of the advance and in a measure succeeded. Encouraging reports on the railroad wage conference at Chicago and announcement of a rather sha wage reduction by the Gulf, Mobile and Northern were capitalized to boost the rails into higher territory and continued talk of the likelihood of favorable dividend action by the United States Steel corporation board was effective in buoying the industrials.

Pressure Increases.

After the turn of the day, however, selling orders graudally gained predominance and by midafternoon the whole list was in headlong retreat. The pressure increased as the session neared its close and final prices were generally the worst of the day.

In the absence of any downright "bad" news to warrant the reaction the street's guess was that the market had decided to anticipate any good news that might come out of either Chicago or Washington—the theory back of such reasoning being, of course, that any favorable developments that might be in store from these sources had already been discounted.

Bearish Development.

A flimsy excuse, of course, but it seemed to be the best the boys had in the shop at the moment. One bearish development that might have had some influence was the action of the National Credit corporation in making its third call for money subscribed by the banks for the relief of other institutions with slow moving assets, but this bit of news was not made public until after the close of the market.

Possibly, however, an inkling of the tidings gained currency here and there—there usually is advance information on such an item for the elect. Also a denial of earlier rumors that the railroad wage parley was nearing a solution of its difficulties may have had some effect. The street has become fairly used to such denials since the confab got under way, how-

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED FOR KIMBELL BONDS

Chester R. Davis Is Made Chairman.

BY AL CHASE.

Raymond G. Kimbell, former president of Kimbell Trust and Savings bank and the West City Trust and Savings bank, announced last night that a bondholders' committee for the protection of the holders of bonds sold through those two institutions has been organized with Chester R. Davis, assistant trust officer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, as chairman. Walter C. Palmer, also of the Chicago Title and Trust company, is secretary of the new bondholders' protective committee.

The other members are Joseph E. Lindquist, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust company; Raymond G. Kimbell; Stanley E. Jones, realtor and builder, and Albert O. Anderson, realtor. The Chicago Title and Trust company is depositary. It also will be arranged that bonds may be deposited with the Raymond G. Kimbell company, 3601 Fullerton avenue.

Wait Naming of Receiver.

"The committee is equipped and prepared to operate, but is deferring acceptance of any deposits of bonds until after the appointment of a receiver for the banks, at which time the receiver will be invited to appoint a representative to act on the committee," said Mr. Palmer.

"The holders of defaulted bonds sold by either of the banks will be duly notified when the committee begins to function. Bondholders should not deposit their bonds or take any action until they have received official notice from the committee."

Ainslie Apartments.

Detailed information regarding the status of the Ainslie apartment building was mailed to the bondholders last night by the bondholders' committee, according to Arthur M. Wirtz, chairman. He states that the committee intends to bid this property in shortly at foreclosure sale for the benefit of the depositing bondholders. Out of a total of $110,000 bonds outstanding, $94,200 worth had been deposited with the committee by Dec. 24, 1931.

A foreclosure suit was filed by a junior mortgage holder and the property operated by a receiver prior to the default of interest on April 27, 1931. On Jan. 16, 1931, a general first mortgage foreclosure suit was filed and the existing receivership extended under that suit. On Feb. 16, 1931, the Cook County Trust company was appointed the new receiver and bonds call for deposit.

The building, at the northeast corner of Broadway and Ainslie, lot 60x100, contains sixteen furnished apartments. It is leased to one tenant. The net income from March to November, 1931, is reported as $4,054, which includes $1,600 turned over by the previous receiver. Deducting receiver's fees of $100, attorney's fee of $90 and half of the general taxes for 1929, $874, leaves cash on hand as of Dec. 1, 1931, $2,990.

Deeds Back Property.

Last year Frank H. Merrill and his wife, Mellitor, of New York, bought the property at 16-20 South Wells street, 60x92, from Fred W. and Ida Klein. The New Yorkers defaulted on a note for $25,000 and interest notes due Nov. 18, 1931, aggregating $8,400, and failed to pay the general taxes for 1928 and 1929.

They state they wish to avoid a foreclosure suit and so have turned the property over to the Kleins who in consideration of this agree to pay the back taxes and also those for 1930 and 1931 and also to cancel the notes and interest due.

PRICES IN WHEAT MARKET STEADY; NEWS IS BEARISH

Houses Having Eastern Connections Buy.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While local sentiment is bearish and a good part of the news on wheat yesterday favored a lower level of prices the market made little headway on the down side, closing ¼@¾c lower after a range of ½@¾c. Houses with eastern connections took the buying side of the May delivery at 59⅛c and under and absorbed the surplus in the pit. Local shorts had to bid the market up toward the last in an effort to cover, and the finish was at 59⅝c. March closed at 57⅛c, and July at 59⅛c.

Weakness in the stock market in New York, the continued lack of active export buying, and the immense exports from the southern hemisphere were the main factors in causing a lower range of wheat prices. Argentina and Australia combined cleared 11,521,000 bu for the week, compared with 9,274,000 bu the previous week, and 6,100,000 bu last year, and the trade is looking for a marked increase to be shown in world's shipments for the week.

Deny Pool Operations.

Pit observers yesterday said the buying of wheat futures by houses with eastern connections was not aggressive and apparently on scale orders. No effort was made to advance the market.

Persistent rumors of pool operations are being heard, but they are decried by operators who should know what is going on. According to the latter the buying on the breaks of late has been by individuals rather than a pool, the former having discovered that the speculative interest was so light that the market could be easily influenced. On the bulges the last few days the houses which have been the best buyers on the breaks have turned sellers.

In support of the contention that there is no wheat pool, some traders cite what happened when the late J. A. Patten and others a number of years ago put the price of cotton up to the almost unheard of figure of 20c per lb, with the result that the government started indictment proceedings on the ground of conspiracy. The grain futures act, under which the exchanges are now operating, carries a clause regarding manipulation and conspiracy.

However, it is understood that the same operators who were responsible for the bulge in wheat of around 24c in October and November are now working on the bull side of the market. There was some selling of futures yesterday which the trade credited to a local professional who is in Florida.

Export Demand Slow.

With the southern hemisphere putting afloat large quantities of wheat per week it was regarded as only natural by the trade that the foreign demand for North American grain should be limited, especially in view of the marked difference in the price, especially as compared with Argentina. Liverpool finished ¼@⅜c lower, with May at 55⅜c per bu, or 4c under Chicago, while Winnipeg was ⅛@⅜c lower, with May at 62¾c in Canadian funds, or about 53¼c on a gold basis. Buenos Aires March closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, with March at 41⅝c. Around 300,000 bu Manitobas were sold in all positions yesterday, according to seaboard reports.

No sales of cash corn to the east were reported by Chicago handlers yesterday, the first time in many months that such a condition has existed. At the same time country offerings to arrive were much smaller, with only 5,000 bu booked.

Trade in corn futures was limited and the undertone was easy. Sufficient buying developed against the bids to check the break at 40⅞c for May, but the finish was at net losses of ⅜@⅝c. March closed at 38⅜c, May at 41c, and July at 42½c.

Trade in both oats and rye was largely of a local character, with oats finishing ⅛@¼c lower. May was 26c and July, 25⅝@25½c at the last. Rye was unchanged to ¼c lower for the day, May being 47⅛c, and July, 47¾c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Speculators who believe that wheat is worth more than the present market price express the opinion that operation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation will, eventually, put business of the country on a better basis and that, naturally, grains, and particularly wheat, should sell higher, especially should expectations of an improved foreign demand for our grains and our manufactured goods materialize. Without this help, however, new and important factors are regarded as necessary to advance prices to a higher level and hold them. Coarse grains are not attracting attention from speculators or cash buyers to any extent and the market is narrow, fluctuations depending largely upon pit conditions. Kansas and Nebraska reported larger country marketings of corn and a poor cash demand, which was also reflected in the eastern situation.

A great deal of attention was given to Broomhall's report of world's shipments for the last twenty-three weeks of 335,000,000 bu, or 43 per cent of the estimated total import requirements for the season, which aggregate 776,000,000 bu. Russian shipments since Aug. 1 have been 67,728,000 bu, as compared with 72,440,000 bu last year.

Italy's wheat requirements for the balance of the season are placed at 32,000,000 bu by a London authority. This, it is said, will probably include 15,000,000 bu, and 10,000,000 bu Canadian, with the balance Argentine wheat.

TRADE BUYS COTTON; NET DECLINES SMALL

Trade buying of cotton yesterday was a feature on all recessions. The volume of business, however, was not heavy and the range of fluctuations was confined around 10 points. New Orleans bought cotton in New York. Southern and New England mills are reporting day and night operations as a result of heavy back logs. Worth street continues firm with considerable interest in the conference this week in Greenville, S. C., to discuss curtailment policies.

Cotton interests expect that agricultural sections will be given good assistance from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and that the whole position will be strengthened.

Closing trades were the lowest, with futures in Chicago 3@6 points net lower, with other markets off 2@6 points. Spots declined 5 points, New York 6.70c, New Orleans and Galveston, 6.55c, and Houston, 6.45c. Liverpool closing unchanged to 3 points net lower. Prices follow:

BUTTER SELLS AT NEW LOW

Butter futures were weak on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, more all time lows being recorded in all deliveries. Closing prices were ½@¾c lower. Egg futures remained deadlocked, ordinary refrigerators gaining ½c at the close, other deliveries being neglected. Potato futures were unchanged to 5c lower. January round whites falling to a new low. Storage news in butter was bearish, each of the four major cities reporting a net inward movement. Liquidation was prominent and new selling appeared. Buying improved after the opening, but died out at the close. The egg news continued bearish, although the movement compared with last year was not as bearish as recorded recently. The ten market holdings now are around 8,000 cases less than last year, compared with 400,000 cases less a few weeks ago. Sales: Butter, 111 cars; eggs, 7 cars; potatoes, 30 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 7 cars; eggs, 1 car. Prices follow:

The price trend in all live stock turned upward on light supplies yesterday. Hogs displayed a decidedly stronger undertone and activity featured the trade when smaller houses, reported to be realizing a more attractive cutting price since the average cost of droves sank below $4.00, came into the market with substantially increased orders. Larger houses were on hand earlier than usual and few of the hogs left at the close were being offered for sale.

The cut-out value of the hog during the last few months has had more bearing on the trade because of the larger share being moved into consumption as fresh pork. Order buyers representing eastern plants were also more aggressive and paid upwards to $4.20 for selected light weight hogs. Most of the 250@300 lb butchers sold at $3.70@3.85, while 200@225 lb averages went mostly at $3.90@4.10. The average for the whole day moved up 5c at $3.90. The recovery spread to all leading centers and some of the relatively low markets came up as much as 15@20c on the bulge.

May Hogs Bid $5.

Light weight hogs for next May delivery were bid $5.00 on the futures trade yesterday. March mediums carried bids of $4.50 and February contracts were bid $4.00 and offered at $4.50.

The cattle market developed the first real strength of the week on yesterday's clean-up session. Packers were buying more freely in anticipation of a decrease in receipts for early next week. General opinion in the trade is that the drastic slashing of quotations the last two weeks is more than likely to curtail the marketward movement of supplies until prices show some recovery.

Prevailing quotations are at the lowest levels in 20 years. Most of yesterday's meager supply went over the scales at $4.75@6.50, the best cattle available selling at $7.50. A good many cows carried from previous sessions this week were dumped on the trade yesterday and met ready sale at firm prices. The small calf supply sold steady. No change was noted in stockers and feeders.

Sheep Receipts Smaller.

Sheep receipts showed a decrease of 25 per cent at the seven leading markets yesterday, and despite the indifferent attitude of eastern buyers, prices advanced 25c on strong local support. No changes of much importance were indicated in wires from eastern wholesale markets, but a rather substantial slice was cut from local quotations which restricted buying by smaller local houses. Big packers, however, were eager for $5.85@6.25 lambs and took the bulk of the comparatively small supply on that basis. Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged. Shearing lambs suitable for a short feed are selling readily at $5.00@5.25, but thin light feeders are dull at $4.25@4.75.

Probable receipts of hogs for next Monday are estimated from 55,000 to 75,000. R. B. Ellis marked 75,000; G. Gunlap, 70,000; R. Trullinger, 68,000; G. Brittain, 66,000; W. T. Reneker, G. W. Chandler, Wm. Garret, H. S. Turner, A. G. Welhener, and O. Dwight, 65,000; F. M. Sherwood, 63,000; J. M. Waters and P. Allen, 60,000; H. Pattison and F. B. Orb, 58,000, and F. W. Young and W. G. Olson, 55,000.
